JURY GETS RINI-CHORGAS CASE

Today

No Fooling With Mellon.
What the Flood is Like.
Back Polishers, For Beauty.
A Complicated Lynching.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

GREAT BRITAIN receives the right reply to her note concerning Mr. Mellon's letter to college professors, about international debts. Secretary Kellogg tells Britain that what Secretary Mellon write to American professors is our business. That covers the ground.

INCIDENTALLY, the British admit that beginning in 1932 they will be getting from their European debtors, recently called "gallant allies," more than enough to cover all payments to the United States. Mr. Mellon's statement was strictly accurate, barring one clerical error, and it enlightened his fellow citizens.

MORE heavy rains have increased the Mississippi flood danger. It is difficult, far away and safe, to realize what the flood means, what fearful power nature has turned loose on thousands of miles of country. Secretary Hoover said of it:

"It is difficult to picture in words the might of the Mississippi flood. To say that, two blocks from where I stand it is at this minute flowing at a rate of 10 times that of Niagara, seems unimpressive."

THE "back polisher" is the latest British beauty expert. Gowns this season are worn so low in the back as to expose wide sections of skin not accustomed to night lights. The back polisher's business is to treat this new territory with cosmetics to make it look like polished ivory, the right tone for a lady's back.

Women have not yet decided what they want to look like, and be like. It may take them many centuries to decide. Men must wait patiently.

JOHN CARTER, a Negro, who had attacked a white woman in Little Rock, Ark, was hanged and riddled with bullets. The lesson was wasted on him after that, but the crowd was not satisfied. It fastened his dead body behind an automobile, dragged it along the pavement of the city's main street, then soaked it with gasoline and burned it on a corner of the busiest street in the Negro section of the city.

WILL the lynching, dragging and burning really have a wholesome effect upon thousands of Negroes and whites that witnessed it? Will it inspire the Negroes with respect for the white race?

VANZETTI appeals to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts for "justice," not "mercy." Half a dozen reputable and not "radical" witnesses testify that there was a fixed determination on the part of the court "to get" Sacco and Vanzetti.

It is alleged that the judge before whom the two men were convicted, and who alone under Massachusetts law could grant a new trial, said that he would "get them, good and proper."

It is important that the men, if guilty of murder, should not escape. It is

Review-Tribune Offers Its Readers Booklet on Paint

Although paint makes great improvements in the appearance of property, it is far more useful for protection than for ornament.

A small amount of money expended in keeping a building or a piece of machinery painted adds greatly to the length of its life.

Moreover, buildings and outhouses are rendered much more sanitary by the use of paint.

Dirt works into an unpainted surface and sticks. It slides off a painted surface. Its use makes for economy, sanitation and attractiveness.

You can learn all about the use of paint if you send today for a government publication on this subject which our Washington Information Bureau will secure for any one who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling. Write your name and address clearly.

ACQUIT WOMAN, CONVICT MAN, BROOKES URGES IN ARGUMENT

AWAIT VERDICT

Seven Women and Five Men Deliberate Upon Evidence.

With a recommendation by Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes that the woman be acquitted and the man found guilty, the fate of Salvatore Rini, 22, of East Liverpool, and Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, jointly indicted for second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville, was placed in the hands of a jury in common pleas court, Lisbon, at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Early Verdict Expected.

The seven women and five men comprising the jury began their deliberations following Judge W. F. Lones' brief charge and after listening to state and defense arguments throughout the morning and early afternoon.

Predictions were made that the verdict, which is expected to free Mrs. Chorgas, will be returned before nightfall.

Prosecutor Brookes urged a second degree verdict, which carries with it life imprisonment, against Rini, branding him "guilty of plunging a knife two and one half inches long into the body of Patsy Anania; guilty of perjury and guilty of slaying a man who befriended him."

Defense Counsel W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, called for a verdict of acquittal for Rini, stressing Rini's declaration on the witness stand that he had no part in the death of Anania, and charging that the Chorgas woman had done the cutting.

Opening arguments were delivered yesterday afternoon by Assistant Prosecutor John E. Bauknecht, for the state, and Attorney Raymond Knepper, of Wellsville, for the defense.

Brookes Scores Rini.

"I ask you to find Marie Chorgas not guilty," said Brookes. "I ask you to find Sal Rini guilty in the manner and form charged in the indictment —Rini, the man who cannot remember when he had a steady job—the man who called his pal a bootlegger, adulterer and poker player.

"I never asked for a conviction of one I did not believe guilty. Patsy could not have done it. Who sup

FIND NO TRACE OF ST. ROMAN

RIO JANEIRO, May 7.—Search along the Brazilian coast and the waters off St. Paul rock, and repeated radio messages to ships at sea, have failed to bring any trace of Captain St. Roman, the daring French flier who is now more than 36 hours overdue on his flight to Brazil from Senegal.

Ships to the number of 17, along the route which St. Roman was to follow, have radioed that they have not seen any trace of the flier and many of the captains declare that if he has been forced down in the sea they doubt his having been picked up.

Ships have been ordered to St. Paul rock to continue the search for St. Roman.

ROANOKE LAD'S FIGHT AGAINST HIS COLLAPSED LUNGS FAILS

Walter L. Boothe, 18, Dies Despite Friends' Effort.

17-DAY BATTLE

Kept Alive by Pumping Arms up and Down.

ROANOKE, Va., May 7.—Walter L. Boothe's remarkable fight for life with a pair of collapsed lungs, ended this morning. The 18-year-old youth, who had been kept alive since April 21 by the unflagging efforts of his friends in pumping his arms up and down to produce artificial respiration, died at Jefferson hospital shortly after 6 o'clock.

Boothe's system finally failed, just as physicians have said it would. They have marveled for two weeks at the tenacity with which the boy clung to life. For ten days they have expected the collapse at any time, and as day after day passed and he continued "about the same" they have only shaken their heads and said "it can't last."

Cherful to End.

The boy remained cheerful to the end. He realized his impending death two weeks ago, and informed his parents and relatives at the bedside that he was "ready to go." Occasionally he took soft food and now and then asked for a cigarette.

Boothe suffered a spinal injury a year ago in an automobile accident. While he was being operated on April 21 his lungs collapsed. Since then friends, working in relays, have forced air into his lungs by incessantly raising and lowering his arms.

Doctors said the case was probably the most remarkable in medical annals.

This policy is in addition to free notary service, free road maps, route books, touring information, free legal advice and information, bail bond protection, assistance in collecting automobile damage claims for which no charge is made, mechanical assistance, towing or wreck car service for which a fee of $1 is charged. In fact the club serves as a clearing house for its members' motoring difficulties.

Henry Judd Gray Says He 'Supposed' He'd Get Chair For Slaying Of Editor

Mrs. Snyder, Depressed, Reads Letter From Texas Rancher Containing Proposal of Marriage, While Former Lover Declares he is Not Afraid of Capital Punishment.

By James L. Kilgallen.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 7.—"The jury will not send me to the electric chair," Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, on trial with her former lover, Henry Judd Gray, for the murder of her husband, Albert Snyder, art editor of Motor Boating, declared today.

Gray said he "supposed" he'd get the chair but he wasn't afraid.

Both the defendants made these statements to an attache of the sheriff's office in their cells this morning as they rested awaiting resumption of the trial Monday when summation will be made and the case will be given to the jury.

Mrs. Snyder was depressed when the attache of the sheriff's office saw her but she had not given up hope. She said:

"They will never send a woman to the death house in this state. I think the jury has believed my story."

"I Told Truth"—Gray.

She brightened considerably when her mail was brought in and smiled when she read a letter from a Texas rancher containing a proposal of marriage in the event she is acquitted.

Gray said:

"I'm not afraid of the electric chair. I suppose I'm going to get it. I feel better. I have told the truth. Considering everything I still have some hope."

Gray seemed to be in good spirits and ate a hearty breakfast. Mrs. Snyder has been eating poorly of late.

Buoyed Up With Religion.

The trial, to all intents and purposes, is over. The evidence is all in. There was no session of court today. Monday, lawyers for both defense and the state will make their closing addresses, Justice Townsend Scudder will instruct the jury, and then the jury will retire to decide upon a verdict.

In his cell today, Gray was as cheerful as a man in his predicament would be expected to be. He had told a dreadful story on the witness stand of how he and his former sweetheart, Mrs. Snyder, entered her husband's bedroom in the early hours of Sunday, March 20, last, and dealt him to death with an iron sashweight. QUAKE ROCKS MEMPHIS, TENN.

Two Distinct Tremors Shake Buildings and Homes.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 7.—Two distinct earth tremors rocked buildings and awakened hundreds from their sleep in Memphis and surrounding territory at 2:35 a. m. today.

More than 100 persons called police headquarters, declaring they were awakened by the shock and their homes shaken.

The tremors were felt as far north as Sikeston, Mo., reports indicated.

Large downtown office buildings were shaken, according to persons engaged in cleaning work at that hour, and employes of the Grand Central station declared the building vibrated with the shock.

Other places feeling the "quake" were the Tennessee towns of Dresswburg, Tipton, Ripley, and Union City, and Caruthersville, Mo., Hickman, Ky., and Blytheville, Ark.

Review-Tribune Offers Its Readers Booklet on Paint

Although paint makes great improvements in the appearance of property, it is far more useful for protection than for ornament.

A small amount of money expended in keeping a building or a piece of machinery painted adds greatly to the length of its life.

Moreover, buildings and outhouses are rendered much more sanitary by the use of paint.

Dirt works into an unpainted surface and sticks. It slides off a painted surface. Its use makes for economy, sanitation and attractiveness.

You can learn all about the use of paint if you send today for a government publication on this subject which our Washington Information Bureau will secure for any one who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling. Write your name and address clearly.

Frederic J. Haskin, Director
The East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

I enclose herewith FOUR CENTS in stamps for a copy of the PAINT BOOKLET.

Demented Salesman Is Killed By Police

Newspaper Worker Shot Down as he Brandishes Gun in Business Section of New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—H. C. Easton, 30, advertising salesman for a local newspaper, was shot and instantly killed by police early today after he had established himself beside a monument in Lafeyette square, in the business section, with the avowed intention of "shooting the first man" he saw.

Easton suddenly became demented in the newspaper office and left it, brandishing a gun and shouting threats. Employes of the paper called police and eight patrolmen, armed with riot guns, advanced upon his hiding place.

When they called on him to surrender, he opened fire. Each of the officers then replied and Easton's body was riddled with bullets.

Civil War Vets Seek Memorial Day Funds

Women and Children Sell Flags to Meet Expense of Grand Army of Republic Exercises.

Approximately 50 woman and girl workers are selling miniature American flags upon the streets in the downtown district today as a means of raising funds to defray the expense of the annual Memorial Day exercises of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The sale started at 9 o'clock this morning. No report was available this afternoon.

Headquarters are being maintained in the lobby of the Little building, where Mrs. Susan Howard and other women are in charge.

The workers hope to raise approximately $400 in the flag sale. Wreaths and flags to decorate the graves of Civil war veterans and other expenses in connection with the Decoration Day program will be provided through the fund.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO.

Hattie sent Dempster tickets for the evening by special messenger, with the two words, "Pease come!" written in pencil on a big sheet of hotel paper. He went, however, alone, and sat through it beside what was, doubtless, the only vacant seat in the house. It was a stirring evening. The audience was representative of the Broadwayway and the critical world. The picture was good; probably, Dempster reflected, De Brissac's best so far. Harriet's success was certain. It seemed to him that she had grown in seriousness and even in power without loss of her girlishness. And when she appeared, during the intermission, led on by De Brissac himself, and stood for a long time, very little, very young, very appealing, while the great audience fairly cheered itself out, Dempster—standing, now, on his chair in order to see her—felt her again as a remote celebrity. And he watched narrowly the really distinguished director who had put the whole business through with dauntless energy and skill; the director who held her hand and spoke gently to her and carried along with the rest of it. Quite a man—De Brissac!

He moved slowly out with the crowd afterward, listening, an outsider, to the buzz of excited interest. The picture was a success. The child was already, tonight, a long step farther along that amazing career of hers. He watched the flushed, excited faces of stout men out near the box office who slapped one another's backs and wrung hands and held jubilee. And then he slipped out into the street that was thronged with pleasure-seeking men and women and that was bright with electric signs.

He couldn't know what was going on back stage and in that limousine that stood waiting down by the stage door; scenes in which he could have no part; but he felt them psychically in his spirit. And he walked the street a long time before it seemed that he could go home. And he was glad his mother didn't waken.

But he felt it; almost as if his eyes and ears could give him the picture. . . . De Brissac taking Hattie's arm and hurrying her out to the limousine . . . saying, as he did say, "Hattie, there's only one thing to do. We must go on. The company can't let you go. And I can't let you go. Perhaps your brother-in-law has told you what I said to him . . ." Hattie nodded to this, her eyes bright, her lips compressed . . . "We are going to give you a share in the profits. That'll be yours personally in any event. And I want you to marry me. We know each other pretty well now. I am making my will tomorrow, giving you everything. I've got to have you. I can't hold anything back. . . . You can't work with anybody else. And certainly you can't quit the pictures now. I will provide for your family. I will take care of everything. . What else is there to do? I'm the man you belong to. You're not the kind to take up with Tom, Dick and Harry. We can be married tomorrow."

All she could say—or all he could hear—was, "I've got to think."

She called Dempster in the morning and asked to meet him at luncheon.

He knew, then, as he watched her over the table, that she was suffering in a way that she could probably never be articulate about. But there was something that she had to come out with.

"What would you think . . ." she began.

"Harriet," said he, soberly and gently, "I wonder if we haven't been thinking of the same thing. You've got to go on."

She couldn't speak just then. He saw the tears coming and pressed on.

"We've had our moment of beauty, dear."

She nodded, quickly.

"But you can't capture beauty. You can't imprison it. We're lucky, of course. Perhaps it was for both of us just a moment of escape."

Again she was nodding, and fighting back the tears. And after that they could only make the best of the situation until he could get her back to the hotel.

There, at the door, she caught his hand and said—

"I'll write sometimes and tell you what I'm doing. And I'll let you know where you can write me .There'll never be anybody like you. Not anybody."

Suddenly, then, there in Forty-fourth Street, she threw her arms about his neck, drew herself up and kissed him, and then ran into the hotel.

Later that afternoon she made up very carefully and dressed for a dinner that was to end in a wedding. Already the newspapers, she knew, had the story. The publicity men were wildly happy over this brilliant new material. It was all to work in with her triumph. . . And De Brissac's . . . She took from its white box the long string of pearls, weighed it deliberately in her hand, and then drew it about her neck and clasped it there. Then, as firmly, she put the little bracelet watch of platinum on her wrist. She drew the gay Spanish shawl about her shoulders. . . .De Brissac tapped at her door then, and she went with him to his suite. The more important of the picture people were there, and some famous actors and actresses. Arthur bustled, all dressed up. And they had champagne. It was a great occasion, even to Broadway. And life was rushing on . . .

Dempster that evening packed a suitcase.

His mother came in her gentle way

Fireworks Outlawed

East Liverpool should have a noiseless Fourth of July this year, as a result of councilmanic action in adopting the ordinance prohibiting the sale and discharge of fireworks within the municipal limits. The legislation, approved by a 5 to 2 vote, will be signed by Mayor Benedum, thus becoming effective 30 days after its enactment.

While the prohibitory measure may not be popular with Young America, it is a sensible law. And it undoubtedly will prove the means of reducing the toll of accidents in the celebration of the nation's natal day.

Of course, the problem of coping with the fireworks bootlegger presents itself, due to the fact that dealers outside the municipal boundaries are not affected by the ordinance. However, this should not prove very troublesome,

Fireworks do not offer the only means of observing Independence Day. Community programs, picnics, etc., are more in keeping with the occasion, as well as safer.

Triumph Of Dubness

Perhaps our leading philosophers nowadays are the cartoon ists. Whether they do comic strips or pictures approximating works of art, a thoughtful person can nearly always get a mental kick out of their work.

There has been considerable criticism lately of American court procedure, especially in criminal cases, and with particular regard to the jury system. Will Johnstone, in the New York World, tackles that theme with a foolish little group of six pictures, entitled. "Your Country Needs You," which isn't so foolish as it looks.

The first picture shows a boy at school sitting on a stool in the corner, with a dunce cap on his head, saying: "I owe it to the community to be a dumb citizen when I grow up—somebody's got to do it!"

The second shows an interview between the boy and his father, on the subject of choosing a career, with the boy saying: "I ain't never going to work, pa—I might get tied up in business some day."

The third shows him as a youth on the street, waving aside a newsboy with a murder extra in his hand, explaining: "I never buy newspapers. I can't read, anyway."

In the fourth chapter he is a grown-up man, living alone, surrounded by a barb-wire fence, with a "Keep Out" sign on the gate, and "I'm a Hermit" on the house.

In the fifth he is "at large," walking in the rain without a hat or umbrella or raincoat, and saying to himself: "If I could only form an opinion, I might say this rain's wet, but I dunno!"

Then comes the triumphant denouement—in court. As a prospective juror, the illiterate hermit is saying: "I'm dumb—got no business—ain't read no papers—got no friends, got no opinions, or nothing!"

What then? The reader has doubtless guessed it. Joy and relief in the courtroom, and the propmt order, "Take a seat in the jury box!"

American Foreign Loans

All peace-time records were broken last month in Ameican foreign loans. This country lent abroad $209,000,000.

Foreign countries already owe the American people $20,000,000,000 to $25,000,000,000, about half of it in government loans and half in private loans. Our private investors lately have been lending money abroad at the rate of more than a billion a year, and now that rate is increasing.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover steps in with a word of good counsel, advising Americans not to make any more foreign loans for military purposes or for balancing national budgets.

"It is a tempting thing," he says, "for certain European governments to find a horde of American bankers sitting on their doorsteps offering them money. It is also demoralizing for municipalities and corporations in the same countries to have money pressed on them. That sort of competition tends to insecurity and unsound practice."

There should be no opposition to safe and legitimate loans, he adds. But "no nation should itself borrow, or permit its citizens to borrow, money from foreign countries, and no nation should allow its citizens to lend money to foreign countries, unless this money is to be devoted to productive enterprise."

To much American money is helping to arm Europe and helping to pay the current expenses of national and mounicipal governments. It would be far better is the bankers were begging constructive American enterprise to accept their loans, and if the masses of thrifty folk who provide the funds for lending should insist on such use of them.

A LITTLE TALE FOR BUSINESS MEN.

Just before he died, at an untimely age and to the regret of the amusement-loving public, Barney Barnard, the great Hebrew comedian, told me this one:

He said a co-religionist of his was on the road selling goods for a general supply house. One afternoon he dropped in on a customer residing in a suburban town.

"I don't want anything in your line today," said the storekeeper, as the traveling man began undoing a sample case. "I'm all stocked up."

"Oh, give me a little order anyway," pleaded the drummer. "Just a little something to prove to the boss that I'm on the job. Business has been rotten the last few days."

"Same here," said the customer. "No, there's nothing doing. You'll only be wasting your time and mine. Besides, I haven't got any money to spare."

"You won't have to pay for ninety days," said the drummer.

"That makes no difference. I'm feeling poor and I don't want to feel any poorer. Why, only yesterday I ordered a Pomeranian for a hundred dollars and Lord knows where I'm going to get the cash for it whn it comes through. But my wife just would have a Pomeranian. You know how women are."

"Sucker that you are!" exclaimed the traveling man. "To pay one hundred dollars for one of thse here now Pomeranians is foolishness. Listen to me: You just send a wire cancelling that order and I'll bill you a A-number-one, high grade Pomeranian for—let me see?—for sixty-five dollars, delivered."

"That's a trade," said the citizen and the deal was closed.

The traveling man hurried back to his hotel and on the long-distance telephone called up his chief.

"Say, listen, Mr. Einstein," he said to the head of the firm, when connection had been made, "this is Levinski speaking. I just got an order from Jones out here in Southville; not much of an order but still something. I sold him a Pomeranian for sixty-five dollars . . . Say, Mr. Einstein, what is a Pomeranian?"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 7.—New York offers many oddities in millionaires. That is their fortunes have been wrested from strange pursuits. Some of them have hit upon ideas that make them overnight and others have been battered and bruised in the long travail.

In one large building down-town are the offices of two millionaires who are only a year removed from the peasantry of Europe and have not yet learned the language. A Polish immigrant lad devastated large chunks of Millionaire's Row to erect skyscrapers. A 26-year-old Russian was recently paid a million for a quick photo invention. A chain of orange drink stands that flower in convenient midtown crevices are owned by a man who began his career in the new land five years ago with a red shirt and a pick. It was only three years ago he was able to bring his wife and three children from Russia.

There is a hair dresser from Switzerland who began with a single salon in a smart hotel ten years ago. The bobbing craze came along and he now owns eleven coiffure parlors between New York and Florida. He lives in a sixteen-room house in Long Island and drives to work in a liveried car.

There is the quick spending millionaire of Broadway who made his pile out of a breath of perfume preparation. He was a soda jerker in a Pak Row drug store until several years ago when he hit upon a discovery fooling around the prescription case. He is not 30 years old.

Control of the New York theater programs has made another man a tremendous fortune and unlocked the gates of society. Harry Stevens, who has the pop-corn and lemonade privileges at the ball parks and Garden has been a millionaire for several years.

A man who runs penny eating places for newsboys and shoe shiners has a show-place estate on the Hudson. These and scores of others have sat in the game of millions with no capital. Usually they had a single idea, a lot of faith in it—and they plunged.

Few ship news reporters have ever been abroad, although they swing down the bay daily to meet incoming ships. As one said the other day: "When we take a vacation we want to get away from water, except a little on the side."

New York is divided into two sections in the summer—those who go to the country and those who stay in town. Broadway takes on an entirely different look. It is filled with visitors who dawdle along a trifle agape. Merchants stand in their doorways and hatless clerks trek across the square to the soda fountains. Fifth Avenue is deserted after 5 o'clock and even the traffic tower gods nod over their fish eyed lights. Those in the country come to town once a week to the cafes—usually Monday night—to display their latest tans and wonder how folk stand it in the city. Only the summer revue girl shows are patronized. Nearly all the other theaters are closed. New York does not begin to look New Yorkish again until late September.

People vanish in New York without trace. Nothing apparently happens to them save they disappear. A friend recently tried to trace a former well known supper club hostess of eight years ago, a professional dancer, a newspaperman and a magazine artist of the same period. He could not find a single clue to their whereabouts.

A gentleman gave up his $22,000 a year apartment in a Park Avenue building because the management would not permit him to have an iron deer on either side of his doorway in the hall.

A neighborhood often attempts to absorb the grandeur of a new building. When the huge Roxy theater was completed there sprang up in the vicinity Roxy counter lunches, Roxy shoe repair parlors, Roxy radio and cigar stores.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Passing of the Deer.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The people of New York state and all those others to whom the Adirondacks mean a paradise have become much agitated over the deer situation in those mountains. The game laws of New York provide an open season in the autumn with the result that hundreds of deer are killed by hunters. Sportsmen from every state in the Union and some from foreign countries annually go to the great hills of northern New York to hunt in its wooded mountains.

But a recent survey made by the state game officials indicates that deaths due to cold winters perhaps exceed those caused by the sportsmen's rifles. It is not unusual for the thermometer to drop to thirty degrees below zero around Saranac Lake, Lake Placid, Paul Smith's, and such places. The survey indicates that the does suffer more than the stags with the result that the spring brings fewer fawns.

A curious thing about the Adirondack deer is that they show a rather high order of intelligence. In the old days that part of the country was as wild as any place in the United States. Paul Smith was there, Robert Louis Stevenson, and Rudyard Kipling not far away but there were no millionaires' elaborate camps crowding the woods, no automobiles, no motor boats chugging on the innumerable lakes and very few rifle shots.

Gradually the deer have been disappearing. They do not like millionaires. A migration has set in and they are going, of their own vilition, to less popular parts of the state. The state game authorities have discovered, as the result of a survey, that the deer gravitate toward the counties where there is no open season. How they know which counties those are is a mystery which has not been solved but it nevertheless is a fact that they do have some guilding instinct which tells them where they can find sanctuary.

The local authorities of the Adirondack region are favoring the shortening of the open season to fifteen days—from November 1 to November 15—instead of the month now allowed. This, is believed, will enable the herds to recoup their losses. From a purely business point of view this would be a wise policy for the people of the Adirondacks because the deer hunting season annually brings thousands of persons, usually wealthy, into the towns.

White Deer Evasive.

There is one sort of deer which rarely is shot; the albino or, as it is locally known, the ghost deer. As a freak of nature, there occasionally is born a pure white deer. Even its hoofs and antlers are white and its body is as white as snow. These deer apparently are endowed with better wits than the usual brown deer as they know how to keep out of the way of the hunters. They are seen not infrequently but nearly always out of range. They are very fleet and alert. Every Adirondack hunter has some tale to tell of a flash of white in the trees, a chance shot but no quarry. Out of the hundreds of deer shot each season, it is seldom that more than one ghost deer is brought down and some seasons pass without a single one being taken. As is natural much Indian and local superstition attaches to these animals. They are persumed to bear charmed lives and when one is shot it aways is mounted and put on exhibition for the wondering populace.

Paul Smith had many stories about the ghost deer. Smith's name was not really Paul. It was Appolos but that was too long and too Greek for the hunters he guided over Whiteface, Marcy, and the many other mountains, so it was shortened, first to Pol and then translated into the more American Paul.

He got his start in the hotel business in a curious way. He had a camp up in the hills but most of the time was away from it, hunting and trapping. But he always left a keg of whiskey at the camp. To it there was attached by a chain a fair-sized dipper. Anyone who wanted to could come along and obtain a drink. The price was four cents per dipper. The pennies were to be left on top of the keg. It is said that no one ever drank at this forest barroom without paying, even though the proprietor, or any one else, was not within ten miles of it. Now Paul Smith's is a town boasting a big hotel.

Paul Smith's Politics.

Some one asked Paul Smith how it happened that he always was postmaster of the town of Paul Smith's no matter what changes took place in the administration at Washington. His reply was: "The administration can't change any quicker than I can." From the time he set up his first tent to the end of his days he remained postmaster of the town that bore his name.

Deer by no means constitute all the game of the Adirondacks. Perhaps they are the most picturesque but there are many other creatures. Bears probably are the most prolific of the wild life of the region. Every year scores of them are taken and it is a matter of course for the farmer of northern New York to have a bearskin rug in his sleigh as a laprobe. They hibernate in the winter but roam about the fields quite unceremoneously during the summer months. It is not unusual to discover a tremendous, lumbering bruin in one's berry patch or curled up asleep in the sun in one's barnyard.

The lynx also is to be found in the Adirondacks but he is a bad neighbor. The bears are gentle compared to the lynx. Then, of course, there are plenty of wild cats.

Quail, grouse, pheasants, woodcock are to be found in numbers and mink, muskrats, grey squirrels, and raccoons can be had for the searching. The squirrels are not as numerous as formerly, however. In fact in no part of the country are they to be found in such numbers as a few years ago. The chestnut blight which swept the country about a decade ago has seriously interferred with the food supply of the squirrels and many have died from winter starving in addition to those which have been killed in pursuit of sport or for their fur.

Civilization is encroaching on the Adirondacks each year but, in spite of the millionaires' camps it will take a long time to conquer this wilderness. This is especially so as efforts are made toward resistance. Mount Whiteface is probably the most picturesque peak in the Adirondacks. During the past winter a determined effort has ben made to induce the New York legislature at Alabny to appropriate funds to build a road to the summit. The present trail is about five miles long as it leads directly up the sides of the mountain. The proposed road would have to be about twenty miles long as it would wind around. The efforts to build this road has met with the most determined resistance, what amounts to a lobby having been established at Albany to prevent passage of the enabling act. The resistance springs from the desire of the people to whom the mountain is especially dear to keep it free from tourists. The issue has not yet been decided.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The people of New York state and all those others to whom the Adirondacks mean a paradise have become much agitated over the deer situation in those mountains. The game laws of New York provide an open season in the autumn with the result that hundreds of deer are killed by hunters. Sportsmen from every state in the Union and some from foreign countries annually go to the great hills of northern New York to hunt in its wooded mountains.

But a recent survey made by the state game officials indicates that deaths due to cold winters perhaps exceed those caused by the sportsmen's rifles. It is not unusual for the thermometer to drop to thirty degrees below zero around Saranac Lake, Lake Placid, Paul Smith's, and such places. The survey indicates that the does suffer more than the stags with the result that the spring brings fewer fawns.

A curious thing about the Adirondack deer is that they show a rather high order of intelligence. In the old days that part of the country was as wild as any place in the United States. Paul Smith was there, Robert Louis Stevenson, and Rudyard Kipling not far away but there were no millionaires' elaborate camps crowding the woods, no automobiles, no motor boats chugging on the innumerable lakes and very few rifle shots.

Gradually the deer have been disappearing. They do not like millionaires. A migration has set in and they are going, of their own vilition, to less popular parts of the state. The state game authorities have discovered, as the result of a survey, that the deer gravitate toward the counties where there is no open season. How they know which counties those are is a mystery which has not been solved but it nevertheless is a fact that they do have some guilding instinct which tells them where they can find sanctuary.

The local authorities of the Adirondack region are favoring the shortening of the open season to fifteen days—from November 1 to November 15—instead of the month now allowed. This, is believed, will enable the herds to recoup their losses. From a purely business point of view this would be a wise policy for the people of the Adirondacks because the deer hunting season annually brings thousands of persons, usually wealthy, into the towns.

White Deer Evasive.

There is one sort of deer which rarely is shot; the albino or, as it is locally known, the ghost deer. As a freak of nature, there occasionally is born a pure white deer. Even its hoofs and antlers are white and its body is as white as snow. These deer apparently are endowed with better wits than the usual brown deer as they know how to keep out of the way of the hunters. They are seen not infrequently but nearly always out of range. They are very fleet and alert. Every Adirondack hunter has some tale to tell of a flash of white in the trees, a chance shot but no quarry. Out of the hundreds of deer shot each season, it is seldom that more than one ghost deer is brought down and some seasons pass without a single one being taken. As is natural much Indian and local superstition attaches to these animals. They are persumed to bear charmed lives and when one is shot it aways is mounted and put on exhibition for the wondering populace.

Paul Smith had many stories about the ghost deer. Smith's name was not really Paul. It was Appolos but that was too long and too Greek for the hunters he guided over Whiteface, Marcy, and the many other mountains, so it was shortened, first to Pol and then translated into the more American Paul.

He got his start in the hotel business in a curious way. He had a camp up in the hills but most of the time was away from it, hunting and trapping. But he always left a keg of whiskey at the camp. To it there was attached by a chain a fair-sized dipper. Anyone who wanted to could come along and obtain a drink. The price was four cents per dipper. The pennies were to be left on top of the keg. It is said that no one ever drank at this forest barroom without paying, even though the proprietor, or any one else, was not within ten miles of it. Now Paul Smith's is a town boasting a big hotel.

Paul Smith's Politics.

Some one asked Paul Smith how it happened that he always was postmaster of the town of Paul Smith's no matter what changes took place in the administration at Washington. His reply was: "The administration can't change any quicker than I can." From the time he set up his first tent to the end of his days he remained postmaster of the town that bore his name.

Deer by no means constitute all the game of the Adirondacks. Perhaps they are the most picturesque but there are many other creatures. Bears probably are the most prolific of the wild life of the region. Every year scores of them are taken and it is a matter of course for the farmer of northern New York to have a bearskin rug in his sleigh as a laprobe. They hibernate in the winter but roam about the fields quite unceremoneously during the summer months. It is not unusual to discover a tremendous, lumbering bruin in one's berry patch or curled up asleep in the sun in one's barnyard.

The lynx also is to be found in the Adirondacks but he is a bad neighbor. The bears are gentle compared to the lynx. Then, of course, there are plenty of wild cats.

Quail, grouse, pheasants, woodcock are to be found in numbers and mink, muskrats, grey squirrels, and raccoons can be had for the searching. The squirrels are not as numerous as formerly, however. In fact in no part of the country are they to be found in such numbers as a few years ago. The chestnut blight which swept the country about a decade ago has seriously interferred with the food supply of the squirrels and many have died from winter starving in addition to those which have been killed in pursuit of sport or for their fur.

Civilization is encroaching on the Adirondacks each year but, in spite of the millionaires' camps it will take a long time to conquer this wilderness. This is especially so as efforts are made toward resistance. Mount Whiteface is probably the most picturesque peak in the Adirondacks. During the past winter a determined effort has ben made to induce the New York legislature at Alabny to appropriate funds to build a road to the summit. The present trail is about five miles long as it leads directly up the sides of the mountain. The proposed road would have to be about twenty miles long as it would wind around. The efforts to build this road has met with the most determined resistance, what amounts to a lobby having been established at Albany to prevent passage of the enabling act. The resistance springs from the desire of the people to whom the mountain is especially dear to keep it free from tourists. The issue has not yet been decided.

AIRPLANE STUNTS BRING PROTEST

Weirton officials have registered a protest with government authorities in regard to the actions of army plane aviator who swooped down on the place Thursday afternoon frightened school children and menacing roofs of buildings.

The craft, believed to be the same that caused consternation at Morristown and St. Clairsville, O., later, bore army insignia, according to John Matheny, Weirton policeman, who said the only reason he did not shoot the aviator was because he thought he was "drunk or crazy."

Matheny declared the plane flew low over children playing in a school yard, skimmed on the edge of house tops, menacing aerials and roofs and dropped so low over a highway that a team of horses became frightened and ran away, smashing a delivery wagon.

The "winged terror" crossed over Steubenville after his stunt flying at Weirton and continued west.

STATION GROUNDS BEING IMPROVED

The completion of the work in beautifying the grounds around the passenger station of the Pennsylvania railroad at Weirton is expected within ten days.

A hedge fence has been planted around the station, the grounds leveled and grass seed has been planted. Work is now progressing on the flower beds in the center of the lawn. This is the first time since the construction of the new depot that any improvement has been made to the grounds around the station.

G. W. Young, landscape gardener of the Pennsylvania railroad company for the Pan Handle district, has charge of the work, which is being done by the employes of that company.

COMEDY SCREAM AT AMERICAN

"McFadden's Flats" Opens Three-day Run on Monday.

"McFadden's Flats," which opens a three-day run as the feature attraction at the American theatre Monday is one long hilarious laugh. The famous old stage comedy has been given a brand new dress, new laughs and a new lease on life that should give screen audiences a new conception of what can be done in the way of film fun.

Charlie Murray, the hodcarrying Irishman, is teamed up with Chester Conklin as a Scotch barber.

Of course, pretty faces—and figures as well—have not been overlooked in the making of this picture. Edna Murphy, in the leading feminine role, is one of the most convincing reasons why gentlemen prefer blondes. Then, when Dorothy Dawn comes along—photographing as a decided brunette one becomes convinced that he might prefer her without losing the slightest evidence of his gentility.

Other members of the cast are Larry Kent, Aggie Herring, DeWitt Jennings, Freeman Wood, Cissy Fitzgerald, Dot Farley and Leo White.

"McFadden's Flats" tells the story of the struggles of an Irishman who, coming to America, has ambitions to get out of the ranks of hodcarriers and become a builder—a builder of a flat building that might bear his name, in fact. He meets a tight-fisted Scotchman—portrayed by Chester Conklin—who becomes his fast friend in spite of their wide differences in taste.

That the son and daughter of the two wrangling friends should fall in love with one another, permitting the unfolding of an entrancing story of young love, was a complication that neither had expected.

It is from this material that one of the most successful of stage comedies was made. And it is in the dressing up of this story in its present form that picture audiences are being given one of the genuine treats of the year.

Child Injured.

Ralph Johnson, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson, of Middle Run, was cut about the head yesterday when struck by a shell from a gun that back fired when he hit it with a piece of metal. He was given medical attention by Dr. C. A. Shafer.

New Bell in Position.

New bell recently hung in the First Christian church will ring for the first time tomorrow. Money for the purchase was raised by members of the Loyal Sons class of the church.

This institution has now grown to be the largest in the state, having total assets of over $3,800,000 and having paid out in dividends since the organization $1,128,860.95. These dividends have been at the rate of 6% until December 31st, 1925, when a dividend of 3½% was paid for six months or at the rate of 7% a year, in the year 1926, 6½% was paid.

OUR INVESTMENT PLAN

There is nothing complicated about becoming a member of this organization, and participating in its earnings. Every week we receive new members who recognize the many advantages to be derived from investing their ready money here.

We issue both paid up stock certificates and book accounts which can be started for any amount. This makes it possible for the small investor to put his money to work as advantageously and with as much acility as the large investor.

The money thus paid into the Association is loaned by the directors on first mortgage real estate. Consequently it is put to earning dividends at once, and these earnings are distributed semi-annually.

SAFETY FOR INVESTORS

They know that the Association's funds are loaned only on first mortgage real estate security—HOMES—Each loan is protected by insurance on the property, and every other known safeguard is provided. Money may be taken out at any time, as the Association makes the practice of paying withdrawals on demand.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

STATUE OF LIBERTY DANGEROUS TO NEW YORK SAY NAVY EXPERTS

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Statue of Liberty is the first thing Gotham will need to sacrifice if ever we have a fight with some big sea power and the latter manages to run a few battle craft close enough inshore to take a long range crack at Manhattan Island.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur gets this hint from ship commanders with the combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets which recently put into Greater New York waters for a little rest between Caribbean Sea maneuvers and the Narragansett Bay war games.

All speak of that statue as about the nicest landmark that a gunner, out on the briny, could desire, to guide him in landing an assortment of high explosives in City Hall Park or thereabouts.

SECRETARY OF WAR DAVIS, whose department the Liberty Statue appertains to, isn't altogether pleased with the idea that Mr. Bartholdi's souvenir to the United States would have to be yanked down in a hurry if a foreign fleet should appear in the offing.

However, he does say that he guesses no fleet could get near enough to Bedloe's Island to be very dangerous unless it arrived with a better aviation equipment than Secretary Wilbur's fleet was able to muster when it steamed into the Hudson and East Rivers.

This jab by Secretary Davis had reference to the hard luck of the Atlantic-Pacific fleet's only aircraft carrier, the Langley, in blowing out her generator, disabling her completely, off the Ambrose Light.

THE dispute isn't in reality at all acrimonious, but—

1. The question as to what would have happened to New York of the fleet really had been on mischief bent, and—

2. The question as to what would have happened to the fleet, if New York had been looking for it with real blood in her eye and the fleet's only aircraft carrier had gone flooey under such circumstances—

Why, these questions remain unsettled.

MILITARY and naval arguments based on showings made by land, sea and air forces in maneuvers and war games always do remain unsettled.

When they come right down to cases, fighting men admit that war conditions are necessary, to prove anything.

For instance, there was once a big sham scrap between a land force on Long Island whose position a big sea force was trying to capture, in which each side claimed utterly to have annihilated the other. Naturally no force would annihilate another force after itself being annihilated. The question was:

Which was the first one annihilated?

It never was satisfactorily settled.

THE aviation issue is wide open, as the celebrated "Billy" Mitchell row, not so long ago, demonstrated.

An airman bombs and sinks a condemned battleship.

"Yes," agree navy men, "but that ship was at anchor and undefended."

An aviator goes up, to be popped at by anti-aircraft guns and they miss him.

"Sure," admit the gunners, "but we could have hit him if we'd wanted to."

There's no means of finding out, except by actually trying to kill somebody and, in peace time, that wouldn't do.

SO we can't possibly know for certain whether the Statue of Liberty's got to come down or not, as a military measure, until actual war breaks out, and not then unless and until an enemy gets within shooting distance of it.

A Scotchman has offered $25,000 to the first person to swim the Atlantic ocean.—Fostoria Times.

MOTION FOR 'NOT GUILTY' VERDICT IN RINI CASE DENIED

DEFENSE RESTS AFTER WOMAN TAKES STAND

Mrs. Marie Chorgas, in Rebuttal, Hits Sal's Story.

DOCTORS CALLED

Suicide Theory Upset by Physician Who Performed Autopsy.

Judge W. F. Lones, late yesterday in common pleas court, Lisbon, overruled the defense motion to instruct the jury in the case of Salvatore Rini, 22, East Liverpool, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, to return a verdict of "not guilty" of second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville.

The motion, made by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, who, with Attorney Raymond Knepper, is representing Rini, followed the unexpected resting of the defense case and rebuttal testimony of Mrs. Chorgas, a state witness, and Dr. Seward Harris, of Lisbon, county jail physician.

Previously Valentino Crae, a youth who had appeared earlier in the trial for the purpose of establishing the probable height and weight of Anania, again was brought into court and Rini was ordered to stand beside him for the comparison size.

Rini Cross-Examined.

Mrs. Chorgas, in rebuttal, made an emphatic denial of any alleged intimacies with Anania, to which Rini earlier had testified.

Attorney Knepper, for the defense, sought to establish the possibility of suicide, when Dr. C. H. Bailey, who performed the autopsy over Anania's body, was called to the stand.

Dr. Bailey testified that in all his practice he had never observed a self-inflicted wound of a character that the autopsy on the body of Anania disclosed. He declared the wound "clean" and a "straight puncture."

Most of yesterday's session was devoted to cross-examination of Rini who reiterated his denial of any complicity in the death of Anania, whose body was found in his (Rini's) apartment on March 22.

Bandit Smashes Window, Flees With Gems Worth $8,500

CLEVELAND, May 7.—A daring bandit who smashed the display window of a town-town jewelry store, pulled out five diamond rings, valued at about $8,500, and escaped in the noon-day crowds was being sought by police today.

The Webb C. Ball company had a $50,000 display of diamonds in the show window of its Euclid avenue store this morning. The robber approached the window with a package under his arm, according to witnesses, and hurled the package through the plate glass window, then reached through the hole, and seized a tray of the gems. He then disappeared before astonished spectators could overtake him.

Jury Gets Rini Case

pressed the evidence in this case. The state of Ohio or Sal Rini? Figure it out for yourself.

"Marie waived her rights because she had confidence in you, the jury, to do the fair thing by her. I believe Marie told a true and correct story. The defense could not break her. I think Marie is innocent. She is a physical wreck.

"Rini is husky and in the prime of life. Who could have applied that force? What was the intent of the man behind that knife?

"Marie could never have delivered that blow. Marie said that Patsy, gasping, said 'Sal did it.' She is on trial, but who are you going to believe—Marie or Rini. And I want you to take into consideration what Rini said to Marie—"You didn't see me do it.'"

Brookes then called the attention of the jury to the hole in Anania's overcoat and that the blade of the penknife fitted nearly into the aperture, and that the same kind of threads as those in the coat were found on the blood-stained knife.

O'Grady Stresses Evidence.

Brookes, who yielded for the noon recess, completed his argument shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Preceding the prosecutor, O'Grady pleaded for Rini and assailed the Chorgas woman.

Dwelling mainly upon the evidence, O'Grady said: "The sword cuts both ways so far as the rules of evidence are concerned."

Innocent, Says O'Grady.

He then took up the testimony of Mrs. Chorgas where she said that "Sal was angry." He declared that the state must prove that a crime was committed and if it was done purposely and unlawfully. He said that the evidence had to be substantiated beyond a reasonable doubt and that there should be no compromise. He declared there were two defendants charges as principals in the indictment and they stand as principals in alleged crime. He told the jury "there is not a scintilla of evidence of purpose." He declared that "Marie is the one who did the cutting and the testimony directed an accusing finger at her as the one who did it."

O'Grady then brought the youth, Valentino Crea onto the floor of the courtroom, bared the boy's left breast, sat on his right knee, and, with his left arm around his neck and with the broken butcher knife, in his right hand, made a move as if to strike the subject in the manner in which Anania was alleged to have been stabbed.

The defense counsel declared that Marie was the last known person in the kitchen with Patsy, and charged the state failed to show which knife was used. He said that the witness Reynolds was imaginative. He also stressed the friendship between Rini and Anania.

"God delay the day when the scales of justice are in control of one individual," said O'Grady. "This boy never injured Patsy Anaia."

Bauknecht's Argument.

In his opening statement yesterday afternoon to the jury, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John E. Bauknecht declared that "before we accept the theory that Patsy Anania cut himself while he was cutting meat, let us take the position of one who is cutting meat," he indicated by drawing a knife over a piece of paper on the desk of Miss Alice Glenn, court reporter. "That's the usual way to cut meat, and if Patsy had cut himself, while he was cutting meat, he would have cut some part of his hand, and if he had cut his heart, it would have been a slash.

"Mrs. Bartley testified that Rini told the police of the cutting. Who did it? You have two stories. One from Marie and one from 'Sal.' It is up to you to determine who has been telling the truth, and who is trying to shield himself. You can see from their stories."

Bauknecht then reviewed the testimony of the witness Reynolds, who was in the rooms beneath the Rini apartment and who heard the remark "Get your clothes and get the hell out of here." "We have fixed the hour Patsy was wounded and the hour he died. Parsons told you of the condition of Patsy when he was in the bathroom, and of Rini saying to the doctor, 'I think Patsy is passing out.'"

"I want to call your attention to the manner of Rini on the stand," Bauknecht continued. "What manner of friendship is that which he would have for another, when he was the only one to put a blot on the character of Anania. That is what Rini did, and he calls him pal and friend in the same breath. The jury has not been informed definitely as to what kitchen knife was used. They didn't think of the blood-stained knife—the tell-tale knife.

"The man was certainly dead when he was taken into the bathroom. You have a right to consider this. I say to you this man must have some reason, some motive for doing this. Rini struck down Patsy."

Knepper's Argument.

"There was no one on the stand who was an eye witness," Attorney Knepper, who followed Bauknecht, said. He then read the indictment that had been returned against the two defendants by the April grand jury. He called attention to the testimony of Mrs. Chorgas, who, he said, attempted to save herself by shifting "it all onto 'Sal.'"

He declared that Patsy might have fallen on one of the knives, or that Anania held the knife and took his own life, "but we can only guess how he did it."

"Marie broke one of the kitchen knives, but she did not say how she did it, "but she did say that she threw the broken part of the knife out of the window."

FLOOD RELIEF FUND CLOSE TO $3,000 MARK

Actual Cash in Treasurer's Hands is $2,810.26.

$120 TO BE ADDED

Total Grows as Levee Defenders are Forced to Flee.

The Mississippi valley flood relief fund lacked less than $70 of the $3,000 mark today, the closing day of the campaign.

Actual cash, which had been turned in to W. E. Dunlap, treasurer of the Red Cross chapter, at 10:30 o'clock this morning, amounted to $2,810.26. The Potters' National Bank had collected $10 which was not included in this figure. Receipts of a benefit show given at the American theatre last Monday afternoon and a contribution by the theatre management totalling $110, has not yet been turned over to the chapter treasurer.

East Liverpool has already sent $2,450 to the Washington headquarters, this amount representing the city's quota in the proposed $10,000,000 relief fund. The balance, in all probability, will be forwarded early next week.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Red Cross flood relief drive crossed the eight million dollar mark today.

Contributions tabulated up to 10 a. m., at national headquarters here totalled $8,345,116, of which eastern states contributed $5,400,116; mid western states, $2,006,000; Pacific states, $767,510, and insular and foreign sources, $11,471.

New Havoc Rolls Down.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—Levee defenders were driven from their ground along the west bank of the Mississippi today a few miles above Torras, Louisiana, where army engineers have ben directing an intensive fight for three days to hold in check the ever swelling crest of the nation's most devastating flood.

Behind the Torras levee stretches a potential new channel to the sea through half a dozen parishes south of the Red river still comparatively untouched by the blighting waters. A break here would open a new spillway through the Atchafalaya valley to the Gulf carrying off sufficient water, in the opinion of army engineers, to "break the back of the flood." It would drive tens of thousands from their homes in Pointe Coupe, West Baton Rouge, Iberville, St. Martin and Assumption parishes, and add hundred square miles to Louisiana's 2,400 square mile inland sea.

As the water washed over the top of the crumbling levees above Torras, new havoc rolled down from flooded northeastern parishes to three vulnerable spots in the Bayou Des Glaises levees in the Red river district.

Arkansas Still Rising.

In the extreme northeastern quarter of the state the Arkansas overflow is still rising in Morehouse and Ouchita parishes, with Monroe, the sixth city of the state, defending her levees as never before in history. Emergency calls for diking materials were sent to western Louisiana last night as the waters reached the danger mark on the railroad embankments which form the protecting wall around the eastern edge of the city.

Phone reports to state relief headquarters here today were that armies of men worked in endless chain formation throughout the night piling sand bags against the ominous tide. Large sections of the threatened sector immediately behind the railroad embankments have been exacuated. Monroe's population is more than 17,000. A week ago the locality was considered so secure that a refugee camp was established within the city limits.

A dispatcher's message from Harrison, Mississippi, reported rising waters along the entire route of the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific railroad, which travels the heart of the northeastern flooded area between Vicksburg and Monroe.

Along a stretch of track extending approximately 110-miles west from the Mississippi to Monroe., the message said, every foot of rail is under from six inches to two feet of water, with the exception of a short piece in the vicinity of Delhi, a high point on the Bayou Macon hills.

Await New Dangers.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—Taking advantage of the calm before the storm, southeastern Louisiana today is lashing everything fast against the dangers that threaten when the flood waters, impounded in the thousands of square miles in the Tensas basin, begin pouring back into the Mississippi river to race onward to the gulf.

Billions of cubic feet of water are temporarily massed in the great moving lake covering the Tensas basin. Slowly but invincibly this vast lake is rolling southward, and what will happen when it reaches the Red river is the secret upon which hinges the fate of southern Louisiana.

JEWELER LOSES $50,000 IN GEMS

CHICAGO, May 7.—Maurice Krause, head of a jewelry company, today was robbed of $50,000 in gems by three armed men who forced him to drive into an alley.

WOULD AID NEW DRAMATISTS

A stage society such as those existing in London, which gives young and unknown dramatists opportunities to have their plays presented on Sunday evenings, acted by capable actors who are occupied during the week, would be a big step forward in the development of the American theatre, according to Miss Jane Cowl, star of many Broadway successes. Triple Inquiry Into Explosion in Which Seven Die

NEW YORK, May 7.—Police, fire and county authorities today united in a triple investigation into the origin of the explosion which wrecked the executive offices of the Yellow Taxicab company yesterday, killing seven persons, two of them young women employes, and causing injuries to nearly 50 others.

All the employes of the company have been acounted for, but there were many visitors in the building and 65 members of the police emergency squad worked throughout the night trying to locate other bodies which it was believed might be beneath the wreckage.

The cause of the explosion was still a mystery today.

City Orders Hotel Owner to Remove Stairway Railing

Written notice to remove an iron railing surrounding an outside stairway, leading into the basement from the Fourth street sidewalk within five days or face prosecution, was served today upon R. L. Edmonston, proprietor of the of the Travelers' hotel, by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore this morning.

Workmen for Edmonston this morning began the placing of an iron railing about the stairway of his new hotel addition in violation of the city ordinance and state law which prohibits the obstruction of streets and alleys, according to the service-safety director.

If he fails to begin work on the removal of the railing within five days, Edmonston will be brought into court, charged with violation of the city ordinance or state law, Moore said. He can be charged with a separate offense for each day that he permits the railing to stand, according to the director.

According to city officials the common pleas court recently held the obstruction of streets, sidewalks and alleys to be a violation not only of the city ordinance but also of a state law.

extraordinay defense—no defense at all. He did it. They both did it.

"My son told the truth and is now ready to meet his Maker," said his mother, Mrs. Margaret Gray.

Jail attendants said Gray prays constantly and is buoyed up with the solace of religion.

In her cell in the same jail, Mrs. Snyder, who recently told a jail matron that she had "prayed for the first time in her life," is a lonely, forlorn figure. The black-garbed blonde, who was defiant and confident a week ago, is a shuddering, dejected woman, stricken with fear and perhaps remorse. She was courageous on the stand, denying she took part in the actual killing, but she lost her iron nerve once Gray began unfolding his frightful detail.

No Sympathy for Woman.

It has ben a strange feature of the trial that what little sympathy was extended by spectators went to Gray. They were frankly cynical of her and women in the courtroom actually snickered as Mrs. Snyder told her story. No one doubted Gray's story. No lonelier figure could be imagined than Mrs. Snyder. She couldn't even kiss her baby when the little girl was brought into court to testify. Seven witnesses took the stand to testify as to Gray's reputation for truth and veracity but none came forward to say a kind word for her character.

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder and Gray spent today going over the testimony and preparing their summations. It is understood Justice Scudder will place no limitation on the time each side is to have for closing arguments but will ask both defense lawyers and the prosecutor to confine their addresses to two hours each.

The judge's charge to the jury will take one hour. Dana Wallace will make the final plea for Mrs. Snyder, William J. Millard, for Gray, and District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe for the state.

The jury probably will get the case late Monday. None of the lawyers would make any predictions as to the verdict.

Most of yesterday's session was devoted to cross-examination of Rini who reiterated his denial of any complicity in the death of Anania, whose body was found in his (Rini's) apartment on March 22.

Bandit Smashes Window, Flees With Gems Worth $8,500

CLEVELAND, May 7.—A daring bandit who smashed the display window of a town-town jewelry store, pulled out five diamond rings, valued at about $8,500, and escaped in the noon-day crowds was being sought by police today.

The Webb C. Ball company had a $50,000 display of diamonds in the show window of its Euclid avenue store this morning. The robber approached the window with a package under his arm, according to witnesses, and hurled the package through the plate glass window, then reached through the hole, and seized a tray of the gems. He then disappeared before astonished spectators could overtake him.

Jury Gets Rini Case

pressed the evidence in this case. The state of Ohio or Sal Rini? Figure it out for yourself.

"Marie waived her rights because she had confidence in you, the jury, to do the fair thing by her. I believe Marie told a true and correct story. The defense could not break her. I think Marie is innocent. She is a physical wreck.

"Rini is husky and in the prime of life. Who could have applied that force? What was the intent of the man behind that knife?

"Marie could never have delivered that blow. Marie said that Patsy, gasping, said 'Sal did it.' She is on trial, but who are you going to believe—Marie or Rini. And I want you to take into consideration what Rini said to Marie—"You didn't see me do it."

Brookes then called the attention of the jury to the hole in Anania's overcoat and that the blade of the penknife fitted nearly into the aperture, and that the same kind of threads as those in the coat were found on the blood-stained knife.

O'Grady Stresses Evidence.

Brookes, who yielded for the noon recess, completed his argument shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Preceding the prosecutor, O'Grady pleaded for Rini and assailed the Chorgas woman.

Dwelling mainly upon the evidence, O'Grady said: "The sword cuts both ways so far as the rules of evidence are concerned."

Innocent, Says O'Grady.

He then took up the testimony of Mrs. Chorgas where she said that "Sal was angry." He declared that the state must prove that a crime was committed and if it was done purposely and unlawfully. He said that the evidence had to be substantiated beyond a reasonable doubt and that there should be no compromise. He declared there were two defendants charges as principals in the indictment and they stand as principals in alleged crime. He told the jury "there is not a scintilla of evidence of purpose." He declared that "Marie is the one who did the cutting and the testimony directed an accusing finger at her as the one who did it."

O'Grady then brought the youth, Valentino Crea onto the floor of the courtroom, bared the boy's left breast, sat on his right knee, and, with his left arm around his neck and with the broken butcher knife, in his right hand, made a move as if to strike the subject in the manner in which Anania was alleged to have been stabbed.

The defense counsel declared that Marie was the last known person in the kitchen with Patsy, and charged the state failed to show which knife was used. He said that the witness Reynolds was imaginative. He also stressed the friendship between Rini and Anania.

"God delay the day when the scales of justice are in control of one individual," said O'Grady. "This boy never injured Patsy Anaia."

Bauknecht's Argument.

In his opening statement yesterday afternoon to the jury, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John E. Bauknecht declared that "before we accept the theory that Patsy Anania cut himself while he was cutting meat, let us take the position of one who is cutting meat," he indicated by drawing a knife over a piece of paper on the desk of Miss Alice Glenn, court reporter. "That's the usual way to cut meat, and if Patsy had cut himself, while he was cutting meat, he would have cut some part of his hand, and if he had cut his heart, it would have been a slash.

"Mrs. Bartley testified that Rini told the police of the cutting. Who did it? You have two stories. One from Marie and one from 'Sal.' It is up to you to determine who has been telling the truth, and who is trying to shield himself. You can see from their stories."

Bauknecht then reviewed the testimony of the witness Reynolds, who was in the rooms beneath the Rini apartment and who heard the remark "Get your clothes and get the hell out of here." "We have fixed the hour Patsy was wounded and the hour he died. Parsons told you of the condition of Patsy when he was in the bathroom, and of Rini saying to the doctor, 'I think Patsy is passing out.'"

"I want to call your attention to the manner of Rini on the stand," Bauknecht continued. "What manner of friendship is that which he would have for another, when he was the only one to put a blot on the character of Anania. That is what Rini did, and he calls him pal and friend in the same breath. The jury has not been informed definitely as to what kitchen knife was used. They didn't think of the blood-stained knife—the tell-tale knife.

"The man was certainly dead when he was taken into the bathroom. You have a right to consider this. I say to you this man must have some reason, some motive for doing this. Rini struck down Patsy."

Knepper's Argument.

"There was no one on the stand who was an eye witness," Attorney Knepper, who followed Bauknecht, said. He then read the indictment that had been returned against the two defendants by the April grand jury. He called attention to the testimony of Mrs. Chorgas, who, he said, attempted to save herself by shifting "it all onto 'Sal.'"

He declared that Patsy might have fallen on one of the knives, or that Anania held the knife and took his own life, "but we can only guess how he did it."

"Marie broke one of the kitchen knives, but she did not say how she did it, "but she did say that she threw the broken part of the knife out of the window."

FLOOD RELIEF FUND CLOSE TO $3,000 MARK

Actual Cash in Treasurer's Hands is $2,810.26.

$120 TO BE ADDED

Total Grows as Levee Defenders are Forced to Flee.

The Mississippi valley flood relief fund lacked less than $70 of the $3,000 mark today, the closing day of the campaign.

Actual cash, which had been turned in to W. E. Dunlap, treasurer of the Red Cross chapter, at 10:30 o'clock this morning, amounted to $2,810.26. The Potters' National Bank had collected $10 which was not included in this figure. Receipts of a benefit show given at the American theatre last Monday afternoon and a contribution by the theatre management totalling $110, has not yet been turned over to the chapter treasurer.

East Liverpool has already sent $2,450 to the Washington headquarters, this amount representing the city's quota in the proposed $10,000,000 relief fund. The balance, in all probability, will be forwarded early next week.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Red Cross flood relief drive crossed the eight million dollar mark today.

Contributions tabulated up to 10 a. m., at national headquarters here totalled $8,345,116, of which eastern states contributed $5,400,116; mid western states, $2,006,000; Pacific states, $767,510, and insular and foreign sources, $11,471.

New Havoc Rolls Down.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—Levee defenders were driven from their ground along the west bank of the Mississippi today a few miles above Torras, Louisiana, where army engineers have ben directing an intensive fight for three days to hold in check the ever swelling crest of the nation's most devastating flood.

Behind the Torras levee stretches a potential new channel to the sea through half a dozen parishes south of the Red river still comparatively untouched by the blighting waters. A break here would open a new spillway through the Atchafalaya valley to the Gulf carrying off sufficient water, in the opinion of army engineers, to "break the back of the flood." It would drive tens of thousands from their homes in Pointe Coupe, West Baton Rouge, Iberville, St. Martin and Assumption parishes, and add hundred square miles to Louisiana's 2,400 square mile inland sea.

As the water washed over the top of the crumbling levees above Torras, new havoc rolled down from flooded northeastern parishes to three vulnerable spots in the Bayou Des Glaises levees in the Red river district.

Arkansas Still Rising.

In the extreme northeastern quarter of the state the Arkansas overflow is still rising in Morehouse and Ouchita parishes, with Monroe, the sixth city of the state, defending her levees as never before in history. Emergency calls for diking materials were sent to western Louisiana last night as the waters reached the danger mark on the railroad embankments which form the protecting wall around the eastern edge of the city.

Phone reports to state relief headquarters here today were that armies of men worked in endless chain formation throughout the night piling sand bags against the ominous tide. Large sections of the threatened sector immediately behind the railroad embankments have been exacuated. Monroe's population is more than 17,000. A week ago the locality was considered so secure that a refugee camp was established within the city limits.

A dispatcher's message from Harrison, Mississippi, reported rising waters along the entire route of the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific railroad, which travels the heart of the northeastern flooded area between Vicksburg and Monroe.

Along a stretch of track extending approximately 110-miles west from the Mississippi to Monroe., the message said, every foot of rail is under from six inches to two feet of water, with the exception of a short piece in the vicinity of Delhi, a high point on the Bayou Macon hills.

Await New Dangers.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—Taking advantage of the calm before the storm, southeastern Louisiana today is lashing everything fast against the dangers that threaten when the flood waters, impounded in the thousands of square miles in the Tensas basin, begin pouring back into the Mississippi river to race onward to the gulf.

Billions of cubic feet of water are temporarily massed in the great moving lake covering the Tensas basin. Slowly but invincibly this vast lake is rolling southward, and what will happen when it reaches the Red river is the secret upon which hinges the fate of southern Louisiana.

JEWELER LOSES $50,000 IN GEMS

WOULD AID NEW DRAMATISTS

A stage society such as those existing in London, which gives young and unknown dramatists opportunities to have their plays presented on Sunday evenings, acted by capable actors who are occupied during the week, would be a big step forward in the development of the American theatre, according to Miss Jane Cowl, star of many Broadway successes. Miss Cowl, who admits she hasn't had a vacation in five years, is also an author and producer at odd times.

City Orders Hotel Owner to Remove Stairway Railing

Written notice to remove an iron railing surrounding an outside stairway, leading into the basement from the Fourth street sidewalk within five days or face prosecution, was served today upon R. L. Edmonston, proprietor of the of the Travelers' hotel, by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore this morning.

Workmen for Edmonston this morning began the placing of an iron railing about the stairway of his new hotel addition in violation of the city ordinance and state law which prohibits the obstruction of streets and alleys, according to the service-safety director.

If he fails to begin work on the removal of the railing within five days, Edmonston will be brought into court, charged with violation of the city ordinance or state law, Moore said. He can be charged with a separate offense for each day that he permits the railing to stand, according to the director.

According to city officials the common pleas court recently held the obstruction of streets, sidewalks and alleys to be a violation not only of the city ordinance but also of a state law.

extraordinay defense—no defense at all. He did it. They both did it.

"My son told the truth and is now ready to meet his Maker," said his mother, Mrs. Margaret Gray.

Jail attendants said Gray prays constantly and is buoyed up with the solace of religion.

In her cell in the same jail, Mrs. Snyder, who recently told a jail matron that she had "prayed for the first time in her life," is a lonely, forlorn figure. The black-garbed blonde, who was defiant and confident a week ago, is a shuddering, dejected woman, stricken with fear and perhaps remorse. She was courageous on the stand, denying she took part in the actual killing, but she lost her iron nerve once Gray began unfolding his frightful detail.

No Sympathy for Woman.

It has ben a strange feature of the trial that what little sympathy was extended by spectators went to Gray. They were frankly cynical of her and women in the courtroom actually snickered as Mrs. Snyder told her story. No one doubted Gray's story. No lonelier figure could be imagined than Mrs. Snyder. She couldn't even kiss her baby when the little girl was brought into court to testify. Seven witnesses took the stand to testify as to Gray's reputation for truth and veracity but none came forward to say a kind word for her character.

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder and Gray spent today going over the testimony and preparing their summations. It is understood Justice Scudder will place no limitation on the time each side is to have for closing arguments but will ask both defense lawyers and the prosecutor to confine their addresses to two hours each.

The judge's charge to the jury will take one hour. Dana Wallace will make the final plea for Mrs. Snyder, William J. Millard, for Gray, and District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe for the state.

The jury probably will get the case late Monday. None of the lawyers would make any predictions as to the verdict.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

A little eleven-year-old girl, living in Seattle, Wash., asks what the rivers mentioned in the 2nd Chapter of Genesis mean. This question has suggested the Bible study that follows.

646. How many rivers are mentioned in Genesis 2:10-14?

Answer: Four rivers.

647. From what place did they all start?

Answer: From the Garden of Eden, that surpassingly beautiful home of Adam and Eve.

648. What do these rivers seem to symbolize?

Answer: The four classes of the decendants of Adam, who will finally get eternal life. A river flows on and on, continually and forever. See Revelation 17:15.

649. What was the name of the first river and what does the name mean?

Answer: The name of the first river was Pison, which means fully flowing. This would suggest the class that are very active in the Lord's service during the gospel age, even amidst great opposition and persecution. The true church class gladly and joyfully lay down their very lives in the service of the great King. See Hebrows 12:2; Luke 6:22,23; Acts 20:22-24.

650. To what place did this river flow, and what was found there?

Answer: "It "encompasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold; and the gold of that land is good."—Verses 11, 12.

651. What does gold symbolize?

Answer: Things divine. It was thus used in the Holy and Most Holy of the Tabernacle.

652. What class are to have "the divine nature" (the nature of God)?

Answer: The Church class. "Whereby are given unto us (the church) exceeding great and precious promises that by these (by faith in these promises and by compliance to all the conditions) ye (the church) might be partakers of the divine nature."—2 Peter 1:4.

"THE MOTHERS OF AMERICA"

A Pageant Under the Direction of Miss Thecil Pearson will be Presented at the VIRGINIA AVENUE, EAST END.

SABBATH EVENING, AT 7:30.

Morning Service at 11:00 O'clock.

Subject: "MOTHERS AND DEMOCRACY."

Male Quartette and Chorus Choir at Both Services.

SERM-O-GRAM

The old fashioned faith did not produce the type of mothers whose highest ambition is to be a man, smell of cigarette smoke, fondle a French poodle or annex some Count Tweededee No-Brains via the divorce court; and whose idea of the unpardonable sin is not to know which fork to use in eating olives; and whose morals are cultivated by reading "True Story Magazine" etc.

The most beautiful things outside of Heaven are the lily and godly motherhood.

Why does it never occur to us to ask how the Prodigal's mother felt?

Our Mothers are our earliest instructors, and they have an influence over us, the importance of which, for time and eternity, surpasses the power of language to describe.

EVERY MOTHER should be a Sabbath School Teacher. Her own children should be her class; and her home should be her school house. Then her children will bless her for her tenderness and care; for her pious instructions, her fervent prayers, and her HOLY EXAMPLE.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

A little eleven-year-old girl, living in Seattle, Wash., asks what the rivers mentioned in the 2nd Chapter of Genesis mean. This question has suggested the Bible study that follows.

646. How many rivers are mentioned in Genesis 2:10-14?

Answer: Four rivers.

647. From what place did they all start?

Answer: From the Garden of Eden, that surpassingly beautiful home of Adam and Eve.

648. What do these rivers seem to symbolize?

Answer: The four classes of the decendants of Adam, who will finally get eternal life. A river flows on and on, continually and forever. See Revelation 17:15.

649. What was the name of the first river and what does the name mean?

Answer: The name of the first river was Pison, which means fully flowing. This would suggest the class that are very active in the Lord's service during the gospel age, even amidst great opposition and persecution. The true church class gladly and joyfully lay down their very lives in the service of the great King. See Hebrows 12:2; Luke 6:22,23; Acts 20:22-24.

650. To what place did this river flow, and what was found there?

Answer: "It "encompasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold: and the gold of that land is good."—Verses 11, 12.

651. What does gold symbolize?

Answer: Things divine. It was thus used in the Holy and Most Holy of the Tabernacle.

652. What class are to have "the divine nature" (the nature of God)?

Answer: The Church class. "Whereby are given unto us (the church) exceeding great and precious promises that by these (by faith in these promises and by compliance to all the conditions) ye (the church) might be partakers of the divine nature."—2 Peter 1:4.

SERM-O-GRAM

The old fashioned faith did not produce the type of mothers whose highest ambition is to be a man, smell of cigarette smoke, fondle a French poodle or annex some Count Tweededee No-Brains via the divorce court; and whose idea of the unpardonable sin is not to know which fork to use in eating olives; and whose morals are cultivated by reading "True Story Magazine" etc.

The most beautiful things outside of Heaven are the lily and godly motherhood.

Why does it never occur to us to ask how the Prodigal's mother felt?

Ancient Grave in Jerusalem Sheds Light On Peter's Act

"Garden Tomb," Which Many Believe to be Veritable Sepulchre of Saviour, Makes Clearer Incidents of Resurrection—How Apostle Peter "Came Back."

By William T. Ellis.

Most spectacular and influential of the wars of the Middle Ages were the Crusades; which set all of Europe into a dramatic emprise to recover from Moslems the sepulchre of the Saviour. In large international ways, as well as in relation to individual life, this one tomb has been central to human history. The actual grave itself is a subject of controversy among archaeologists and theologians.

Tradition has for ages accepted the site enclosed in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, though the recent uncompleted digging along the course of the third wall may discredit this. Moved less by considerations of archaelogy than by sentiments of revulsion toward the accretions of superstition which enclose this holiest shrine in Christendom, many Protestants have looked upon as the authentic Sepulchre the "Garden Tomb," outside the wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate, and directly under what is known as "Gordan's Calvary."

In Such a Grave Jesus Lay.

This tomb has not been changed since its discovery, and no church has been erected over it. Aside from a door of iron railings to enclese it, and the development of the garden in front of it, there are no alterations in the scene.

Although this "Garden Tomb" has by no means been proved to be the true burial place of Jesus, despite the partisanship of many Protestants, it is of priceless value as showing the nature of the burial place of our Lord. Certainly He was entombed in a grave like this. The tomb is a chamber of considerable size, cut into the face of the limestone cliff. It is divided into two compartments; an outer one, which contains the entrance, and a second, somewhat larger, to the right, along three sides of which graves had been cut into the living rock. There is a small window to this inner chamber. Opposite the window is one completed grave, the other two have never been finished. This evidence of the newness of the "Garden Tomb" is cited as proof that it is the one belonging to Joseph of Arimathea. The rolling stone, which once sealed the door, has disappeared; but a similar one is still in place near-by, in what is called 'the tombs of the kings."

John Locked: Peter Entered

With a sense of awe, even the unconvinced observer notices how the "Garden Tomb" fits the Gospel narrative. Here, on the ledge between the two rooms, may have sat the angel. Through the window of the inner room John may have stayed to look, while impetuous Peter entered the open door. Yonder, where the two graves meet, may have been lying the discarded grave clothes. All the setting of the Story is illustrated by this uncovered sepulchre of the time of Christ. To a westerner, unfamiliar with ancient oriental usages of burial, this spot reveals the naturalness and fidelity of the Scripture record. In the quiet of this garden, it is easier to reconstruct the Resurrection scene than amidst the bedizened surroundings of the historic church which has set up a modern white marble tomb above the traditional site of the Sepulchre; quite as Moslems erect a "tomb" above the real grave of one of their dignitaries.

As we sit on a stone ledge in the Garden, on Easter morning, we muse upon the figures in the first Easter event. From the other side of the city—possibly from the home of John Mark, over near the palace of Caiapas—John and Peter had come running, upon receipts of the women's sensational news of the empty tomb. Love lent speed to the feet of the younger disciple, and he outran Peter; but he lost his advantage at the goal, by pausing to peer and ponder. Characteristically, Peter rushed in to the very tomb itself. Everybody loves Pete for his recklessness and audacity. It takes all kinds of disciples to make up the Church.

The Women Were First.

Even enterprising Peter had to get the great news from the women, who had been earliest at the grave. Despite the evidence of the tabloids and trashy tales, woman's first and deepest and truest characteristic is spiritual perception. She has always tended the race's altar fires of religion. As His women friends were the first to understand the real character of Jesus during His lifetime, so they also were "last at the cross and first at the grave." This is woman's crown of crowns: that she was the most loyal and comprehending disciple of the Saviours. And whenever and wherever on earth woman is her best self, she is a seeker after the spiritual.

Mary Magdalene, who went to the sepulchre before daylight on the first Easter, is the most maligned woman in history. There is no evidence in the Gospels to support the common idea that she was a sinner; yet her name has become a synonym for the fallen woman. "Magdalene," of course, merely identifies her by her home, as if it were "Mary of Magdala," the town up on the northwestern corner of the Lake of Galilee; where today the Zionists have a small colony, with funny little uniform houses, fashioned like the toys in children's Noah's arks. Ours is a day of derogation of women; it is strange that outstanding members of the sex do not publicly resent the prevolent portrayel of women and wives in cartoons and jokes. Let misrepresented Mary Magdalene be a reminder of the tragic injustice of the wrong estimate of womanhood. As woman meant most to Jesus, so Jesus has meant most to woman. Which is a theme not to be exhausted though volumes be written upon it.

The Greatest News in the World.

What constitutes real news is a subject discussed more widely now than ever before; what with most newspapers giving columns to the death of a motion picture actor, and inches to the death of President Eliot; and with many journals smearing over their front pages the murder of a husband by low paramours, while they relegate the momentous upheaval in China to the inside pages. Our estimates of relative values reveal our own characters.

The news that Mary Magdalene carried to Peter and to the other disciples—Peter was ever the sort of personality of whom one naturally thinks first in an emergency—was literally the greatest news story that the world has ever heard. Sensational in itself, the Resurrection was far more momentous in its ultimate significance to all human life and history. That Jesus arose from the dead, and that death's power over man has been broken, touches every person more intimately than any event in world affairs.

To Peter—poor, penitent Peter, who had been gnawing at the heart of remorse for his black denial—Mary's news meant more than the marvel of an empty tomb; it held promise of forgiveness for himself. We are so accustomed to considering the Resurrection as a boon for the race that we overlook the immediate, personal significance of it to the individual members of the dismayed group who were followers of Jesus.

A Breakfast By the Lake.

In the second portion of the assigned Sunday School Lesson we read the most curious of the reappearances of the risen Christ. Led by practical Peter, a group of the disciples had returned to their fishing on Galilee. After a fruitless night on the water, a figure on the shore had directed them where to cast for a full net. This Friend had even prepared breakfast for them on the shore. John, who had love's seeing eyes, was first to cry, "It is the Lord!"

No sooner were the words spoken than impetuous Peter was overboard and ashore—only to go back straightway to help haul the catch to land. Peter was ever the pendulum apostle. After breakfast—always let important conferences wait until the participants have eaten—came the momentous reinstatement of the disciple who had denied his Lord.

Three times Jesus asked, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" And Peter always assented. The point of the passage is lost in the English translation. It hinges on the use of two different words for "love." The word twice used by Jesus was the highest, divinest word, the one which the Bible uses as a synonym for God. Peter's reply employed a lower word for love, that which represents one friend's love for another. The third time, Jesus, who accepts even our lesser, inadequate love, stepped down, as it were, and used Peter's own word, a. if to say, "Peter, do you really love me as one man loves another?" The poet echoes this in,

"O heart of mine, are thou great enough for love?"

That broke Peter all up. He threw himself upon the understanding of the Saviour, crying, "Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee." Then followed the reiterated commission — "Feed my sheep." For the lover of the Lord must ever be a shepherd of souls.

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OPENED HERE IN 1851

Sprang Out of Old Associate Reformed Congregation.

DATE INDEFINITE

Late Dr. Taggart Was Pastor for 40 Years.

The First United Presbyterian church of East Liverpool sprang out of the old Associated Reformed Presbyterian church of this city in the year 1851. The exact date of its organization is not known, but the minutes of the presbytery of Steubenville state that on Oct. 24, 1849, a petition was presented from East Liverpool asking for "Word and Ordinances." That petition was laid on the table. One year later another petition was presented asking for part time supplies.

In October of 1851, the presbyterial records show that Rev. J. C. Campbell and his session of Wellsville held the first communion in East Liverpool. However, there is no record of the organization of a congregation, or of said congregation being under care of Steubenville presbytery until 1858. In that year, Rev. S. W. Clark, pastor of St. Clair congregation, who had been acting as supply pastor, came to East Liverpool congregation, bringing the people of the St. Clair church with him. So that while East Liverpool was organized by the direction of Steubenville presbytery, it was in reality under the care of Monongahela presbytery in the early years of its history.

Following the union of the Associate and the Associate Reformed church which made what is known today as the United Presbyterian church, Rev. S. W. Clark resigned as pastor of East Liverpool so that the joint charges of East Liverpool and Calcutta could call a pastor to look after both field. Accordingly, in 1860 a call was made out for Rev. Thomas Andrews who was installed in 1861. Rev. Mr. Andrews was pastor until his death in 1862. There was a vacancy until 1865, when Rev. J. W. Martin was called and held the charge until 1868. Then came the pastorate of the late Rev. J. C. Taggart, D. D., which began in 1869 and lasted for 40 years.

The congregation in its early days had not become settled as to location and worshipped in different places. It first worshipped in the old Episcopal church on Robinson street, now occupied by one of our potteries. Later it worshipped in the old Central school building and in other churches, until 1854, when its first house of worship was erected on the southwest corner of Market and Fifth streets. This was a crude building, the seats at least part of the time were made out of slabs placed on boxes. The people continued to hold worship there until 1875, when a new, and, at that time, a very fine building, was erected on the northwest corner of the same streets. Here the congregation took on new life and a strong and aggressive campaign of church activities was put on under the efficient leadership of Dr. Taggart. The impress of his long and active career was left indelibly not only on the life of the church, but on the whole community, he being one of the pioneer ministers of the city. In a sense he grew up with the community and the community grew up with him, and he was looked up to and respected by all, regardless of their church affiliations.

The activities of the congregation were carried on in this location until 1909, when the structure at the corner of Sixth and Jefferson streets was erected, the consummation to the hope and dreams of Dr. Taggart for so many years. This building was dedicated on January 5, 1909. Strange to say Dr. Taggart and his wife did not live to worship in their new church home. Mrs. Taggart passing away in May of that year, and he in September. But the splendid consecration and untiring effort of these two devoted Christian people has been felt through all the long life of the congregation.

In 1910 Rev. Hugh A. Kelsey became pastor of the church, coming from the First church in Altoona, Pa. Dr. Kelsey remained seven years. During his pastorate the church as well as the entire city felt the blessing of the Billy Sunday campaign.

Following Dr. Kelsey came the Rev. Joseph A. Speer, who remained approximately two years. The end of Dr. Speer's pastorate was the beginning of Rev. L. J. Davison's.

During all these years the First United Presbyterian church has been a militant force in the community for righteousness and moral integrity.

It has numbered among its members some of the very stalwart exponents of Christian truth through its long history. James A. Anderson has been a clerk of the session for more than 20 years, and John W. Vodrey has been treasurer for 25 years.

B'NAI ISRAEL TEMPLE CONGREGATION ORGANIZED HERE 34 YEARS AGO

The congregation of B'Nai Israel temple was organized in 1893 with William Erlanger, Sr., as its first president. Services were conducted by members in private homes until 1898 when the meeting place was transferred to the Knights of Pythias hall and later to the Odd Fellows' temple.

A student of the Hebrew Union college was usually engaged to conduct services during the high holidays in the fall of each year, which practice has continued to this time, as the congregation is too small to employ an ordained rabbi throughout the year.

Services were held in the Odd Fellows' temple until 1922, when the present temple, at the corner of Fifth and Monroe streets, was dedicated. The cost of construction was between $50,000 and $60,000.

Since 1914 Dr. I. E. Philo has been coming here at intervals during the fall and winter to conduct services.

The congregation now numbers 28 members, each family being counted as but one member.

What constitutes real news is a subject discussed more widely now than ever before; what with most newspapers giving columns to the death of a motion picture actor, and inches to the death of President Eliot; and with many journals smearing over their front pages the murder of a husband by low paramours, while they relegate the momentous upheaval in China to the inside pages. Our estimates of relative values reveal our own characters.

The news that Mary Magdalene carried to Peter and to the other disciples—Peter was ever the sort of personality of whom one naturally thinks first in an emergency—was literally the greatest news story that the world has ever heard. Sensational in itself the Resurrection was far more momentous in its ultimate significance to all human life and history. That Jesus arose from the dead, and that death's power over man has been broken, touches every person more intimately than any event in world affairs.

To Peter—poor, penitent Peter, who had been gnawing at the heart of remorse for his black denial—Mary's news meant more than the marvel of an empty tomb; it held promise of forgiveness for himself. We are so accustomed to considering the Resurrection as a boon for the race that we overlook the immediate, personal significance of it to the individual members of the dismayed group who were followers of Jesus.

A Breakfast By the Lake.

In the second portion of the assigned Sunday School Lesson we read the most curious of the reappearances of the risen Christ. Led by practical Peter, a group of the disciples had returned to their fishing on Galilee. After a fruitless night on the water, a figure on the shore had directed them where to cast for a full net. This Friend had even prepared breakfast for them on the shore. John, who had love's seeing eyes, was first to cry, "It is the Lord!"

No sooner were the words spoken than impetuous Peter was overboard and ashore—only to go back straightway to help haul the catch to land. Peter was ever the pendulum apostle. After breakfast—always let important conferences wait until the participants have eaten—came the momentous reinstatement of the disciple who had denied his Lord.

Three times Jesus asked, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" And Peter always assented. The point of the passage is lost in the English translation. It hinges on the use of two different words for "love." The word twice used by Jesus was the highest, divinest word, the one which the Bible uses as a synonym for God. Peter's reply employed a lower word for love, that which represents one friend's love for another. The third time, Jesus, who accepts even our lesser, inadequate love, stepped down, as it were, and used Peter's own word, as if to say, "Peter, do you really love me as one man loves another?" The poet echoes this in,

"O heart of mine, are thou great enough for love?"

That broke Peter all up. He threw himself upon the understanding of the Saviour, crying, "Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee." Then followed the reiterated commission — "Feed my sheep." For the lover of the Lord must ever be a shepherd of souls.

When the end of your work is out of sight, look aloft.—de Lesseps.

Happiness is not the end of duty; it is a constituent of it.—Giles.

Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever;
Do noble things, not dream them, all day long;
And so make Life, Death, and that vast Forever,
One grand sweet song.
—Kingsley.

The problem of life is not to make life easier, but to make men stronger.—David Starr Jordan.

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness; for they shall be filled.—Matthew 5:6.

Some of your griefs you have cured,
And the sharpest you still have survived;
But what torments of pain you endured
From evils that never arrived!

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OPENED HERE IN 1851

Sprang Out of Old Associate Reformed Congregation.

DATE INDEFINITE

Late Dr. Taggart Was Pastor for 40 Years.

The First United Presbyterian church of East Liverpool sprang out of the old Associated Reformed Presbyterian church of this city in the year 1851. The exact date of its organization is not known, but the minutes of the presbytery of Steubenville state that on Oct. 24, 1849, a petition was presented from East Liverpool asking for "Word and Ordinances." That petition was laid on the table. One year later another petition was presented asking for part time supplies.

In October of 1851, the presbyterial records show that Rev. J. C. Campbell and his session of Wellsville held the first communion in East Liverpool. However, there is no record of the organization of a congregation, or of said congregation being under care of Steubenville presbytery until 1858. In that year, Rev. S. W. Clark, pastor of St. Clair congregation, who had been acting as supply pastor, came to East Liverpool congregation, bringing the people of the St. Clair church with him. So that while East Liverpool was organized by the direction of Steubenville presbytery, it was in reality under the care of Monongahela presbytery in the early years of its history.

Following the union of the Associate and the Associate Reformed church which made what is known today as the United Presbyterian church, Rev. S. W. Clark resigned as pastor of East Liverpool so that the joint charges of East Liverpool and Calcutta could call a pastor to look after both fields. Accordingly, in 1860 a call was made out for Rev. Thomas Andrews who was installed in 1861. Rev. Mr. Andrews was pastor until his death in 1862. There was a vacancy until 1865, when Rev. J. W. Martin was called and held the charge until 1868. Then came the pastorate of the late Rev. J. C. Taggart, D. D., which began in 1869 and lasted for 40 years.

The congregation in its early days had not become settled as to location and worshipped in different places. It first worshipped in the old Episcopal church on Robinson street, now occupied by one of our potteries. Later it worshipped in the old Central school building and in other churches, until 1854, when its first house of worship was erected on the southwest corner of Market and Fifth streets. This was a crude building, the seats at least part of the time, were made out of slabs placed on boxes. The people continued to hold worship there until 1875, when a new, and, at that time, a very fine building, was erected on the northwest corner of the same streets. Here the congregation took on new life and a strong and aggressive campaign of church activities was put on under the efficient leadership of Dr. Taggart. The impress of his long and active career was left indelibly not only on the life of the church, but on the whole community, he being one of the pioneer ministers of the city. In a sense he grew up with the community and the community grew up with him, and he was looked up to and respected by all, regardless of their church affiliations.

The activities of the congregation were carried on in this location until 1909, when the structure at the corner of Sixth and Jefferson streets was erected, the consummation to the hope and dreams of Dr. Taggart for so many years. This building was dedicated on January 5, 1909. Strange to say Dr. Taggart and his wife did not live to worship in their new church home. Mrs. Taggart passing away in May of that year, and he in September. But the splendid consecration and untiring effort of these two devoted Christian people has been felt through all the long life of the congregation.

In 1910 Rev. Hugh A. Kelsey became pastor of the church, coming from the First church in Altoona, Pa. Dr. Kelsey remained seven years. During his pastorate the church as well as the entire city felt the blessing of the Billy Sunday campaign.

Following Dr. Kelsey came the Rev. Joseph A. Speer, who remained approximately two years. The end of Dr. Speer's pastorate was the beginning of Rev. L. J. Davison's.

During all these years the First United Presbyterian church has been a militant force in the community for righteousness and moral integrity.

It has numbered among its members some of the very stalwart exponents of Christian truth through its long history. James A. Anderson has been a clerk of the session for more than 20 years, and John W. Vodrey has been treasurer for 25 years.

It is hard in all causes, but especially in religion, when voices shall be numbered, and not weighed.—Francis Bacon.

An exchange refers to the ukulele as being "small but influential, for it is the hip flask of music."—Zanesville Signal.

The congregation of B'Nai Israel temple was organized in 1893 with William Erlanger, Sr., as its first president. Services were conducted by members in private homes until 1898 when the meeting place was transferred to the Knights of Pythias hall and later to the Odd Fellows' temple.

A student of the Hebrew Union college was usually engaged to conduct services during the high holidays in the fall of each year, which practice has continued to this time, as the congregation is too small to employ an ordained rabbi throughout the year.

Services were held in the Odd Fellows' temple until 1922, when the present temple, at the corner of Fifth and Monroe streets, was dedicated. The cost of construction was between $50,000 and $60,000.

Since 1914 Dr. I. E. Philo has been coming here at intervals during the fall and winter to conduct services.

The congregation now numbers 28 members, each family being counted as but one member.

STRAND OFFERS HEART THROB

Boy Miner is College Hero in "White Flannels."

"White Flannels," the Warner Bros. production, featuring Louise Dresser and Jason Robards, and coming to the Strand theatre Monday for a run of two days, is an adaptation of Lucien Cary's Saturday Evening Post story, of the same name.

Louise Dresser is cast as Ma Broska, wife of a Polish miner, whose dingy, monotonous, danger-haunted life makes her vow that her only son, Frank (played by Jason Robards) is to be freed from a like existence. In the homes of mine-owners where she has gone to do washing and cleaning, she has seen their young sons, home from college, clean, white-flanneled, well-spoken. To Ma Broska they typify what it is to be a gentleman. Frank must go to college, get an "eddication and wear white flannels."

Frank loves a girl (Virginia Browne Faire) who is a waitress in the smoky restaurant of the home town. Ma Broska sees how things are going, and, with a tigerish passion for her son's freedom from the mines, begs the girl to promise not to "stand in his way." She promises, and Frank misunderstands her willingness to be rid of him. He wonders whether it may not be because of her love for his pal, Sunny, (Warner Richmond).

Pa Broska dies in the mines. He is scarcely laid in his grave before Ma is urging Frank to take the insurance and go to school. Half-believing Ma, feeling that the girl no longer cares, Frank at last consents and leaves for college.

Not content to stay away from her idol, Ma comes to the college town, and waits on table at a restaurant, keeping from him the knowledge of her presence, lest it shame him in eyes of his fine friends. Frank becomes a hero because of his terrific strength. He makes the football team, but, heart-sick for the girl he left behind, he seems to lack the spirit needed to win the hard game which is in prospect. The coach, thinking to encourage him gets a not too scrupulous co-ed to make love to him. A joke had gone the rounds. The girl's willingness to woo him gives added zest to his football prowess.

Ma Broska believes all is well with her plans. But alas for the best-laid schemes of mice and men. The unexpected happens. Disaster, terror! All are cast into a whirling maelstrom, mother, son, pal, the true girl and the false, miners, college mates.

Why "90 Percent" Are Still Suffering.

It is a glorious thing to awake with a lively, healthy, energetic body. It is a misery to drag an aching, tired, weary body from a restless, sleepless bed. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, thus: "I bet that 90 percent of those suffering from kidney irregularities never take naything for kidney regulation until it is too late, whereas Foley Pills diuretic would be a godsend to them, as they have ben to me.' A reliable, valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. Sold everywhere.

Attorney G. J. Clark Awarded $11,573 Verdict in Suit

A jury before Judge H. M. Whitcraft in common pleas court at Lisbon this week rendered a verdict of $11,573.66 in favor of Attorney G. J. Clark, East Liverpool, against Rose A. Murphy, of Sebring.

The suit was based upon a judgment of $35,000 obtained by Mrs. Murphy in the United States federal court at Cleveland in her action against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for injuries alleged to have been received in an accident. Clark claimed that he had been engaged to represent Mrs. Murphy in the suit and advanced her $907 while the action was pending in court.

After the judgment had been secured by Mrs. Murphy Attorney Clark filed the suit in Lisbon to collect his share of the money obtained by the plaintiff from the railroad company. The jury awarded Clark $10,666.66 which he represented as his share of the judgment, together with $907, which he had loaned the woman.

STRAND OFFERS HEART THROB

Boy Miner is College Hero in "White Flannels."

"White Flannels," the Warner Bros. production, featuring Louise Dresser and Jason Robards, and coming to the Strand theatre Monday for a run of two days, is an adaptation of Lucien Cary's Saturday Evening Post story, of the same name.

Louise Dresser is cast as Ma Broska, wife of a Polish miner, whose dingy, monotonous, danger-haunted life makes her vow that her only son, Frank (played by Jason Robards) is to be freed from a like existence. In the homes of mine-owners where she has gone to do washing and cleaning, she has seen their young sons, home from college, clean, white-flanneled, well-spoken. To Ma Broska they typify what it is to be a gentleman. Frank must go to college, get an "eddication and wear white flannels."

Frank loves a girl (Virginia Browne Faire) who is a waitress in the smoky restaurant of the home town. Ma Broska sees how things are going, and, with a tigerish passion for her son's freedom from the mines, begs the girl to promise not to "stand in his way." She promises, and Frank misunderstands her willingness to be rid of him. He wonders whether it may not be because of her love for his pal, Sunny, (Warner Richmond).

Pa Broska dies in the mines. He is scarcely laid in his grave before Ma is urging Frank to take the insurance and go to school. Half-believing Ma, feeling that the girl no longer cares, Frank at last consents and leaves for college.

Not content to stay away from her idol, Ma comes to the college town and waits on table at a restaurant, keeping from him the knowledge of her presence, lest it shame him in eyes of his fine friends. Frank becomes a hero because of his terrific strength. He makes the football team, but, heart-sick for the girl he left behind, he seems to lack the spirit needed to win the hard game which is in prospect. The coach, thinking to encourage him gets a not too scrupulous co-ed to make love to him. A joke had gone the rounds. The girl's willingness to woo him gives added zest to his football prowess.

Ma Broska believes all is well with her plans. But alas for the best-laid schemes of mice and men. The unexpected happens. Disaster, terror! All are cast into a whirling maelstrom, mother, son, pal, the true girl and the false, miners, college mates.

Why "90 Percent" Are Still Suffering.

It is a glorious thing to awake with a lively, healthy, energetic body. It is a misery to drag an aching, tired, weary body from a restless, sleepless bed. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, thus: "I bet that 90 percent of those suffering from kidney irregularities never take naything for kidney regulation until it is too late, whereas Foley Pills diuretic would be a godsend to them, as they have ben to me.' A reliable, valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. Sold everywhere.

Attorney G. J. Clark Awarded $11,573 Verdict in Suit

A jury before Judge H. M. Whitcraft in common pleas court at Lisbon this week rendered a verdict of $11,573.66 in favor of Attorney G. J. Clark, East Liverpool, against Rose A. Murphy, of Sebring.

The suit was based upon a judgment of $35,000 obtained by Mrs. Murphy in the United States federal court at Cleveland in her action against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for injuries alleged to have been received in an accident. Clark claimed that he had been engaged to represent Mrs. Murphy in the suit and advanced her $907 while the action was pending in court.

After the judgment had been secured by Mrs. Murphy Attorney Clark filed the suit in Lisbon to collect his share of the money obtained by the plaintiff from the railroad company. The jury awarded Clark $10,666.66 which he represented as his share of the judgment, together with $907, which he had loaned the woman.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 7.—A series of brilliant advances in a small number of the industrial, railroads, motor and public utility stocks featured the short session of the stock market today.

Some curtailment in industrial activity was reported by the weekly business reviews, and on the whole the business situation was not as encouraging as reported in the last few weeks. Unseasonable weather and the southern floods have slowed up the productive and distribution of goods, and large areas of productive agricultural lands have been rendered absolutely useless by inundation.

New price gains in the western railroad stocks placed a number of them at new high levels for the period. Union Pacific, for example, which has never previously touched 175, rose to above 177 in the first period of a new gain of points. Southern Pacific was in demand around 114. Chicago Northwestern sold above 87 on reports of a possible upward revision in the dividend rate of the stock. Chesapeake & Ohio also sold above 177 for the first time in its history, whole Baltimore and Ohio topped all of its previous records when it sold at 122.

The Newest American Car

By One of the Oldest American Builders

FOUR months ago, the Reo Motor Car Company announced the Reo Flying Cloud. Its instant acceptance by the public has been the outstanding feature of an otherwise colorless automobile season.

Now the Reo Motor Car Company announces the Wolverine.

Named for the strongest animal of its size in all the world, the Wolverine—substantially lower in price and somewhat smaller in size than the Reo Flying Cloud—will bring to an even wider field of motorists that honesty of construction and sureness of performance for which Reo automobiles have always been known.

The Wolverine is small enough for easy handling and low operating costs—but no power, nor brawn nor beauty was sacrificed in making it smaller.

It's fast—fast on the getaway, fast on the open road and quick to stop.

Both its performance and its appearance will be a delight to those who, in the past, have looked in vain for something decidedly superior in a moderate priced automobile.

HOMER WYANDS IS FINED $100

Mrs. Margaret Bevis Held Upon Liquor Charge.

Homer Wyands, 217 Broadway, was fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge Hanley today after he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of illegally possessing intoxicating liquors. A small quantity of whisky was found in Wyands' home when it was raided by Captain Conley, Patrolmen McFarland and Haley at 12:30 o'clock this morning. He paid his fine.

Mrs. Margaret Bevis, 85, colored, of 127 East Third street was held for further investigation upon a liquor charge filed against her following a raid upon her home by the same squad at 10:30 o'clock last evening. Several bottles partly filled with liquor were found in the house, police said. Mrs. the liquor, claiming it was being used Bevis admitted ownership of part of for medicinal purposes but denied any knowledge of the remainder which she said may have belonged to roomers in her home. She was released upon her own recognizance.

James Monroe, colored barber, who was fined $350 Monday following a raid upon his home in Orchard Grove avenue, Saturday night, appeared before Judge Hanley this morning. The court agreed to suspend $250 of the fine upon condition that Monroe pay the $100 balance and leave town within 30 days. He agreed to this plan and paid the $100.

Attorney G. J. Clark Awarded $11,573 Verdict in Suit

A jury before Judge H. M. Whitecraft in common pleas court at Lisbon this week rendered a verdict of $11,573.66 in favor of Attorney G. J. Clark, East Liverpool, against Rose A. Murphy, of Sebring.

The suit was based upon a judgment of $35,000 obtained by Mrs. Murphy in the United States federal court at Cleveland in her action against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for injuries alleged to have been received in an accident. Clark claimed that he had been engaged to represent Mrs. Murphy in the suit and advanced her $907 while the action was pending in court.

After the judgment had been secured by Mrs. Murphy Attorney Clark filed the suit in Lisbon to collect his share of the money obtained by the plaintiff from the railroad company. The jury awarded Clark $10,666.66 which he represented as his share of the judgment, together with $907, which he had loaned the woman.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 7.—A series of brilliant advances in a small number of the industrial, railroads, motor and public utility stocks featured the short session of the stock market today.

Some curtailment in industrial activity was reported by the weekly business reviews, and on the whole the business situation was not as encouraging as reported in the last few weeks. Unseasonable weather and the southern floods have slowed up the productive and distribution of goods, and large areas of productive agricultural lands have been rendered absolutely useless by inundation.

New price gains in the western railroad stocks placed a number of them at new high levels for the period. Union Pacific, for example, which has never previously touched 175, rose to above 177 in the first period of a new gain of points. Southern Pacific was in demand around 114. Chicago Northwestern sold above 87 on reports of a possible upward revision in the dividend rate of the stock. Chesapeake & Ohio also sold above 177 for the first time in its history, whole Baltimore and Ohio topped all of its previous records when it sold at 122.

The WOLVERINE is here!

By One of the Oldest American Builders

FOUR months ago, the Reo Motor Car Company announced the Reo Flying Cloud. Its instant acceptance by the public has been the outstanding feature of an otherwise colorless automobile season.

Now the Reo Motor Car Company announces the Wolverine.

Named for the strongest animal of its size in all the world, the Wolverine—substantially lower in price and somewhat smaller in size than the Reo Flying Cloud—will bring to an even wider field of motorists that honesty of construction and sureness of performance for which Reo automobiles have always been known.

The Wolverine is small enough for easy handling and low operating costs—but no power, nor brawn nor beauty was sacrificed in making it smaller.

It's fast—fast on the getaway, fast on the open road and quick to stop.

Both its performance and its appearance will be a delight to those who, in the past, have looked in vain for something decidedly superior in a moderate priced automobile.

First Series of Intersectional League Games Are Billed Today

East - West Battles Are Scheduled On Seven League Lots

Two American League Stars, Goose Goslin and Ty Cobb Hors de Combat as Eastern Clubs Begin Western Jaunt; McGraw Said to be After Tony Kaufman.

NEW YORK, May 7.—With record Saturday crowds in prospect, the first series of intersectional games will begin in seven major league ball parks today. Because of rain, only one inaugural was played yesterday, at Boston.

Two of the American League's brightest stars were hors de combat as the eastern clubs in the junior organization began their western jaunt. Goose Goslin, hard hitting Washington outfielder, is in a Pittsburgh hospital suffering from pleurisy, and Ty Cobb, the spark plug of the Athletics, is out of the game for a week because of an injury sustained in an exhibition game at Buffalo yesterday. The Georgian injured his right leg in taking his famous hook slide and will be kept out of the Cleveland series.

The Yankees, leading the Athletics by only a game, begin their tour against the White Sox. The boys are somewhat apprehensive, remembering their final western trip last season which was so disastrous as to nearly cost them the pennant. The Red Sox will be thrown into Navin field to feed the Tigers, while the Senators will open in St. Louis.

The trade winds are blowing as the western clubs in the National League start their eastern invasion. John McGraw of the Giants is said to be trying to get either Pitcher Tony Kaufmann of the Cubs or Hal Carlson of the Phillies.

The west drew first blood yesterday when Cincinnati beat the Braves, 5 to 3. Kelly and Allen contributed homers which helped Carl Mays win his first game of the season.

SCAPA FLOW IS BOOSTED FOR DERBY

Shows Plenty in Gallop for Bowling Brook Purse.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Scapa Flow, the Man O'War scion, today rated virtually equal consideration with Whiskery, Osmand, Justice F. and other derby favorites, as a result of the mile and seventy yards he ran in yesterday's mud at Pimlico. They sent Scapa out after the Bowling Brook purse in his last start before the two classics in order to see what he had and he seemed to have plenty.

He won galloping under restraint from Wandering Minstrel and Afterglow, derby candidates both, in 1:46 3-5, as against Shuffle Along's track record of 1:42 1-4, made on a fast track. It was just a good workout for Scapa and the easy way in which he outfooted the Minstrel and Afterglow relegates that pair well to the background as far as Churchill Downs is concerned.

Whether Scapa Flow will go to the post a Preakness favorite on Monday, as a result of his race, remains to be seen. The Whitney entry of Whiskery, Bostonian and Pandera is certain to get a big play and it would seem that only a near-record performance, impossible under the conditions, could have displaced the rival stable in esteem, still, you can't find great fault with a horse you know can run on any track.

His race was one of the few interesting derby developments of the last twenty-four hours, others being Fred Jr.'s at the Downs for the full derby distance and the report that Hydromel had been beaten down to 12 to 1 at the track. Osmand was merely breezed going three-eighths in 35 2-5.

Incidentally, Rip Rap tried to give away a lot of weight to the field in the second race at Pimlico and failed to place. The colt carried the derby impost of 125 pounds and couldn't get away with it. Jopagan, another derby eligible, managed to place third under 111 pounds.

The matter of weight was another encouraging feature of Scapa's effort. He, too, shouldered 126 pounds, just eleven more than he has ever carried, but didn't seem to mind it, even in the mud.

He went to the pace early and, at the half mile, had opened a gap on Skeedaddle, which was doing the chasing. Afterglow was third at this point but Wandering Minstrel was off the pace and didn't make a move until nearing the three-quarters pole, where Scapa was three lengths in front and running easily, and went on to win by four lengths with greatest ease.

Skeedaddle and Afterglow began to fade on the stretch turn and the Minstrel moved into second place and stayed there to the end. He closed fairly strongly but Coltilette was giving a Scapa a buggy ride by that time.

SHELL FOES RACE TODAY

Yale, Columbia, Penn in Annual Derby on Housatonic.

DERBY, Conn., May 7.—Three crews—one an aggregation of seasoned veterans, another composed entirely of sophomores, and the third smarting under a recent defeat — will sweep down the historia Housatonic here this evening in the derby regatta, eastern rowing classic.

The veteran Yale eight is a slight favorite over the all-sophomore Columbia crew, with Pennsylvania, the underdog, given an outside chance. Ed Leader, coach of the Elis, has never lost a varsity race since coming to Yale from the University of Washington, but Dick Glendon, the former Annapolis rowing mentor, has developed a youthful and ambitious Columbia crew that is likely to shatter Yale's long string of victories. This same crew captured the intercollegiate freshman championship in Poughkeepsie last year.

Penn, defeated by the Navy recently, is determined to redeem itself today. The Red and Blue is conceded to have a better chance in the junior varsity and freshman races, however.

An observation train filled with enthusiasts will follow the race on shore, the banks of the river will be dotted with spectators and others will view the proceedings from yachts. The Yale undergraduates, who annually enliven the regatta with pranks and impromptu parades, have been warned by the student council that a repetition of last year's hilarity wil be met with severe punishment.

Ty Cobb, Injured, Expects to Play in Game on Monday

CLEVELAND, May 7. — Ty Cobb, well known base stealer, now playing with the Philadelphia Athletics, who was slightly injured during an exhibition game in Buffalo Friday, said today that he expected to play in Monday's game with the Indians here.

"I'll be in the game at Detroit, Tuesday," the "Peach" replied confidently, when asked about his condition, "and the trainer believes I might be able to play in at least one game here."

Cobb is suffering from a wrenched tendon in his right leg. He walked with a severe limp today and despite his confident predictions, members of the Athletics were somewhat skeptical as to whether he will be able to play against his former teammates at Detroit Tuesday, when a celebration in his honor, has been planned.

DE MAR FAVORITE IN 12-MILE RUN

NEW YORK, May 7.—Clarence De Mar, veteran Boston runner, is favored to win the Bronx-City Hall twelve mile marathon here this afternoon. More than 1,000 runners will compete, including entries from Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Haven, Providence, Hartford, Allentown, Camden and Atlantic City.

THIS IS SANDE'S YEAR TO WIN AGAIN

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Earl Sande rode the recognized wonder horse "Zev" to victory in the Kentucky Derby in 1923.

He took an unknown outsider and rode him to victory in 1925.

He is booked to ride a Widener entry in 1927 Derby.

It's the odd year—his year!

But on the other hand every year is Sande's.

What he might have done in 1924—the year between his Derby victories, remains a question as he spent the late summer of 1924 fighting death in the hospital as the result of a spill in August at Sarasota.

It was the latter part of March in the spring of 1925 when he returned to the saddle. Less than two months later he had ridden another Derby winner.

The year 1923 was probably his greatest. Not only did he win practically every established stake of importance in the New York tracks but copped several in Kentucky and two in Maryland.

His winnings in 39 races that year were $444,125. And he topped off the season's work by riding Zev to victory over Papyrus, the highly touted British runner. Riding Papyrus that day was Steve Donogue, five times winner of the English Derby and premier jockey of the eastern hemisphere.

When Sande is up in a race the dope book boys might just as well save their mental energy. If he's riding the favorite the race is over. If he's riding an outsider the boys who like to play the game for the love of it string with him on general principals. And the wise boys, who lay cold dough, wish the race were over.

SOFT BALL TEAM PLAY SPEEDS UP

League Teams Getting Down to Form for Season.

COMPETITION is becoming closer, errors are becoming fewer and scores are resembling more and more regular baseball counts instead of football or basketball figures as Recreation League teams turn in their final practice sessions before the opening of the league season Monday night.

The softball game is taking on more of the aspect of real baseball and this is helped along to a great extent by the presence of any number of baseball players in the ranks of the various clubs.

As a result, when the schedule gets under way play is certain to be faster and more accurate.

The Ohio Power nine was ahead, 9 to 1, at the end of nine innings with the Laughlin, East End, club last night at upper Columbian park. It was the Laughlin outfit's first real practice session.

The Y. M. C. A. sluggers were on last night as they sat back Charley Kidd's Roselawns, 12 to 2, at the playground, in six innings.

The Printers and the Johannes Drugs played nine innings at Northside, the Drugs getting a 9 to 8 decision. Long hits on either side were scarce.

The National Furnitures were blanked by the Bulger Drugs at the playground, 6 to 0.

THREATENS 2-MILE MARK

Wide to Make Dash for Fame Tonight at Sundown.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 7.—Edwin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster with the flying feet, was all set today to make his long waited attempt to shatter all existing world's records for the 2 mile.

The cinder track in Harvard stadium was in excellent condition, the day was perfect and thousands of persons had purchased seats to witness Wide's dash for fame at sundown.

Wide will be paced by three Harvard runners.

He will attempt to do the 2 miles in 8 minutes flat. The world's outdoor record, not yet accepted, is 9 minutes 1 2-4 seconds, made by Wide in Berlin in 1926, but this evening Wide will not only attempt to break his own record but also the world's indoor 2 mile record of 8:58 1-5 made by Paavo Nurmi at New York in 1925.

COUNTY HIGH SQUADS STAGE MEETS TODAY

Blue and White at East Palestine; Wellsville at Lisbon; Salem at Carnegie Tech Games.

Practically all of the larger Columbiana county school track teams will be found in competition today preliminary to the annual Columbiana county meet next Saturday at Lisbon.

East Liverpool high school trackers will have an opportunity to look over one of the county's leading squads, East Palestine, in a meet this afternoon at the East Palestine fairgrounds.

The local school went in on the meet this week. Originally it had been arranged as a triangular session with Palestine, Youngstown East and Leetonia slated to perform, but the entrance of Boardman and East Liverpool lends additional interest.

The Brown and White topped Youngstown South a week or so ago and can be counted on to be up among the leaders at Lisbon.

"Rub" Allen, Salem pole vaulter, who has achieved national fame as a result of his "rise" in the world, will do his stuff at the Carnegie Tech meet in Pittsburgh, along with other Salem athletes.

Wellsville, Columbiana and Lisbon are scheduled to occupy the fairgrounds at Lisbon in a triangular competition. With tracks dry and fast and weather conditions almost ideal, the athletes should have a big afternoon.

First Series of Intersectional League Games Are Billed Today

East - West Battles Are Scheduled On Seven League Lots

Two American League Stars, Goose Goslin and Ty Cobb Hors de Combat as Eastern Clubs Begin Western Jaunt; McGraw Said to be After Tony Kaufman.

NEW YORK, May 7.—With record Saturday crowds in prospect, the first series of intersectional games will begin in seven major league ball parks today. Because of rain, only one inaugural was played yesterday, at Boston.

Two of the American League's brightest stars were hors de combat as the eastern clubs in the junior organization began their western jaunt. Goose Goslin, hard hitting Washington outfielder, is in a Pittsburgh hospital suffering from pleurisy, and Ty Cobb, the spark plug of the Athletics, is out of the game for a week because of an injury sustained in an exhibition game at Buffalo yesterday. The Georgian injured his right leg in taking his famous hook slide and will be kept out of the Cleveland series.

The Yankees, leading the Athletics by only a game, begin their tour against the White Sox. The boys are somewhat apprehensive, remembering their final western trip last season which was so disastrous as to nearly cost them the pennant. The Red Sox will be thrown into Navin field to feed the Tigers, while the Senators will open in St. Louis.

The trade winds are blowing as the western clubs in the National League start their eastern invasion. John McGraw of the Giants is said to be trying to get either Pitcher Tony Kaufmann of the Cubs or Hal Carlson of the Phillies.

The west drew first blood yesterday when Cincinnati beat the Braves, 5 to 3. Kelly and Allen contributed homers which helped Carl Mays win his first game of the season.

SCAPA FLOW IS BOOSTED FOR DERBY

Shows Plenty in Gallop for Bowling Brook Purse.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Scapa Flow, the Man O'War scion, today rated virtually equal consideration with Whiskery, Osmand, Justice F. and other derby favorites, as a result of the mile and seventy yards he ran in yesterday's mud at Pimlico. They sent Scapa out after the Bowling Brook purse in his last start before the two classics in order to see what he had and he seemed to have plenty.

He won galloping under restraint from Wandering Minstrel and Afterglow, derby candidates both, in 1:46 3-5, as against Shuffle Along's track record of 1:42 1-4, made on a fast track. It was just a good workout for Scapa and the easy way in which he outfooted the Minstrel and Afterglow relegates that pair well to the background as far as Churchill Downs is concerned.

Whether Scapa Flow will go to the post a Preakness favorite on Monday, as a result of his race, remains to be seen. The Whitney entry of Whiskery, Bostonian and Pandera is certain to get a big play and it would seem that only a near-record performance, impossible under the conditions, could have displaced the rival stable in esteem, still, you can't find great fault with a horse you know can run on any track.

His race was one of the few interesting derby developments of the last twenty-four hours, others being Fred Jr.'s at the Downs for the full derby distance and the report that Hydromel had been beaten down to 12 to 1 at the track. Osmand was merely breezed going three-eighths in 35 2-5.

Incidentally, Rip Rap tried to give away a lot of weight to the field in the second race at Pimlico and failed to place. The colt carried the derby impost of 125 pounds and couldn't get away with it. Jopagan, another derby eligible, managed to place third under 111 pounds.

The matter of weight was another encouraging feature of Scapa's effort. He, too, shouldered 126 pounds, just eleven more than he has ever carried, but didn't seem to mind it, even in the mud.

He went to the pace early and, at the half mile, had opened a gap on Skeedaddle, which was doing the chasing. Afterglow was third at this point but Wandering Minstrel was off the pace and didn't make a move until nearing the three-quarters pole, where Scapa was three lengths in front and running easily, and went on to win by four lengths with greatest ease.

Skeedaddle and Afterglow began to fade on the stretch turn and the Minstrel moved into second place and stayed there to the end. He closed fairly strongly but Coltilette was giving a Scapa a buggy ride by that time.

WILLS IN DRIVE TO REGAIN TITLES

BERKELEY, Cal., May 7—Helen Wills was on her way to New York today, to start a long series of tournament play. Helen hopes to win the Wimbledon tennis championship as well as the American title at Forest Hills.

SHELL FOES RACE TODAY

Yale, Columbia, Penn in Annual Derby on Housatonic.

DERBY, Conn., May 7.—Three crews—one an aggregation of seasoned veterans, another composed entirely of sophomores, and the third smarting under a recent defeat — will sweep down the historia Housatonic here this evening in the derby regatta, eastern rowing classic.

The veteran Yale eight is a slight favorite over the all-sophomore Columbia crew, with Pennsylvania, the underdog, given an outside chance. Ed Leader, coach of the Elis, has never lost a varsity race since coming to Yale from the University of Washington, but Dick Glendon, the former Annapolis rowing mentor, has developed a youthful and ambitious Columbia crew that is likely to shatter Yale's long string of victories. This same crew captured the intercollegiate freshman championship in Poughkeepsie last year.

Penn, defeated by the Navy recently, is determined to redeem itself today. The Red and Blue is conceded to have a better chance in the junior varsity and freshman races, however.

An observation train filled with enthusiasts will follow the race on shore, the banks of the river will be dotted with spectators and others will view the proceedings from yachts. The Yale undergraduates, who annually enliven the regatta with pranks and impromptu parades, have been warned by the student council that a repetition of last year's hilarity wil be met with severe punishment.

Ty Cobb, Injured, Expects to Play in Game on Monday

CLEVELAND, May 7. — Ty Cobb, well known base stealer, now playing with the Philadelphia Athletics, who was slightly injured during an exhibition game in Buffalo Friday, said today that he expected to play in Monday's game with the Indians here.

"I'll be in the game at Detroit, Tuesday," the "Peach" replied confidently, when asked about his condition, "and the trainer believes I might be able to play in at least one game here."

Cobb is suffering from a wrenched tendon in his right leg. He walked with a severe limp today and despite his confident predictions, members of the Athletics were somewhat skeptical as to whether he will be able to play against his former teammates at Detroit Tuesday, when a celebration in his honor, has been planned.

DE MAR FAVORITE IN 12-MILE RUN

NEW YORK, May 7.—Clarence De Mar, veteran Boston runner, is favored to win the Bronx City Hall twelve mile marathon here this afternoon. More than 1,000 runners will compete, including entries from Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Haven, Providence, Hartford, Allentown, Camden and Atlantic City.

THIS IS SANDE'S YEAR TO WIN AGAIN

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Earl Sande rode the recognized wonder horse "Zev" to victory in the Kentucky Derby in 1923.

He took an unknown outsider and rode him to victory in 1925.

He is booked to ride a Widener entry in 1927 Derby.

It's the odd year—his year!

But on the other hand every year is Sande's.

What he might have done in 1924—the year between his Derby victories, remains a question as he spent the late summer of 1924 fighting death in the hospital as the result of a spill in August at Sarasota.

It was the latter part of March in the spring of 1925 when he returned to the saddle. Less than two months later he had ridden another Derby winner.

The year 1923 was probably his greatest. Not only did he win practically every established stake of importance in the New York tracks but copped several in Kentucky and two in Maryland.

His winnings in 39 races that year were $444,125. And he topped off the season's work by riding Zev to victory over Papyrus, the highly touted British runner. Riding Papyrus that day was Steve Donogue, five times winner of the English Derby and premier jockey of the eastern hemisphere.

When Sande is up in a race the dope book boys might just as well save their mental energy. If he's riding the favorite the race is over. If he's riding an outsider the boys who like to play the game for the love of it string with him on general principals. And the wise boys, who lay cold dough, wish the race were over.

SOFT BALL TEAM PLAY SPEEDS UP

League Teams Getting Down to Form for Season.

COMPETITION is becoming closer, errors are becoming fewer and scores are resembling more and more regular baseball counts instead of football or basketball figures as Recreation League teams turn in their final practice sessions before the opening of the league season Monday night.

The softball game is taking on more of the aspect of real baseball and this is helped along to a great extent by the presence of any number of baseball players in the ranks of the various clubs.

As a result, when the schedule gets under way play is certain to be faster and more accurate.

The Ohio Power nine was ahead, 9 to 1, at the end of nine innings with the Laughlin, East End, club last night at upper Columbian park. It was the Laughlin outfit's first real practice session.

The Y. M. C. A. sluggers were on last night as they sat back Charley Kidd's Roselawns, 12 to 2, at the playground, in six innings.

The Printers and the Johannes Drugs played nine innings at Northside, the Drugs getting a 9 to 8 decision. Long hits on either side were scarce.

The National Furnitures were blanked by the Bulger Drugs at the playground, 6 to 0.

THREATENS 2-MILE MARK

Wide to Make Dash for Fame Tonight at Sundown.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 7.—Edwin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster with the flying feet, was all set today to make his long waited attempt to shatter all existing world's records for the 2 mile.

The cinder track in Harvard stadium was in excellent condition, the day was perfect and thousands of persons had purchased seats to witness Wide's dash for fame at sundown.

Wide will be paced by three Harvard runners.

He will attempt to do the 2 miles in 8 minutes flat. The world's outdoor record, not yet accepted, is 9 minutes 1 2-4 seconds, made by Wide in Berlin in 1926, but this evening Wide will not only attempt to break his own record but also the world's indoor 2 mile record of 8:58 1-5 made by Paavo Nurmi at New York in 1925.

COUNTY HIGH SQUADS STAGE MEETS TODAY

Blue and White at East Palestine; Wellsville at Lisbon; Salem at Carnegie Tech Games.

Practically all of the larger Columbiana county school track teams will be found in competition today preliminary to the annual Columbiana county meet next Saturday at Lisbon.

East Liverpool high school trackers will have an opportunity to look over one of the county's leading squads, East Palestine, in a meet this afternoon at the East Palestine fairgrounds.

The local school went in on the meet this week. Originally it had been arranged as a triangular session with Palestine, Youngstown East and Leetonia slated to perform, but the entrance of Boardman and East Liverpool lends additional interest.

The Brown and White topped Youngstown South a week or so ago and can be counted on to be up among the leaders at Lisbon.

"Rub" Allen, Salem pole vaulter, who has achieved national fame as a result of his "rise" in the world, will do his stuff at the Carnegie Tech meet in Pittsburgh, along with other Salem athletes.

Wellsville, Columbiana and Lisbon are scheduled to occupy the fairgrounds at Lisbon in a triangular competition. With tracks dry and fast and weather conditions almost ideal, the athletes should have a big afternoon.

NEILSON FUND TOTALS $994

Collect $69.25 During Last Two Weeks for Mine Victim.

The Frank Neilson relief fund, sponsored by a committee of National Brotherhood of Operative Potter members, totalled $994.90 today, with the receipt of $69.25 during the last two weeks.

Recent contributions to the fund were: D. E. McNicol, Sr., $20; Cain Machine company $10; Local Union No. 125, Kalamazoo, Mich., $8; Local Union No. 35, Trenton, $5; Knights of Malta, $5; Albert Hart, $1; Mrs. Lau-Deuval, $1.00, and H. Wildblood, 50 cents. From the sale of tickets $18.75 was collected.

Nine dollars, representing the cost of printing tickets for the dinner set, upon which chances are being sold for the benefit of the fund, were paid by the general committee.

Neilson is in the City hospital suffering from a broken back sustained several months ago when the roof of a coal mine in which he was digging coal for his own use on his farm near the Bell school house fell. His wife and family of eight children, the eldest 15 years of age, are being fed and clothed from the funds collected by the committee.

"HATTIE"

and rested a hand on his arm.

He started.

"I meant to explain, Mother. I've simply got to run up country for a few days and get my work going. There's been so much confusion . . ."

"It's a good idea," said she, in her sensible way. "I'll be all right here. I'm really enjoying having the place so much to myself." And she smiled.

He saw that she suspected or knew. And he blessed her for asking no questions. She was a good sport, this little mother of his.

As he rode up in the subway to the Grand Central Station, he reflected on this so deeply unsetting little story that he would some day tell her, some day when he could talk without too great emotion. And he smiled, grimly, thinking of how beautiful it would have turned out in the pictures. De Brissac, there, would never have got in that bewildering way into her life. In the pictures, indeed, De Brissac would have been a villian, instead of a really shrewd and able man, with, by chance, rather Continental ideas. And in the pictures the girl always gave up her career for the simplicity of true love. Really, of course, you couldn't. Life is a job, love a moment . . . And in the pictures he would have come delightfully into a fortune, and would take her to an enormous stucco mansion of the Los Angeles type set in acres of turf and gardens instead of having to think, as now, about next month's rent. Hokum!

But he had her picture, with—"To Julian, from Hattie"—written across it in the hand that he didn't know was modelled on that of a certain Miss Gladys Revere.

And he had had that moment of beauty . . .

The End.

MAN SNATCHED FROM DEATH AS GALLOWS TRAP FAILS TO WORK

Joseph Birbeck Tells Story of One They Could Not Hang.

ENGLISH CASE

East Liverpool Potter Recalls Plight of John Lee.

John Lee, English butler, who gained a world-wide reputation about 40 years ago as "the man they could not hang," was personally known to the late Miss Emily Birbeck, sister of Joseph Birbeck, foreman of the decorating shop at the No. 2 plant of the Hall China company.

Birbeck recalled the story of Lee, whom his sister often mentioned in her letters to relatives, when he learned that the film version of an Englishman's narrow escape from the gallows, entitled, "The Man They Could Not Hang," was to appear at the Ceramic theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Birbeck was about 12 years of age when the famous Babycombe Downs murder was committed in Devonshire, England, where his sister, Emily, resided. Because of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the case it attracted wide attention. Every letter from England received by the Birbeck family brought additional details of the crime.

Sister Knew Condemned Man.

Lee, according to details of the case given Birbeck by his sister who died many years ago, had been employed as a butler for an elderly woman by the name of Williams. One day the woman was found slain and on the floor near her body had been poured oil, the slayer evidently intending to set fire to the house in an effort to conceal the murder.

Suspicion fell upon Lee when kerosene oil was discovered upon the soles of his shoes. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to die on the gallows.

On the day of his scheduled execution he was led to the scaffold. The rope was placed around his neck and the hood adjusted over his head. When the lever was pulled to release the trap door the bolt refused to work and Lee was saved, at least temporarily.

Sent to Prison.

A thorough test of the trap door was made and it worked successfully. Lee was again taken back to the scaffold and for the second time the bolt held and Lee was literally snatched from the jaws of death.

Once more an inspection was made of the gallows and numerous tests were made. Each time it worked, and for the third time preparations were made for Lee's hanging. He was led to the scaffold, and for a third time, seemingly through an act of Providence, the trap door refused to work with the condemned man on it.

English laws now made it impossible to carry out the death sentence, but the English home minister, believing him to be guilty of the crime ordered him to serve the rest of his life behind prison bars.

Housekeeper Confesses.

Several years later the housekeeper employed by the Williams woman, in a death-bed confession, admitted the killing of her employer, robbery being the motive. Exonerated, Lee was liberated from prison after having served several years, terminating one of the most pathetic tales ever written into English history.

Despites the terrible ordeal of three near hangings, Lee lives today. Recently he assisted in the filming of the picture which is now making a world tour, attracting record-breaking crowds wherever it has been shown.

W. Leonard Howe, who travels with the film, will review features of the Lee case with each showing of the film. Miss Loreen Thompson, Candian lyric soprano, who plays the part of Mrs. Lee in the musical scenic prologue, will also appear in each performance.

NEILSON FUND TOTALS $994

Collect $69.25 During Last Two Weeks for Mine Victim.

The Frank Neilson relief fund, sponsored by a committee of National Brotherhood of Operative Potter members, totalled $994.90 today, with the receipt of $69.25 during the last two weeks.

Recent contributions to the fund were: D. E. McNicol, Sr., $20; Cain Machine company $10; Local Union No. 125, Kalamazoo, Mich., $8; Local Union No. 35, Trenton, $5; Knights of Malta, $5; Albert Hart, $1; Mrs. Lau-Deuval, $1.00, and H. Wildblood, 50 cents. From the sale of tickets $18.75 was collected.

Nine dollars, representing the cost of printing tickets for the dinner set, upon which chances are being sold for the benefit of the fund, were paid by the general committee.

Neilson is in the City hospital suffering from a broken back sustained several months ago when the roof of a coal mine in which he was digging coal for his own use on his farm near the Bell school house fell. His wife and family of eight children, the eldest 15 years of age, are being fed and clothed from the funds collected by the committee.

and rested a hand on his arm.

He started.

"I meant to explain, Mother. I've simply got to run up country for a few days and get my work going. There's been so much confusion . . ."

"It's a good idea," said she, in her sensible way. "I'll be all right here. I'm really enjoying having the place so much to myself." And she smiled.

He saw that she suspected or knew. And he blessed her for asking no questions. She was a good sport, this little mother of his.

As he rode up in the subway to the Grand Central Station, he reflected on this so deeply unsetting little story that he would some day tell her, some day when he could talk without too great emotion. And he smiled, grimly, thinking of how beautiful it would have turned out in the pictures. De Brissac, there, would never have got in that bewildering way into her life. In the pictures, indeed, De Brissac would have been a villian, instead of a really shrewd and able man, with, by chance, rather Continental ideas. And in the pictures the girl always gave up her career for the simplicity of true love. Really, of course, you couldn't. Life is a job, love a moment . . . And in the pictures he would have come delightfully into a fortune, and would take her to an enormous stucco mansion of the Los Angeles type set in acres of turf and gardens instead of having to think, as now, about next month's rent. Hokum!

But he had her picture, with—"To Julian, from Hattie"—written across it in the hand that he didn't know was modelled on that of a certain Miss Gladys Revere.

And he had had that moment of beauty . . .

The End.

MAN SNATCHED FROM DEATH AS GALLOWS TRAP FAILS TO WORK

Joseph Birbeck Tells Story of One They Could Not Hang.

ENGLISH CASE

East Liverpool Potter Recalls Plight of John Lee.

John Lee, English butler, who gained a world-wide reputation about 40 years ago as "the man they could not hang," was personally known to the late Miss Emily Birbeck, sister of Joseph Birbeck, foreman of the decorating shop at the No. 2 plant of the Hall China company.

Birbeck recalled the story of Lee, whom his sister often mentioned in her letters to relatives, when he learned that the film version of an Englishman's narrow escape from the gallows, entitled, "The Man They Could Not Hang," was to appear at the Ceramic theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Birbeck was about 12 years of age when the famous Babycombe Downs murder was committed in Devonshire, England, where his sister, Emily, resided. Because of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the case it attracted wide attention. Every letter from England received by the Birbeck family brought additional details of the crime.

Sister Knew Condemned Man.

Lee, according to details of the case given Birbeck by his sister who died many years ago, had been employed as a butler for an elderly woman by the name of Williams. One day the woman was found slain and on the floor near her body had been poured oil, the slayer evidently intending to set fire to the house in an effort to conceal the murder.

Suspicion fell upon Lee when kerosene oil was discovered upon the soles of his shoes. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to die on the gallows.

On the day of his scheduled execution he was led to the scaffold. The rope was placed around his neck and the hood adjusted over his head. When the lever was pulled to release the trap door the bolt refused to work and Lee was saved, at least temporarily.

Sent to Prison.

A thorough test of the trap door was made and it worked successfully. Lee was again taken back to the scaffold and for the second time the bolt held and Lee was literally snatched from the jaws of death.

Once more an inspection was made of the gallows and numerous tests were made. Each time it worked, and for the third time preparations were made for Lee's hanging. He was led to the scaffold, and for a third time, seemingly through an act of Providence, the trap door refused to work with the condemned man on it.

English laws now made it impossible to carry out the death sentence, but the English home minister, believing him to be guilty of the crime ordered him to serve the rest of his life behind prison bars.

Housekeeper Confesses.

Several years later the housekeeper employed by the Williams woman, in a death-bed confession, admitted the killing of her employer, robbery being the motive. Exonerated, Lee was liberated from prison after having served several years, terminating one of the most pathetic tales ever written into English history.

Despites the terrible ordeal of three near hangings, Lee lives today. Recently he assisted in the filming of the picture which is now making a world tour, attracting record-breaking crowds wherever it has been shown.

W. Leonard Howe, who travels with the film, will review features of the Lee case with each showing of the film. Miss Loreen Thompson, Candian lyric soprano, who plays the part of Mrs. Lee in the musical scenic prologue, will also appear in each performance.

JURY GETS RINI-CHORGAS CASE

Today

No Fooling With Mellon.
What the Flood is Like.
Back Polishers, For Beauty.
A Complicated Lynching.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

GREAT BRITAIN receives the right reply to her note concerning Mr. Mellon's letter to college professors, about international debts. Secretary Kellogg tells Britain that what Secretary Mellon write to American professors is our business. That covers the ground.

INCIDENTALLY, the British admit that beginning in 1932 they will be getting from their European debtors, recently called "gallant allies," more than enough to cover all payments to the United States. Mr. Mellon's statement was strictly accurate, barring one clerical error, and it enlightened his fellow citizens.

MORE heavy rains have increased the Mississippi flood danger. It is difficult, far away and safe, to realize what the flood means, what fearful power nature has turned loose on thousands of miles of country. Secretary Hoover said of it:

"It is difficult to picture in words the might of the Mississippi flood. To say that two blocks from where I stand it is at this minute flowing at a rate of 10 times that of Niagara, seems unimpressive."

THE "back polisher" is the latest British beauty expert. Gowns this season are worn so low in the back as to expose wide sections of skin not accustomed to night lights. The back polisher's business is to treat this new territory with cosmetics to make it look like polished ivory, the right tone for a lady's back.

Women have not yet decided what they want to look like, and be like. It may take them many centuries to decide. Men must wait patiently.

JOHN CARTER, a Negro, who had attacked a white woman in Little Rock, Ark, was hanged and riddled with bullets. The lesson was wasted on him after that, but the crowd was not satisfied. It fastened his dead body behind an automobile, dragged it along the pavement of the city's main street, then soaked it with gasoline and burned it on a corner of the busiest street in the Negro section of the city.

WILL the lynching, dragging and burning really have a wholesome effect upon thousands of Negroes and whites that witnessed it? Will it inspire the Negroes with respect for the white race?

VANZETTI appeals to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts for "justice," not "mercy." Half a dozen reputable and not "radical" witnesses testify that there was a fixed determination on the part of the court "to get" Sacco and Vanzetti.

It is alleged that the judge before whom the two men were convicted, and who alone under Massachusetts law could grant a new trial, said that he would "get them, good and proper."

It is important that the men, if guilty of murder, should not escape. It is

Review-Tribune Offers Its Readers Booklet on Paint

Although paint makes great improvements in the appearance of property, it is far more useful for protection than for ornament.

A small amount of money expended in keeping a building or a piece of machinery painted adds greatly to the length of its life.

Moreover, buildings and outhouses are rendered much more sanitary by the use of paint.

Dirt works into an unpainted surface and sticks. It slides off a painted surface. Its use makes for economy, sanitation and attractiveness.

You can learn all about the use of paint if you send today for a government publication on this subject which our Washington Information Bureau will secure for any one who fills out and mails the coupon below, enclosing four cents in stamps for return postage and handling. ACQUIT WOMAN, CONVICT MAN, BROOKES URGES IN ARGUMENT

Co-defendants in Anania Death May Know Fate Tonight.

AWAIT VERDICT

Seven Women and Five Men Deliberate Upon Evidence.

With a recommendation by Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes that the woman be acquitted and the man found guilty, the fate of Salvatore Rini, 22, of East Liverpool, and Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, jointly indicted for second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville, was placed in the hands of a jury in common pleas court, Lisbon, at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Early Verdict Expected.

The seven women and five men comprising the jury began their deliberations following Judge W. F. Lones' brief charge and after listening to state and defense arguments throughout the morning and early afternoon.

Predictions were made that the verdict, which is expected to free Mrs. Chorgas, will be returned before nightfall.

Prosecutor Brookes urged a second degree verdict, which carries with it life imprisonment, against Rini, branding him "guilty of plunging a knife two and one half inches long into the body of Patsy Anania; guilty of perjury and guilty of slaying a man who befriended him."

Defense Counsel W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, called for a verdict of acquittal for Rini, stressing Rini's declaration on the witness stand that he had no part in the death of Anania, and charging that the Chorgas woman had done the cutting.

Opening arguments were delivered yesterday afternoon by Assistant Prosecutor John E. Bauknecht, for the state, and Attorney Raymond Knepper, of Wellsville, for the defense.

Brookes Scores Rini.

"I ask you to find Marie Chorgas not guilty," said Brookes. "I ask you to find Sal Rini guilty in the manner and form charged in the indictment —Rini, the man who cannot remember when he had a steady job—the man who called his pal a bootlegger, adulterer and poker player.

"I never asked for a conviction of one I did not believe guilty. Patsy could not have done it. Who sup-

FIND NO TRACE OF ST. ROMAN

RIO JANEIRO, May 7.—Search along the Brazilian coast and the waters off St. Paul rock, and repeated radio messages to ships at sea, have failed to bring any trace of Captain St. Roman, the daring French flier who is now more than 36 hours overdue on his flight to Brazil from Senegal.

Ships to the number of 17, along the route which St. Roman was to follow, have radioed that they have not seen any trace of the flier and many of the captains declare that if he has been forced down in the sea they doubt his having been picked up.

Ships have been ordered to St. Paul rock to continue the search for St. Roman.

RUTH SNYDER PREDICTS DEATH ESCAPE

ROANOKE LAD'S FIGHT AGAINST HIS COLLAPSED LUNGS FAILS

Walter L. Boothe, 18, Dies Despite Friends' Effort.

17-DAY BATTLE

Kept Alive by Pumping Arms up and Down.

ROANOKE, Va., May 7.—Walter L. Boothe's remarkable fight for life with a pair of collapsed lungs, ended this morning. The 18-year-old youth, who had been kept alive since April 21 by the unflagging efforts of his friends in pumping his arms up and down to produce artificial respiration, died at Jefferson hospital shortly after 6 o'clock.

Boothe's system finally failed, just as physicians have said it would. They have marveled for two weeks at the tenacity with which the boy clung to life. For ten days they have expected the collapse at any time, and as day after day passed and he continued "about the same" they have only shaken their heads and said "it can't last."

Cherful to End.

The boy remained cheerful to the end. He realized his impending death two weeks ago, and informed his parents and relatives at the bedside that he was "ready to go." Occasionally he took soft food and now and then asked for a cigarette.

Boothe suffered a spinal injury a year ago in an automobile accident. While he was being operated on April 21 his lungs collapsed. Since then friends, working in relays, have forced air into his lungs by incessantly raising and lowering his arms.

Doctors said the case was probably the most remarkable in medical annals.

County Motor Club Opens Drive For 1,000 Members

President J. Howard Sinclair Appeals to Co-Workers to Add New Names to Rolls.

A county-wide membership campaign, during which an effort will be made to enroll 1,000 new members, will be launched by the Columbiana County Motor club, beginning Monday and ending Thursday, May 19.

Present membership of the club, headquarters of which are maintained in the Marfourth building, East Fourth street, is nearly 1,500, of which about one-half are residents of East Liverpool.

Every member has been placed on the campaign committee. President J. Howard Sinclair, Hanoverton, has sent out an appeal, urging each coworker to enroll at least one new member.

To each member enrolled during the campaign an automobile accident insurance policy, good for one year, will be presented. The policy provides for the payment of $1,000 for the loss of life, loss of both eyes, both hands, both feet, one hand and one foot, one hand and sight of one eye or one foot and one eye; $500 for the loss of one hand, one foot or one eye; $15 per week indemnity for a period of 13 weeks when prevented from performing duties of usual occupation by injury sustained through accidental means while operating, driving, riding in or on, demonstrating, adjusting or cranking an automobile or in consequence of being struck, run down or run over, or by the burning or explosion of an automobile.

This policy is in addition to free notary service, free road maps, route books, touring information, free legal advice and information, bail bond protection, assistance in collecting automobile damage claims for which no charge is made, mechanical assistance, towing or wreck car service for which a fee of $1 is charged. In fact the club serves as a clearing house for its members' motoring difficulties.

Demented Salesman Is Killed By Police

Newspaper Worker Shot Down as he Brandishes Gun in Business Section of New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—H. C. Easton, 30, advertising salesman for a local newspaper, was shot and instantly killed by police early today after he had established himself beside a monument in Lafeyette square, in the business section, with the avowed intention of "shooting the first man" he saw.

Easton suddenly became demented in the newspaper office and left it, brandishing a gun and shouting threats. Employes of the paper called police and eight patrolmen, armed with riot guns, advanced upon his hiding place.

When they called on him to surrender, he opened fire. Each of the officers then replied and Easton's body was riddled with bullets.

Henry Judd Gray Says He 'Supposed' He'd Get Chair For Slaying Of Editor

Both Defendants, Held for Brutal Murder of Woman's Husband, Forecast Jury's Verdict to Attache of Sheriff's Office in Their Cells as They Await Resumption of Trial.

"THEY WILL NEVER SEND WOMAN TO DEATH HOUSE," IS WIDOW'S BOAST

Mrs. Snyder, Depressed, Reads Letter From Texas Rancher Containing Proposal of Marriage, While Former Lover Declares he is Not Afraid of Capital Punishment.

By James L. Kilgallen.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 7.—"The jury will not send me to the electric chair," Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, on trial with her former lover, Henry Judd Gray, for the murder of her husband, Albert Snyder, art editor of Motor Boating, declared today.

Gray said he "supposed" he'd get the chair but he wasn't afraid.

Both the defendants made these statements to an attache of the sheriff's office in their cells this morning as they rested awaiting resumption of the trial Monday when summation will be made and the case will be given to the jury.

Mrs. Snyder was depressed when the attache of the sheriff's office saw her but she had not given up hope. She said:

"They will never send a woman to the death house in this state. I think the jury has believed my story."

"I Told Truth"—Gray.

She brightened considerably when her mail was brought in and smiled when she read a letter from a Texas rancher containing a proposal of marriage in the event she is acquitted.

Gray said:

"I'm not afraid of the electric chair. I suppose I'm going to get it. I feel better. I have told the truth. Considering everything I still have some hope."

Gray seemed to be in good spirits and ate a hearty breakfast. Mrs. Snyder has been eating poorly of late.

Buoyed Up With Religion.

The trial, to all intents and purposes, is over. The evidence is all in. There was no session of court today. Monday, lawyers for both defense and the state will make their closing addresses, Justice Townsend Scudder will instruct the jury, and then the jury will retire to decide upon a verdict.

In his cell today, Gray was as cheerful as a man in his predicament would be expected to be. He had told a dreadful story on the witness stand of how he and his former sweetheart, Mrs. Snyder, entered her husband's bedroom in the early hours of Sunday, March 20, last, and dealt him to death with an iron sashweight. His was an

Horses Knocked Down When Struck By Motor Vehicle

Team of horses belonging to Peter Milliron, Second street transfer man, were bruised when struck by a coupe driven by Frank Balser, Cleveland avenue, at the corner of Broadway and Church alley, this morning. John Dempsey, 25, driver of the team, sustained minor injuries when thrown from the wagon.

The horses, hitched to an express wagon, were going down the Broadway hill when Balser emerged from Church alley. The horses were knocked down and the wagon tongue broken. Balser later reported at the Milliron barn and promised to pay any damages resulting from the crash.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

TO feel constantly lame and achy is too often a sign of sluggish kidneys.

Sluggish action permits waste poisons to remain in the blood and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy; with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with Doan's Pills. Since 1885 Doan's have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO.

Hattie sent Dempster tickets for the evening by special messenger, with the two words, "Pease come!" written in pencil on a big sheet of hotel paper. He went, however, alone, and sat through it beside what was, doubtless, the only vacant seat in the house. It was a stirring evening. The audience was representative of the Broadwayway and the critical world. The picture was good; probably, Dempster reflected, De Brissac's best so far. Harriet's success was certain. It seemed to him that she had grown in seriousness and even in power without loss of her girlishness. And when she appeared, during the intermission, led on by De Brissac himself, and stood for a long time, very little, very young, very appealing, while the great audience fairly cheered itself out, Dempster—standing, now, on his chair in order to see her—felt her again as a remote celebrity. And he watched narrowly the really distinguished director who had put the whole business through with dauntless energy and skill; the director who held her hand and spoke gently to her and carried along with the rest of it. Quite a man—De Brissac!

He moved slowly out with the crowd afterward, listening, an outsider, to the buzz of excited interest. The picture was a success. The child was already, tonight, a long step farther along that amazing career of hers. He watched the flushed, excited faces of stout men out near the box office who slapped one another's backs and wrung hands and held jubilee. And then he slipped out into the street that was thronged with pleasure-seeking men and women and that was bright with electric signs.

He couldn't know what was going on back stage and in that limousine that stood waiting down by the stage door; scenes in which he could have no part; but he felt them psychically in his spirit. And he walked the street a long time before it seemed that he could go home. And he was glad his mother didn't waken.

But he felt it; almost as if his eyes and ears could give him the picture. . . . De Brissac taking Hattie's arm and hurrying her out to the limousine . . . saying, as he did say, "Hattie, there's only one thing to do. We must go on. The company can't let you go. And I can't let you go. Perhaps your brother-in-law has told you what I said to him . . ." Hattie nodded to this, her eyes bright, her lips compressed . . . "We are going to give you a share in the profits. That'll be yours personally in any event. And I want you to marry me. We know each other pretty well now. I am making my will tomorrow, giving you everything. I've got to have you. I can't hold anything back. . . . You can't work with anybody else. And certainly you can't quit the pictures now. I will provide for your family. I will take care of everything. . What else is there to do? I'm the man you belong to. You're not the kind to take up with Tom, Dick and Harry. We can be married tomorrow."

All she could say—or all he could hear—was, "I've got to think."

She called Dempster in the morning and asked to meet him at luncheon.

He knew, then, as he watched her over the table, that she was suffering in a way that she could probably never be articulate about. But there was something that she had to come out with.

"What would you think . . ." she began.

"Harriet," said he, soberly and gently, "I wonder if we haven't been thinking of the same thing. You've got to go on."

She couldn't speak just then. He saw the tears coming and pressed on.

"We've had our moment of beauty, dear."

She nodded, quickly.

"But you can't capture beauty. You can't imprison it. We're lucky, of course. Perhaps it was for both of us just a moment of escape."

Again she was nodding, and fighting back the tears. And after that they could only make the best of the situation until he could get her back to the hotel.

There, at the door, she caught his hand and said—

"I'll write sometimes and tell you what I'm doing. And I'll let you know where you can write me .There'll never be anybody like you. Not anybody."

Suddenly, then, there in Forty-fourth Street, she threw her arms about his neck, drew herself up and kissed him, and then ran into the hotel.

Later that afternoon she made up very carefully and dressed for a dinner that was to end in a wedding. Already the newspapers, she knew, had the story. The publicity men were wildly happy over this brilliant new material. It was all to work in with her triumph. . . And De Brissac's . . . She took from its white box the long string of pearls, weighed it deliberately in her hand, and then drew it about her neck and clasped it there. Then, as firmly, she put the little bracelet watch of platinum on her wrist. She drew the gay Spanish shawl about her shoulders. . . .De Brissac tapped at her door then, and she went with him to his suite. The more important of the picture people were there, and some famous actors and actresses. Arthur bustled, all dressed up. And they had champagne. It was a great occasion, even to Broadway. And life was rushing on . . .

Dempster that evening packed a suitcase.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1927.

Fireworks Outlawed

East Liverpool should have a noiseless Fourth of July this year, as a result of councilmanic action in adopting the ordinance prohibiting the sale and discharge of fireworks within the municipal limits. The legislation, approved by a 5 to 2 vote, will be signed by Mayor Benedum, thus becoming effective 30 days after its enactment.

While the prohibitory measure may not be popular with Young America, it is a sensible law. And it undoubtedly will prove the means of reducing the toll of accidents in the celebration of the nation's natal day.

Of course, the problem of coping with the fireworks bootlegger presents itself, due to the fact that dealers outside the municipal boundaries are not affected by the ordinance. However, this should not prove very troublesome,

Fireworks do not offer the only means of observing Independence Day. Community programs, picnics, etc., are more in keeping with the occasion, as well as safer.

Triumph Of Dubness

Perhaps our leading philosophers nowadays are the cartoonists. Whether they do comic strips or pictures approximating works of art, a thoughtful person can nearly always get a mental kick out of their work.

There has been considerable criticism lately of American court procedure, especially in criminal cases, and with particular regard to the jury system. Will Johnstone, in the New York World, tackles that theme with a foolish little group of six pictures, entitled. "Your Country Needs You," which isn't so foolish as it looks.

The first picture shows a boy at school sitting on a stool in the corner, with a dunce cap on his head, saying: "I owe it to the community to be a dumb citizen when I grow up—somebody's got to do it!"

The second shows an interview between the boy and his father, on the subject of choosing a career, with the boy saying: "I ain't never going to work, pa—I might get tied up in business some day."

The third shows him as a youth on the street, waving aside a newsboy with a murder extra in his hand, explaining: "I never buy newspapers. I can't read, anyway."

In the fourth chapter he is a grown-up man, living alone, surrounded by a barb-wire fence, with a "Keep Out" sign on the gate, and "I'm a Hermit" on the house.

In the fifth he is "at large," walking in the rain without a hat or umbrella or raincoat, and saying to himself: "If I could only form an opinion, I might say this rain's wet, but I dunno!"

Then comes the triumphant denouement—in court. As a prospective juror, the illiterate hermit is saying: "I'm dumb—got no business—ain't read no papers—got no friends, got no opinions, or nothing!"

What then? The reader has doubtless guessed it. Joy and relief in the courtroom, and the propmt order, "Take a seat in the jury box!"

American Foreign Loans

All peace-time records were broken last month in Ameican foreign loans. This country lent abroad $209,000,000.

Foreign countries already owe the American people $20,000,000,000 to $25,000,000,000, about half of it in government loans and half in private loans. Our private investors lately have been lending money abroad at the rate of more than a billion a year, and now that rate is increasing.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover steps in with a word of good counsel, advising Americans not to make any more foreign loans for military purposes or for balancing national budgets.

"It is a tempting thing," he says, "for certain European governments to find a horde of American bankers sitting on their doorsteps offering them money. It is also demoralizing for municipalities and corporations in the same countries to have money pressed on them. That sort of competition tends to insecurity and unsound practice."

There should be no opposition to safe and legitimate loans, he adds. But "no nation should itself borrow, or permit its citizens to borrow, money from foreign countries, and no nation should allow its citizens to lend money to foreign countries, unless this money is to be devoted to productive enterprise."

To much American money is helping to arm Europe and helping to pay the current expenses of national and mounicipal governments. It would be far better is the bankers were begging constructive American enterprise to accept their loans, and if the masses of thrifty folk who provide the funds for lending should insist on such use of them.

Same Here

Undue consideration for China may cost Japan dear," says the Tokio Chugai Shogyo. "Nevertheless she is an Asiatic power, and muset remember her solidarity with China. Japan is not required to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for the western countries."

Consideration for China may be a bit difficult for this country, too. But the United States is an American power, and wants to get along amicably with her big neighbor across the Pacific in the future, and is under no obligation to pull European chestnuts out of the fire.

A LITTLE TALE FOR BUSINESS MEN.

Just before he died, at an untimely age and to the regret of the amusement-loving public, Barney Barnard, the great Hebrew comedian, told me this one:

He said a co-religionist of his was on the road selling goods for a general supply house. One afternoon he dropped in on a customer residing in a suburban town.

"I don't want anything in your line today," said the storekeeper, as the traveling man began undoing a sample case. "I'm all stocked up."

"Oh, give me a little order anyway," pleaded the drummer. "Just a little something to prove to the boss that I'm on the job. Business has been rotten the last few days."

"Same here," said the customer. "No, there's nothing doing. You'll only be wasting your time and mine. Besides, I haven't got any money to spare."

"You won't have to pay for ninety days," said the drummer.

"That makes no difference. I'm feeling poor and I don't want to feel any poorer. Why, only yesterday I ordered a Pomeranian for a hundred dollars and Lord knows where I'm going to get the cash for it whn it comes through. But my wife just would have a Pomeranian. You know how women are."

"Sucker that you are!" exclaimed the traveling man. "To pay one hundred dollars for one of thse here now Pomeranians is foolishness. Listen to me: You just send a wire cancelling that order and I'll bill you a A-number-one, high grade Pomeranian for—let me see?—for sixty-five dollars, delivered."

"That's a trade," said the citizen and the deal was closed.

The traveling man hurried back to his hotel and on the long-distance telephone called up his chief.

"Say, listen, Mr. Einstein," he said to the head of the firm, when connection had been made, "this is Levinski speaking. I just got an order from Jones out here in Southville; not much of an order but still something. I sold him a Pomeranian for sixty-five dollars . . . Say, Mr. Einstein, what is a Pomeranian?"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 7.—New York offers many oddities in millionaires. That is their fortunes have been wrested from strange pursuits. Some of them have hit upon ideas that make them overnight and others have been battered and bruised in the long travail.

In one large building down-town are the offices of two millionaires who are only a year removed from the peasantry of Europe and have not yet learned the language. A Polish immigrant lad devastated large chunks of Millionaire's Row to erect skyscrapers. A 26-year-old Russian was recently paid a million for a quick photo invention. A chain of orange drink stands that flower in convenient midtown crevices are owned by a man who began his career in the new land five years ago with a red shirt and a pick. It was only three years ago he was able to bring his wife and three children from Russia.

There is a hair dresser from Switzerland who began with a single salon in a smart hotel ten years ago. The bobbing craze came along and he now owns eleven coiffure parlors between New York and Florida. He lives in a sixteen-room house in Long Island and drives to work in a liveried car.

There is the quick spending millionaire of Broadway who made his pile out of a breath of perfume preparation. He was a soda jerker in a Pak Row drug store until several years ago when he hit upon a discovery fooling around the prescription case. He is not 30 years old.

Control of the New York theater programs has made another man a tremendous fortune and unlocked the gates of society. Harry Stevens, who has the pop-corn and lemonade privileges at the ball parks and Garden has been a millionaire for several years.

A man who runs penny eating places for newsboys and shoe shiners has a show-place estate on the Hudson. These and scores of others have sat in the game of millions with no capital. Usually they had a single idea, a lot of faith in it—and they plunged.

Few ship news reporters have ever been abroad, although they swing down the bay daily to meet incoming ships. As one said the other day: "When we take a vacation we want to get away from water, except a little on the side."

New York is divided into two sections in the summer—those who go to the country and those who stay in town. Broadway takes on an entirely different look. It is filled with visitors who dawdle along a trifle agape. Merchants stand in their doorways and hatless clerks trek across the square to the soda fountains. Fifth Avenue is deserted after 5 o'clock and even the traffic tower gods nod over their fish eyed lights. Those in the country come to town once a week to the cafes—usually Monday night—to display their latest tans and wonder how folk stand it in the city. Only the summer revue girl shows are patronized. Nearly all the other theaters are closed. New York does not begin to look New Yorkish again until late September.

People vanish in New York without trace. Nothing apparently happens to them save they disappear. A friend recently tried to trace a former well known supper club hostess of eight years ago, a professional dancer, a newspaperman and a magazine artist of the same period. He could not find a single clue to their whereabouts.

A gentleman gave up his $22,000 a year apartment in a Park Avenue building because the management would not permit him to have an iron deer on either side of his doorway in the hall.

A neighborhood often attempts to absorb the grandeur of a new building. When the huge Roxy theater was completed there sprang up in the vicinity Roxy counter lunches, Roxy shoe repair parlors, Roxy radio and cigar stores.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The Passing of the Deer.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The people of New York state and all those others to whom the Adirondacks mean a paradise have become much agitated over the deer situation in those mountains. The game laws of New York provide an open season in the autumn with the result that hundreds of deer are killed by hunters. Sportsmen from every state in the Union and some from foreign countries annually go to the great hills of northern New York to hunt in its wooded mountains.

But a recent survey made by the state game officials indicates that deaths due to cold winters perhaps exceed those caused by the sportsmen's rifles. It is not unusual for the thermometer to drop to thirty degrees below zero around Saranac Lake, Lake Placid, Paul Smith's, and such places. The survey indicates that the does suffer more than the stags with the result that the spring brings fewer fawns.

A curious thing about the Adirondack deer is that they show a rather high order of intelligence. In the old days that part of the country was as wild as any place in the United States. Paul Smith was there, Robert Louis Stevenson, and Rudyard Kipling not far away but there were no millionaires' elaborate camps crowding the woods, no automobiles, no motor boats chugging on the innumerable lakes and very few rifle shots.

Gradually the deer have been disappearing. They do not like millionaires. A migration has set in and they are going, of their own vilition, to less popular parts of the state. The state game authorities have discovered, as the result of a survey, that the deer gravitate toward the counties where there is no open season. How they know which counties those are is a mystery which has not been solved but it nevertheless is a fact that they do have some guilding instinct which tells them where they can find sanctuary.

The local authorities of the Adirondack region are favoring the shortening of the open season to fifteen days—from November 1 to November 15—instead of the month now allowed. This, is is believed, will enable the herds to recoup their losses. From a purely business point of view this would be a wise policy for the people of the Adirondacks because the deer hunting season annually brings thousands of persons, usually wealthy, into the towns.

White Deer Evasive.

There is one sort of deer which rarely is shot; the albino or, as it is locally known, the ghost deer. As a freak of nature, there occasionally is born a pure white deer. Even its hoofs and antlers are white and its body is as white as snow. These deer apparently are endowed with better wits than the usual brown deer as they know how to keep out of the way of the hunters. They are seen not infrequently but nearly always out of range. They are very fleet and aleit. Every Adirondack hunter has some tale to tell of a flash of white in the trees, a chance shot but no quarry. Out of the hundreds of deer shot each season, it is seldom that more than one ghost deer is brought down and some seasons pass without a single one being taken. As is natural much Indian and local superstition attaches to these animals. They are persumed to bear charmed lives and when one is shot it always is mounted and put on exhibition for the wondering populace.

Paul Smith had many stories about the ghost deer. Smith's name was not really Paul. It was Appolos but that was too long and too Greek for the hunters he guided over Whiteface, Marcy, and the many other mountains, so it was shortened, first to Pol and then translated into the more American Paul.

He got his start in the hotel business in a curious way. He had a camp up in the hills but most of the time was away from it, hunting and trapping. But he always left a keg of whiskey at the camp. To it there was attached by a chain a fair-sized dipper. Anyone who wanted to could come along and obtain a drink. The price was four cents per dipper. The pennies were to be left on top of the keg. It is said that no one ever drank at this forest barroom without paying, even though the proprietor, or any one else, was not within ten miles of it. Now Paul Smith's is a town boasting a big hotel.

Paul Smith's Politics.

Some one asked Paul Smith how it happened that he always was postmaster of the town of Paul Smith's no matter what changes took place in the administration at Washington. His reply was: "The administration can't change any quicker than I can." From the time he set up his first tent to the end of his days he remained postmaster of the town that bore his name.

Deer by no means constitute all the game of the Adirondacks. Perhaps they are the most picturesque but there are many other creatures. Bears probably are the most prolific of the wild life of the region. Every year scores of them are taken and it is a matter of course for the farmer of northern New York to have a bearskin rug in his sleigh as a laprobe. They hibernate in the winter but roam about the fields quite unceremoneously during the summer months. It is not unusual to discover a tremendous, lumbering bruin in one's berry patch or curled up asleep in the sun in one's barnyard.

The lynx also is to be found in the Adirondacks but he is a bad neighbor. The bears are gentle compared to the lynx. Then, of course, there are plenty of wild cats.

Quail, grouse, pheasants, woodcock are to be found in numbers and mink, muskrats, grey squirrels, and raccoons can be had for the searching. The squirrels are not as numerous as formerly, however. In fact in no part of the country are they to be found in such numbers as a few years ago. The chestnut blight which swept the country about a decade ago has seriously interferred with the food supply of the squirrels and many have died from winter starving in addition to those which have been killed in pursuit of sport or for their fur.

Civilization is encroaching on the Adirondacks each year but, in spite of the millionaires' camps it will take a long time to conquer this wilderness. This is especially so as efforts are made toward resistance. Mount Whiteface is probably the most picturesque peak in the Adirondacks. During the past winter a determined effort has ben made to induce the New York legislature at Alabny to appropriate funds to build a road to the summit. The present trail is about five miles long as it leads directly up the sides of the mountain. The proposed road would have to be abort twenty miles long as it would wind around. The efforts to build this road has met with the most determined resistance, what amounts to a lobby having been established at Albany to prevent passage of the enabling act. The resistance springs from the desire of the people to whom the mountain is especially dear to keep it free from tourists. The issue has not yet been decided.

Many Entered in Meet.

Chester public schools will be largely represented in the annual county field meet which will be held next Friday at Weirton. Entry list from the district was forwarded to officials in charge of the event during the week.

AIRPLANE STUNTS BRING PROTEST

Weirton officials have registered a protest with government authorities in regard to the actions of army plane aviator who swooped down on the place Thursday afternoon frightened school children and menacing roofs of buildings.

The craft, believed to be the same that caused consternation at Morristown and St. Clairsville, O., later, bore army insignia, according to John Matheny, Weirton policeman, who said the only reason he did not shoot the aviator was because he thought he was "drunk or crazy."

Matheny declared the plane flew low over children playing in a school yard, skimmed on the edge of house tops, menacing aerials and roofs and dropped so low over a highway that a team of horses became frightened and ran away, smashing a delivery wagon.

The "winged terror" crossed over Steubenville after his stunt flying at Weirton and continued west.

STATION GROUNDS BEING IMPROVED

The completion of the work in beautifying the grounds around the passenger station of the Pennsylvania railroad at Weirton is expected within ten days.

A hedge fence has been planted around the station, the grounds leveled and grass seed has been planted. Work is now progressing on the flower beds in the center of the lawn. This is the first time since the construction of the new depot that any improvement has been made to the grounds around the station.

G. W. Young, landscape gardener of the Pennsylvania railroad company for the Pan Handle district, has charge of the work, which is being done by the employes of that company.

Season Opens Here.

Superior Cord Tires and Wellsville opened the Industrial league season this afternoon at Smith field before a large crowd of fans.

COVE M. E. CHURCH TO BE DEDICATED

A special program is being prepared for Sunday, May 22 and will be announced at a later date, when completed. On May 23, 24 and 25 the various societies and classes of the church will have charge of the programs, which will be open to the public.

The church which was completed early this winter, is one of the fine additions to the Greater Weirton district. While plain in construction it is one of the best finished and decorated churches of the district in the interior.

Mother's Day Exercises.

Special programs in keeping with Mother's Day will be given tomorrow in the Chester churches. Appropriate sermons will be delivered by the respective pastors.

Lodge Services Changed.

Announcement was made today that members of the Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges would attend services in the Christian church on Sunday, May 22, instead of tomorrow as previously announced.

COMEDY SCREAM AT AMERICAN

"McFadden's Flats" Opens Three-day Run on Monday.

"McFadden's Flats," which opens a three-day run as the feature attraction at the American theatre Monday is one long hilarious laugh. The famous old stage comedy has been given a brand new dress, new laughs and a new lease on life that should give screen audiences a new conception of what can be done in the way of film fun.

Charlie Murray, the hodcarrying Irishman, is teamed up with Chester Conklin as a Scotch barber.

Of course, pretty faces—and figures as well—have not been overlooked in the making of this picture. Edna Murphy, in the leading feminine role, is one of the most convincing reasons why gentlemen prefer blondes. Then, when Dorothy Dawn comes along—photographing as a decided brunette one becomes convinced that he might prefer her without losing the slightest evidence of his gentility.

Other members of the cast are Larry Kent, Aggie Herring, DeWitt Jennings, Freeman Wood, Cissy Fitzgerald, Dot Farley and Leo White.

"McFadden's Flats" tells the story of the struggles of an Irishman who, coming to America, has ambitions to get out of the ranks of hodcarriers and become a builder—a builder of a flat building that might bear his name, in fact. He meets a tight-fisted Scotchman—portrayed by Chester Conklin—who becomes his fast friend in spite of their wide differences in taste.

That the son and daughter of the two wrangling friends should fall in love with one another, permitting the unfolding of an entrancing story of young love, was a complication that neither had expected.

It is from this material that one of the most successful of stage comedies was made. And it is in the dressing up of this story in its present form that picture audiences are being given one of the genuine treats of the year.

Child Injured.

Ralph Johnson, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnson, of Middle Run, was cut about the head yesterday when struck by a shell from a gun that back fired when he hit it with a piece of metal. He was given medical attention by Dr. C. A. Shafer.

New Bell in Position.

New bell recently hung in the First Christian church will ring for the first time tomorrow. Money for the purchase was raised by members of the Loyal Sons class of the church.

Where They Bring The Bigger Dividends

The Hancock Building & Loan Association
Was Organized in Chester, West Virginia, January 10th, 1900.

Hancock County was then in its infancy and there was a great need for home financing to take care of the rapidly increasing population. This institution has now grown to be the largest in the state, having total assets of over $3,800,000 and having paid out in dividends since the organization $1,128,860.95. These dividends have been at the rate of 6% until December 31st, 1925, when a dividend of 3½% was paid for six months or at the rate of 7% a year, in the year 1926, 6½% was paid.

OUR INVESTMENT PLAN

There is nothing complicated about becoming a member of this organization, and participating in its earnings. Every week we receive new members who recognize the many advantages to be derived from investing their ready money here.

We issue both paid up stock certificates and book accounts which can be started for any amount. This makes it possible for the small investor to put his money to work as advantageously and with as much acility as the large investor.

The money thus paid into the Association is loaned by the directors on first mortgage real estate. Consequently it is put to earning dividends at once, and these earnings are distributed semi-annually.

SAFETY FOR INVESTORS

The security back of an investment determines its safety. It is on this principle that investment in this Association is regarded with favor by its thousands of members. They know that the Association's funds are loaned only on first mortgage real estate security—HOMES—Each loan is protected by insurance on the property, and every other known safeguard is provided. Money may be taken out at any time, as the Association makes the practice of paying withdrawals on demand.

Money invested in this Association never earned less than 6%

EXEMPTION FROM INCOME.

The Federal Revenue Act exempts from Income Tax so much of the amount received by an individual as dividend from his investment in a domestic building association as does not exceed $200. Our Association comes within the provision of this act, and investment with us, up to $5,000 is free of income tax.

DIVIDENDS

Our dividend periods are January 1st and July 1st. Last January 1st we paid $94,910.86 in dividends and on July 1st of this year we expect to pay well over $100,000.00 n dividends.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

STATUE OF LIBERTY DANGEROUS TO NEW YORK SAY NAVY EXPERTS

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Statue of Liberty is the first thing Gotham will need to sacrifice if ever we have a fight with some big sea power and the latter manages to run a few battle craft close enough inshore to take a long range crack at Manhattan Island.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur gets this hint from ship commanders with the combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets which recently put into Greater New York waters for a little rest between Caribbean Sea maneuvers and the Narragansett Bay war games.

All speak of that statue as about the nicest landmark that a gunner, out on the briny, could desire, to guide him in landing an assortment of high explosives in City Hall Park or thereabouts.

SECRETARY OF WAR DAVIS, whose department the Liberty Statue appertains to, isn't altogether pleased with the idea that Mr. Bartholdi's souvenir to the United States would have to be yanked down in a hurry if a foreign fleet should appear in the offing.

However, he does say that he guesses no fleet could get near enough to Bedloe's Island to be very dangerous unless it arrived with a better aviation equipment than Secretary Wilbur's fleet was able to muster when it steamed into the Hudson and East Rivers.

This jab by Secretary Davis had reference to the hard luck of the Atlantic-Pacific fleet's only aircraft carrier, the Langley, in blowing out her generator, disabling her completely, off the Ambrose Light.

THE dispute isn't in reality at all acrimonious, but—

1. The question as to what would have happened to New York of the fleet really had been on mischief bent, and—

2. The question as to what would have happened to the fleet, if New York had been looking for it with real blood in her eye and the fleet's only aircraft carrier had gone flooey under such circumstances—

Why, these questions remain unsettled.

MILITARY and naval arguments based on showings made by land, sea and air forces in maneuvers and war games always do remain unsettled.

When they come right down to cases, fighting men admit that war conditions are necessary, to prove anything.

For instance, there was once a big sham scrap between a land force on Long Island whose position a big sea force was trying to capture, in which each side claimed utterly to have annihilated the other. Naturally no force would annihilate another force after itself being annihilated. The question was:

Which was the first one annihilated?

It never was satisfactorily settled.

THE aviation issue is wide open, as the celebrated "Billy" Mitchell row, not so long ago, demonstrated.

An airman bombs and sinks a condemned battleship.

"Yes," agree navy men, "but that ship was at anchor and undefended."

An aviator goes up, to be popped at by anti-aircraft guns and they miss him.

"Sure," admit the gunners, "but we could have hit him if we'd wanted to."

There's no means of finding out, except by actually trying to kill somebody and, in peace time, that wouldn't do.

SO we can't possibly know for certain whether the Statue of Liberty's got to come down or not, as a military measure, until actual war breaks out, and not then unless and until an enemy gets within shooting distance of it.

A Scotchman has offered $25,000 to the first person to swim the Atlantic ocean.—Fostoria Times.

MOTION FOR 'NOT GUILTY' VERDICT IN RINI CASE DENIED

DEFENSE RESTS AFTER WOMAN TAKES STAND

Mrs. Marie Chorgas, in Rebuttal, Hits Sal's Story.

DOCTORS CALLED

Suicide Theory Upset by Physician Who Performed Autopsy.

Judge W. F. Lones, late yesterday in common pleas court, Lisbon, overruled the defense motion to instruct the jury in the case of Salvatore Rini, 22, East Liverpool, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, to return a verdict of "not guilty" of second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville.

The motion, made by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, who, with Attorney Raymond Knepper, is representing Rini, followed the unexpected resting of the defense case and rebuttal testimony of Mrs. Chorgas, a state witness, and Dr. Seward Harris, of Lisbon, county jail physician.

Previously Valentino Crae, a youth who had appeared earlier in the trial for the purpose of establishing the probable height and weight of Anania, again was brought into court and Rini was ordered to stand beside him for the comparison size.

Rini Cross-Examined.

Mrs. Chorgas, in rebuttal, made an emphatic denial of any alleged intimacies with Anania, to which Rini earlier had testified.

Attorney Knepper, for the defense, sought to establish the possibility of suicide, when Dr. C. H. Bailey, who performed the autopsy over Anania's body, was called to the stand.

Dr. Bailey testified that in all his practice he had never observed a self-inflicted wound of a character that the autopsy on the body of Anania disclosed. He declared the wound "clean" and a "straight puncture."

Most of yesterday's session was devoted to cross-examination of Rini who reiterated his denial of any complicity in the death of Anania, whose body was found in his (Rini's) apartment on March 22.

Bandit Smashes Window, Flees With Gems Worth $8,500

CLEVELAND, May 7.—A daring bandit who smashed the display window of a town-town jewelry store, pulled out five diamond rings, valued at about $8,500, and escaped in the noon-day crowds was being sought by police today.

The Webb C. Ball company had a $50,000 display of diamonds in the show window of its Euclid avenue store this morning. The robber approached the window with a package under his arm, according to witnesses, and hurled the package through the plate glass window, then reached through the hole, and seized a tray of the gems. He then disappeared before astonished spectators could overtake him.

Jury Gets Rini Case

pressed the evidence in this case. The state of Ohio or Sal Rini? Figure it out for yourself.

"Marie waived her rights because she had confidence in you, the jury, to do the fair thing by her. I believe Marie told a true and correct story. The defense could not break her. I think Marie is innocent. She is a physical wreck.

"Rini is husky and in the prime of life. Who could have applied that force? What was the intent of the man behind that knife?

"Marie could never have delivered that blow. Marie said that Patsy, gasping, said 'Sal did it.' She is on trial, but who are you going to believe—Marie or Rini. And I want you to take into consideration what Rini said to Marie—"You didn't see me do it.'"

Brookes then called the attention of the jury to the hole in Anania's overcoat and that the blade of the penknife fitted nearly into the aperture, and that the same kind of threads as those in the coat were found on the blood-stained knife.

O'Grady Stresses Evidence.

Brookes, who yielded for the noon recess, completed his argument shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Preceding the prosecutor, O'Grady pleaded for Rini and assailed the Chorgas woman.

Dwelling mainly upon the evidence, O'Grady said: "The sword cuts both ways so far as the rules of evidence are concerned."

Innocent, Says O'Grady.

He then took up the testimony of Mrs. Chorgas where she said that "Sal was angry." He declared that the state must prove that a crime was committed and if it was done purposely and unlawfully. He said that the evidence had to be substantiated beyond a reasonable doubt and that there should be no compromise. He declared there were two defendants charges as principals in the indictment and they stand as principals in alleged crime. He told the jury "there is not a scintilla of evidence of purpose." He declared that "Marie is the one who did the cutting and the testimony directed an accusing finger at her as the one who did it."

O'Grady then brought the youth, Valentino Crea onto the floor of the courtroom, bared the boy's left breast, sat on his right knee, and, with his left arm around his neck and with the broken butcher knife, in his right hand, made a move as if to strike the subject in the manner in which Anania was alleged to have been stabbed.

The defense counsel declared that Marie was the last known person in the kitchen with Patsy, and charged the state failed to show which knife was used. He said that the witness Reynolds was imaginative. He also stressed the friendship between Rini and Anania.

"God delay the day when the scales of justice are in control of one individual," said O'Grady. "This boy never injured Patsy Anaia."

Bauknecht's Argument.

In his opening statement yesterday afternoon to the jury, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John E. Bauknecht declared that "before we accept the theory that Patsy Anania cut himself while he was cutting meat, let us take the position of one who is cutting meat," he indicated by drawing a knife over a piece of paper on the desk of Miss Alice Glenn, court reporter. "That's the usual way to cut meat, and if Patsy had cut himself, while he was cutting meat, he would have cut some part of his hand, and if he had cut his heart, it would have been a slash.

"Mrs. Bartley testified that Rini told the police of the cutting. Who did it? You have two stories. One from Marie and one from 'Sal.' It is up to you to determine who has been telling the truth, and who is trying to shield himself. You can see from their stories."

Bauknecht then reviewed the testimony of the witness Reynolds, who was in the rooms beneath the Rini apartment and who heard the remark "Get your clothes and get the hell out of here." "We have fixed the hour Patsy was wounded and the hour he died. Parsons told you of the condition of Patsy when he was in the bathroom, and of Rini saying to the doctor, 'I think Patsy is passing out.'"

"I want to call your attention to the manner of Rini on the stand," Bauknecht continued. "What manner of friendship is that which he would have for another, when he was the only one to put a blot on the character of Anania. That is what Rini did, and he calls him pal and friend in the same breath. The jury has not been informed definitely as to what kitchen knife was used. They didn't think of the blood-stained knife—the tell-tale knife.

"The man was certainly dead when he was taken into the bathroom. You have a right to consider this. I say to you this man must have some reason, some motive for doing this. Rini struck down Patsy."

Knepper's Argument.

"There was no one on the stand who was an eye witness," Attorney Knepper, who followed Bauknecht, said. He then read the indictment that had been returned against the two defendants by the April grand jury. He called attention to the testimony of Mrs. Chorgas, who, he said, attempted to save herself by shifting "it all onto 'Sal.'"

He declared that Patsy might have fallen on one of the knives, or that Anania held the knife and took his own life, "but we can only guess how he did it."

"Marie broke one of the kitchen knives, but she did not say how she did it, "but she did say that she threw the broken part of the knife out of the window."

FLOOD RELIEF FUND CLOSE TO $3,000 MARK

Actual Cash in Treasurer's Hands is $2,810.26.

$120 TO BE ADDED

Total Grows as Levee Defenders are Forced to Flee.

The Mississippi valley flood relief fund lacked less than $70 of the $3,000 mark today, the closing day of the campaign.

Actual cash, which had been turned in to W. E. Dunlap, treasurer of the Red Cross chapter, at 10:30 o'clock this morning, amounted to $2,810.26. The Potters' National Bank had collected $10 which was not included in this figure. Receipts of a benefit show given at the American theatre last Monday afternoon and a contribution by the theatre management totalling $110, has not yet been turned over to the chapter treasurer.

East Liverpool has already sent $2,450 to the Washington headquarters, this amount representing the city's quota in the proposed $10,000,000 relief fund. The balance, in all probability, will be forwarded early next week.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Red Cross flood relief drive crossed the eight million dollar mark today.

Contributions tabulated up to 10 a. m., at national headquarters here totalled $8,345,116, of which eastern states contributed $5,400,116; mid western states, $2,006,000; Pacific states, $767,510, and insular and foreign sources, $11,471.

New Havoc Rolls Down.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 7.—Levee defenders were driven from their ground along the west bank of the Mississippi today a few miles above Torras, Louisiana, where army engineers have ben directing an intensive fight for three days to hold in check the ever swelling crest of the nation's most devastating flood.

Behind the Torras levee stretches a potential new channel to the sea through half a dozen parishes south of the Red river still comparatively untouched by the blighting waters. A break here would open a new spillway through the Atchafalaya valley to the Gulf carrying off sufficient water, in the opinion of army engineers, to "break the back of the flood." It would drive tens of thousands from their homes in Pointe Coupe, West Baton Rouge, Iberville, St. Martin and Assumption parishes, and add hundred square miles to Louisiana's 2,400 square mile inland sea.

As the water washed over the top of the crumbling levees above Torras, new havoc rolled down from flooded northeastern parishes to three vulnerable spots in the Bayou Des Glaises levees in the Red river district.

Arkansas Still Rising.

In the extreme northeastern quarter of the state the Arkansas overflow is still rising in Morehouse and Ouchita parishes, with Monroe, the sixth city of the state, defending her levees as never before in history. Emergency calls for diking materials were sent to western Louisiana last night as the waters reached the danger mark on the railroad embankments which form the protecting wall around the eastern edge of the city.

Phone reports to state relief headquarters here today were that armies of men worked in endless chain formation throughout the night piling sand bags against the ominous tide. Large sections of the threatened sector immediately behind the railroad embankments have been exacuated. Monroe's population is more than 17,000. A week ago the locality was considered so secure that a refugee camp was established within the city limits.

A dispatcher's message from Harrison, Mississippi, reported rising waters along the entire route of the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific railroad, which travels the heart of the northeastern flooded area between Vicksburg and Monroe.

Along a stretch of track extending approximately 110 miles west from the Mississippi to Monroe., the message said, every foot of rail is under from six inches to two feet of water, with the exception of a short piece in the vicinity of Delhi, a high point on the Bayou Macon hills.

Await New Dangers.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—Taking advantage of the calm before the storm, southeastern Louisiana today is lashing everything fast against the dangers that threaten when the flood waters, impounded in the thousands of square miles in the Tensas basin, begin pouring back into the Mississippi river to race onward to the gulf.

Billions of cubic feet of water are temporarily massed in the great moving lake covering the Tensas basin. Slowly but invincibly this vast lake is rolling southward, and what will happen when it reaches the Red river is the secret upon which hinges the fate of southern Louisiana.

JEWELER LOSES $50,000 IN GEMS

CHICAGO, May 7.—Maurice Krause, head of a jewelry company, today was robbed of $50,000 in gems by three armed men who forced him to drive into an alley.

WOULD AID NEW DRAMATISTS

A stage society such as those existing in London, which gives young and unknown dramatists opportunities to have their plays presented on Sunday evenings, acted by capable actors who are occupied during the week, would be a big step forward in the development of the American theatre, according to Miss Jane Cowl, star of many Broadway successes. Miss Cowl, who admits she hasn't had a vacation in five years, is also an author and producer at odd times.

Triple Inquiry Into Explosion in Which Seven Die

The cause of the explosion was still a mystery today.

City Orders Hotel Owner to Remove Stairway Railing

Written notice to remove an iron railing surrounding an outside stairway, leading into the basement from the Fourth street sidewalk within five days or face prosecution, was served today upon R. L. Edmonston, proprietor of the of the Travelers' hotel, by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore this morning.

Workmen for Edmonston this morning began the placing of an iron railing about the stairway of his new hotel addition in violation of the city ordinance and state law which prohibits the obstruction of streets and alleys, according to the service-safety director.

If he fails to begin work on the removal of the railing within five days, Edmonston will be brought into court, charged with violation of the city ordinance or state law, Moore said. He can be charged with a separate offense for each day that he permits the railing to stand, according to the director.

According to city officials the common pleas court recently held the obstruction of streets, sidewalks and alleys to be a violation not only of the city ordinance but also of a state law.

extraordinay defense—no defense at all. He did it. They both did it.

"My son told the truth and is now ready to meet his Maker," said his mother, Mrs. Margaret Gray.

Jail attendants said Gray prays constantly and is buoyed up with the solace of religion.

In her cell in the same jail, Mrs. Snyder, who recently told a jail matron that she had "prayed for the first time in her life," is a lonely, forlorn figure. The black-garbed blonde, who was defiant and confident a week ago, is a shuddering, dejected woman, stricken with fear and perhaps remorse. She was courageous on the stand, denying she took part in the actual killing, but she lost her iron nerve once Gray began unfolding his frightful detail.

No Sympathy for Woman.

It has ben a strange feature of the trial that what little sympathy was extended by spectators went to Gray. They were frankly cynical of her and women in the courtroom actually snickered as Mrs. Snyder told her story. No one doubted Gray's story. No lonelier figure could be imagined than Mrs. Snyder. She couldn't even kiss her baby when the little girl was brought into court to testify. Seven witnesses took the stand to testify as to Gray's reputation for truth and veracity but none came forward to say a kind word for her character.

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder and Gray spent today going over the testimony and preparing their summations. It is understood Justice Scudder will place no limitation on the time each side is to have for closing arguments but will ask both defense lawyers and the prosecutor to confine their addresses to two hours each.

The judge's charge to the jury will take one hour. Dana Wallace will make the final plea for Mrs. Snyder, William J. Millard, for Gray, and District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe for the state.

The jury probably will get the case late Monday. None of the lawyers would make any predictions as to the verdict.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

A little eleven-year-old girl, living in Seattle, Wash., asks what the rivers mentioned in the 2nd Chapter of Genesis mean. This question has suggested the Bible study that follows.

646. How many rivers are mentioned in Genesis 2:10-14?

Answer: Four rivers.

647. From what place did they all start?

Answer: From the Garden of Eden, that surpassingly beautiful home of Adam and Eve.

648. What do these rivers seem to symbolize?

Answer: The four classes of the decendants of Adam, who will finally get eternal life. A river flows on and on, continually and forever. See Revelation 17:15.

649. What was the name of the first river and what does the name mean?

Answer: The name of the first river was Pison, which means fully flowing. This would suggest the class that are very active in the Lord's service during the gospel age, even amidst great opposition and persecution. The true church class gladly and joyfully lay down their very lives in the service of the great King. See Hebrows 12:2; Luke 6:22,23; Acts 20:22-24.

650. To what place did this river flow, and what was found there?

Answer: "It "encompasseth the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold; and the gold of that land is good."—Verses 11, 12.

651. What does gold symbolize?

Answer: Things divine. It was thus used in the Holy and Most Holy of the Tabernacle.

652. What class are to have "the divine nature" (the nature of God)?

Answer: The Church class. "Whereby are given unto us (the church) exceeding great and precious promises that by these (by faith in these promises and by compliance to all the conditions) ye (the church) might be partakers of the divine nature."—2 Peter 1:4.

SERM-O-GRAM

The old fashioned faith did not produce the type of mothers whose highest ambition is to be a man, smell of cigarette smoke, fondle a French poodle or annex some Count Tweededee No-Brains via the divorce court; and whose idea of the unpardonable sin is not to know which fork to use in eating olives; and whose morals are cultivated by reading "True Story Magazine" etc.

The most beautiful things outside of Heaven are the lily and godly motherhood.

Why does it never occur to us to ask how the Prodigal's mother felt?

Ancient Grave in Jerusalem Sheds Light On Peter's Act

By William T. Ellis.

Most spectacular and influential of the wars of the Middle Ages were the Crusades; which set all of Europe into a dramatic emprise to recover from Moslems the sepulchre of the Saviour. In large international ways, as well as in relation to individual life, this one tomb has been central to human history. The actual grave itself is a subject of controversy among archaeologists and theologians.

Tradition has for ages accepted the site enclosed in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, though the recent uncompleted digging along the course of the third wall may discredit this. Moved less by considerations of archaeology than by sentiments of revulsion toward the accretions of superstition which enclose this holiest shrine in Christendom, many Protestants have looked upon as the authentic Sepulchre the "Garden Tomb," outside the wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate, and directly under what is known as "Gordan's Calvary."

In Such a Grave Jesus Lay.

This tomb has not been changed since its discovery, and no church has been erected over it. Aside from a door of iron railings to enclose it, and the development of the garden in front of it, there are no alterations in the scene.

Although this "Garden Tomb" has by no means been proved to be the true burial place of Jesus, despite the partisanship of many Protestants, it is of priceless value as showing the nature of the burial place of our Lord. Certainly He was entombed in a grave like this. The tomb is a chamber of considerable size, cut into the face of the limestone cliff. It is divided into two compartments; an outer one, which contains the entrance, and a second, somewhat larger, to the right, along three sides of which graves had been cut into the living rock. There is a small window to this inner chamber. Opposite the window is one completed grave, the other two have never been finished. This evidence of the newness of the "Garden Tomb" is cited as proof that it is the one belonging to Joseph of Arimathea. The rolling stone, which once sealed the door, has disappeared; but a similar one is still in place near-by, in what is called 'the tombs of the kings."

John Locked: Peter Entered

With a sense of awe, even the unconvinced observer notices how the "Garden Tomb" fits the Gospel narrative. Here, on the ledge between the two rooms, may have sat the angel. Through the window of the inner room John may have stayed to look, while impetuous Peter entered the open door. Yonder, where the two graves meet, may have been lying the discarded grave clothes. All the setting of the Story is illustrated by this uncovered sepulchre of the time of Christ. To a westerner, unfamiliar with ancient oriental usages of burial, this spot reveals the naturalness and fidelity of the Scripture record. In the quiet of this garden, it is easier to reconstruct the Resurrection scene than amidst the bedizened surroundings of the historic church which has set up a modern white marble tomb above the traditional site of the Sepulchre; quite as Moslems erect a "tomb" above the real grave of one of their dignitaries.

As we sit on a stone ledge in the Garden, on Easter morning, we muse upon the figures in the first Easter event. From the other side of the city—possibly from the home of John Mark, over near the palace of Caiaphas—John and Peter had come running, upon receipts of the women's sensational news of the empty tomb. Love lent speed to the feet of the younger disciple, and he outran Peter; but he lost his advantage at the goal, by pausing to peer and ponder. Characteristically, Peter rushed in to the very tomb itself. Everybody loves Pete for his recklessness and audacity. It takes all kinds of disciples to make up the Church.

The Women Were First.

Even enterprising Peter had to get the great news from the women, who had been earliest at the grave. Despite the evidence of the tabloids and trashy tales, woman's first and deepest and truest characteristic is spiritual perception. She has always tended the race's altar fires of religion. As His women friends were the first to understand the real character of Jesus during His lifetime, so they also were "last at the cross and first at the grave." This is woman's crown of crowns; that she was the most loyal and comprehending disciple of the Saviours. And whenever and wherever on earth woman is her best self, she is a seeker after the spiritual.

Mary Magdalene, who went to the sepulchre before daylight on the first Easter, is the most maligned woman in history. There is no evidence in the Gospels to support the common idea that she was a sinner; yet her name has become a synonym for the fallen woman. "Magdalene," of course, merely identifies her by her home, as if it were "Mary of Magdala," the town up on the northwestern corner of the Lake of Galilee; where today the Zionists have a small colony, with funny little uniform houses, fashioned like the toys in children's Noah's arks. Ours is a day of derogation of women; it is strange that outstanding members of the sex do not publicly resent the prevolent portrayel of women and wives in cartoons and jokes. Let misrepresented Mary Magdalene be a reminder of the tragic injustice of the wrong estimate of womanhood. As woman meant most to Jesus, so Jesus has meant most to woman. Which is a theme not to be exhausted though volumes be written upon it.

The Greatest News in the World.

What constitutes real news is a subject discussed more widely now than ever before; what with most newspapers giving columns to the death of a motion picture actor, and inches to the death of President Eliot; and with many journals smearing over their front pages the murder of a husband by low paramours, while they relegate the momentous upheaval in China to the inside pages. Our estimates of relative values reveal our own characters.

The news that Mary Magdalene carried to Peter and to the other disciples—Peter was ever the sort of personality of whom one naturally thinks first in an emergency—was literally the greatest news story that the world has ever heard. Sensational in itself, the Resurrection was far more momentous in its ultimate significance to all human life and history. That Jesus arose from the dead, and that death's power over man has been broken, touches every person more intimately than any event in world affairs.

To Peter—poor, penitent Peter, who had been gnawing at the heart of remorse for his black denial—Mary's news meant more than the marvel of an empty tomb; it held promise of forgiveness for himself. We are so accustomed to considering the Resurrection as a boon for the race that we overlook the immediate, personal significance of it to the individual members of the dismayed group who were followers of Jesus.

A Breakfast By the Lake.

In the second portion of the assigned Sunday School Lesson we read the most curious of the reappearances of the risen Christ. Led by practical Peter, a group of the disciples had returned to their fishing on Galilee. After a fruitless night on the water, a figure on the shore had directed them where to cast for a full net. This Friend had even prepared breakfast for them on the shore. John, who had love's seeing eyes, was first to cry, "It is the Lord!"

No sooner were the words spoken than impetuous Peter was overboard and ashore—only to go back straightway to help haul the catch to land. Peter was ever the pendulum apostle. After breakfast—always let important conferences wait until the participants have eaten—came the momentous reinstatement of the disciple who had denied his Lord.

Three times Jesus asked, "Simon, son of John, do you love me?" And Peter always assented. The point of the passage is lost in the English translation. It hinges on the use of two different words for "love." The word twice used by Jesus was the highest, divinest word, the one which the Bible uses as a synonym for God. Peter's reply employed a lower word for love, that which represents one friend's love for another. The third time, Jesus, who accepts even our lesser, inadequate love, stepped down, as it were, and used Peter's own word, as if to say, "Peter, do you really love me as one man loves another?" The poet echoes this in,

"O heart of mine, are thou great enough for love?"

That broke Peter all up. He threw himself upon the understanding of the Saviour, crying, "Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee." Then followed the reiterated commission — "Feed my sheep." For the lover of the Lord must ever be a shepherd of souls.

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OPENED HERE IN 1851

Sprang Out of Old Associate Reformed Congregation.

DATE INDEFINITE

Late Dr. Taggart Was Pastor for 40 Years.

The First United Presbyterian church of East Liverpool sprang out of the old Associated Reformed Presbyterian church of this city in the year 1851. The exact date of its organization is not known, but the minutes of the presbytery of Steubenville state that on Oct. 24, 1849, a petition was presented from East Liverpool asking for "Word and Ordinances." That petition was laid on the table. One year later another petition was presented asking for part time supplies.

In October of 1851, the presbyterial records show that Rev. J. C. Campbell and his session of Wellsville held the first communion in East Liverpool. However, there is no record of the oganization of a congregation, or of said congregation being under care of Steubenville presbytery until 1858. In that year, Rev. S. W. Clark, pastor of St. Clair congregation, who had been acting as supply pastor, came to East Liverpool congregation, bringing the people of the St. Clair church with him. So that while East Liverpool was organized by the direction of Steubenville presbytery, it was in reality under the care of Monongahela presbytery in the early years of its history.

Following the union of the Associate and the Associate Reformed church which made what is known today as the United Presbyterian church, Rev. S. W. Clark resigned as pastor of East Liverpool so that the joint charges of East Liverpool and Calcutta could call a pastor to look after both fields. Accordingly, in 1860 a call was made out for Rev. Thomas Andrews who was installed in 1861. Rev. Mr. Andrews was pastor until his death in 1862. There was a vacancy until 1865, when Rev. J. W. Martin was called and held the charge until 1868. Then came the pastorate of the late Rev. J. C. Taggart, D. D., which began in 1869 and lasted for 40 years.

The congregation in its early days had not become settled as to location and worshipped in different places. It first worshipped in the old Episcopal church on Robinson street, now occupied by one of our potteries. Later it worshipped in the old Central school building and in other churches, until 1854, when its first house of worship was erected on the southwest corner of Market and Fifth streets. This was a crude building, the seats at least part of the time were made out of slabs placed on boxes. The people continued to hold worship there until 1875, when a new, and, at that time, a very fine building, was erected on the northwest corner of the same streets. Here the congregation took on new life and a strong and aggressive campaign of church activities was put on under the efficient leadership of Dr. Taggart. The impress of his long and active career was left indelibly not only on the life of the church, but on the whole community, he being one of the pioneer ministers of the city. In a sense he grew up with the community and the community grew up with him, and he was looked up to and respected by all, regardless of their church affiliations.

The activities of the congregation were carried on in this location until 1909, when the structure at the corner of Sixth and Jefferson streets was erected, the consummation to the hope and dreams of Dr. Taggart for so many years. This building was dedicated on January 5, 1909. Strange to say Dr. Taggart and his wife did not live to worship in their new church home. Mrs. Taggart passing away in May of that year, and he in September. But the splendid consecration and untiring effort of these two devoted Christian people has been felt through all the long life of the congregation.

In 1910 Rev. Hugh A. Kelsey became pastor of the church, coming from the First church in Altoona, Pa. Dr. Kelsey remained seven years. During his pastorate the church as well as the entire city felt the blessing of the Billy Sunday campaign.

Following Dr. Kelsey came the Rev. Joseph A. Speer, who remained approximately two years. The end of Dr. Speer's pastorate was the beginning of Rev. L. J. Davison's.

During all these years the First United Presbyterian church has been a militant force in the community for righteousness and moral integrity.

It has numbered among its members some of the very stalwart exponents of Christian truth through its long history. James A. Anderson has been a clerk of the session for more than 20 years, and John W. Vodrey has been treasurer for 25 years.

The congregation of B'Nai Israel temple was organized in 1893 with William Erlanger, Sr., as its first president. Services were conducted by members in private homes until 1898 when the meeting place was transferred to the Knights of Pythias hall and later to the Odd Fellows' temple.

A student of the Hebrew Union college was usually engaged to conduct services during the high holidays in the fall of each year, which practice has continued to this time, as the congregation is too small to employ an ordained rabbi throughout the year.

Services were held in the Odd Fellows' temple until 1922, when the present temple, at the corner of Fifth and Monroe streets, was dedicated. The cost of construction was between $50,000 and $60,000.

Since 1914 Dr. I. E. Philo has been coming here at intervals during the fall and winter to conduct services.

The congregation now numbers 28 members, each family being counted as but one member.

Boy Miner is College Hero in "White Flannels."

"White Flannels," the Warner Bros. production, featuring Louise Dresser and Jason Robards, and coming to the Strand theatre Monday for a run of two days, is an adaptation of Lucien Cary's Saturday Evening Post story, of the same name.

Louise Dresser is cast as Ma Broska, wife of a Polish miner, whose dingy, monotonous, danger-haunted life makes her vow that her only son, Frank (played by Jason Robards) is to be freed from a like existence. In the homes of mine-owners where she has gone to do washing and cleaning, she has seen their young sons, home from college, clean, white-flanneled, well-spoken. To Ma Broska they typify what it is to be a gentleman. Frank must go to college, get an "eddication and wear white flannels."

Frank loves a girl (Virginia Browne Faire) who is a waitress in the smoky restaurant of the home town. Ma Broska sees how things are going, and, with a tigerish passion for her son's freedom from the mines, begs the girl to promise not to "stand in his way." She promises, and Frank misunderstands her willingness to be rid of him. He wonders whether it may not be because of her love for his pal, Sunny, (Warner Richmond).

Pa Broska dies in the mines. He is scarcely laid in his grave before Ma is urging Frank to take the insurance and go to school. Half-believing Ma, feeling that the girl no longer cares, Frank at last consents and leaves for college.

Not content to stay away from her idol, Ma comes to the college town, and waits on table at a restaurant, keeping from him the knowledge of her presence, lest it shame him in eyes of his fine friends. Frank becomes a hero because of his terrific strength. He makes the football team, but, heart-sick for the girl he left behind, he seems to lack the spirit needed to win the hard game which is in prospect. The coach, thinking to encourage him gets a not too scrupulous co-ed to make love to him. A joke had gone the rounds. The girl's willingness to woo him gives added zest to his football prowess.

Ma Broska believes all is well with her plans. But alas for the best-laid schemes of mice and men. The unexpected happens. Disaster, terror! All are cast into a whirling maelstrom, mother, son, pal, the true girl and the false, miners, college mates.

Why "90 Percent" Are Still Suffering.

It is a glorious thing to awake with a lively, healthy, energetic body. It is a misery to drag an aching, tired, weary body from a restless, sleepless bed. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, thus: "I bet that 90 percent of those suffering from kidney irregularities never take naything for kidney regulation until it is too late, whereas Foley Pills diuretic would be a godsend to them, as they have ben to me.' A reliable, valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Ask for Foley Pills, diuretic. Sold everywhere.

Attorney G. J. Clark Awarded $11,573 Verdict in Suit

A jury before Judge H. M. Whitecraft in common pleas court at Lisbon this week rendered a verdict of $11,573.66 in favor of Attorney G. J. Clark, East Liverpool, against Rose A. Murphy, of Sebring.

The suit was based upon a judgment of $35,000 obtained by Mrs. Murphy in the United States federal court at Cleveland in her action against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for injuries alleged to have been received in an accident. Clark claimed that he had been engaged to represent Mrs. Murphy in the suit and advanced her $907 while the action was pending in court.

After the judgment had been secured by Mrs. Murphy Attorney Clark filed the suit in Lisbon to collect his share of the money obtained by the plaintiff from the railroad company. The jury awarded Clark $10,666.66 which he represented as his share of the judgment, together with $907, which he had loaned the woman.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 7.—A series of brilliant advances in a small number of the industrial, railroads, motor and public utility stocks featured the short session of the stock market today.

Some curtailment in industrial activity was reported by the weekly business reviews, and on the whole the business situation was not as encouraging as reported in the last few weeks. Unseasonable weather and the southern floods have slowed up the productive and distribution of goods, and large areas of productive agricultural lands have been rendered absolutely useless by inundation.

New price gains in the western railroad stocks placed a number of them at new high levels for the period. Union Pacific, for example, which has never previously touched 175, rose to above 177 in the first period of a new gain of points. Southern Pacific was in demand around 114. Chicago Northwestern sold above 87 on reports of a possible upward revision in the dividend rate of the stock. Chesapeake & Ohio also sold above 177 for the first time in its history, whole Baltimore and Ohio topped all of its previous records when it sold at 122.

The WOLVERINE is here!

By One of the Oldest American Builders

FOUR months ago, the Reo Motor Car Company announced the Reo Flying Cloud. Its instant acceptance by the public has been the outstanding feature of an otherwise colorless automobile season.

Now the Reo Motor Car Company announces the Wolverine.

Named for the strongest animal of its size in all the world, the Wolverine—substantially lower in price and somewhat smaller in size than the Reo Flying Cloud—will bring to an even wider field of motorists that honesty of construction and sureness of performance for which Reo automobiles have always been known.

The Wolverine is small enough for easy handling and low operating costs—but no power, nor brawn nor beauty was sacrificed in making it smaller.

It's fast—fast on the getaway, fast on the open road and quick to stop.

Both its performance and its appearance will be a delight to those who, in the past, have looked in vain for something decidedly superior in a moderate priced automobile.

STRAND OFFERS HEART THROB

Boy Miner is College Hero in "White Flannels."

"White Flannels," the Warner Bros. production, featuring Louise Dresser and Jason Robards, and coming to the Strand theatre Monday for a run of two days, is an adaptation of Lucien Cary's Saturday Evening Post story, of the same name.

Louise Dresser is cast as Ma Broska, wife of a Polish miner, whose dingy, monotonous, danger-haunted life makes her vow that her only son, Frank (played by Jason Robards) is to be freed from a like existence. In the homes of mine-owners where she has gone to do washing and cleaning, she has seen their young sons, home from college, clean, white-flanneled, well-spoken. To Ma Broska they typify what it is to be a gentleman. Frank must go to college, get an "eddication and wear white flannels."

Frank loves a girl (Virginia Browne Faire) who is a waitress in the smoky restaurant of the home town. Ma Broska sees how things are going, and, with a tigerish passion for her son's freedom from the mines, begs the girl to promise not to "stand in his way." She promises, and Frank misunderstands her willingness to be rid of him. He wonders whether it may not be because of her love for his pal, Sunny, (Warner Richmond).

Pa Broska dies in the mines. He is scarcely laid in his grave before Ma is urging Frank to take the insurance and go to school. Half-believing Ma, feeling that the girl no longer cares, Frank at last consents and leaves for college.

Not content to stay away from her idol, Ma comes to the college town, and waits on table at a restaurant, keeping from him the knowledge of her presence, lest it shame him in eyes of his fine friends. Frank becomes a hero because of his terrific strength. He makes the football team, but, heart-sick for the girl he left behind, he seems to lack the spirit needed to win the hard game which is in prospect. The coach, thinking to encourage him gets a not too scrupulous co-ed to make love to him. A joke had gone the rounds. The girl's willingness to woo him gives added zest to his football prowess.

Ma Broska believes all is well with her plans. But alas for the best-laid schemes of mice and men. The unexpected happens. Disaster, terror! All are cast into a whirling maelstrom, mother, son, pal, the true girl and the false, miners, college mates.

Attorney G. J. Clark Awarded $11,573 Verdict in Suit

A jury before Judge H. M. Whitcraft in common pleas court at Lisbon this week rendered a verdict of $11,573.66 in favor of Attorney G. J. Clark, East Liverpool, against Rose A. Murphy, of Sebring.

The suit was based upon a judgment of $35,000 obtained by Mrs. Murphy in the United States federal court at Cleveland in her action against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for injuries alleged to have been received in an accident. Clark claimed that he had been engaged to represent Mrs. Murphy in the suit and advanced her $907 while the action was pending in court.

After the judgment had been secured by Mrs. Murphy Attorney Clark filed the suit in Lisbon to collect his share of the money obtained by the plaintiff from the railroad company. The jury awarded Clark $10,666.66 which he represented as his share of the judgment, together with $907, which he had loaned the woman.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 7.—A series of brilliant advances in a small number of the industrial, railroads, motor and public utility stocks featured the short session of the stock market today.

Some curtailment in industrial activity was reported by the weekly business reviews, and on the whole the business situation was not as encouraging as reported in the last few weeks. Unseasonable weather and the southern floods have slowed up the productive and distribution of goods, and large areas of productive agricultural lands have been rendered absolutely useless by inundation.

New price gains in the western railroad stocks placed a number of them at new high levels for the period. Union Pacific, for example, which has never previously touched 175, rose to above 177 in the first period of a new gain of points. Southern Pacific was in demand around 114. Chicago Northwestern sold above 87 on reports of a possible upward revision in the dividend rate of the stock. Chesapeake & Ohio also sold above 177 for the first time in its history, whole Baltimore and Ohio topped all of its previous records when it sold at 122.

The WOLVERINE is here!

By One of the Oldest American Builders

FOUR months ago, the Reo Motor Car Company announced the Reo Flying Cloud. Its instant acceptance by the public has been the outstanding feature of an otherwise colorless automobile season.

Now the Reo Motor Car Company announces the Wolverine.

Named for the strongest animal of its size in all the world, the Wolverine—substantially lower in price and somewhat smaller in size than the Reo Flying Cloud—will bring to an even wider field of motorists that honesty of construction and sureness of performance for which Reo automobiles have always been known.

The Wolverine is small enough for easy handling and low operating costs—but no power, nor brawn nor beauty was sacrificed in making it smaller.

It's fast—fast on the getaway, fast on the open road and quick to stop.

Both its performance and its appearance will be a delight to those who, in the past, have looked in vain for something decidedly superior in a moderate priced automobile.

First Series of Intersectional League Games Are Billed Today

East - West Battles Are Scheduled On Seven League Lots

Two American League Stars, Goose Goslin and Ty Cobb Hors de Combat as Eastern Clubs Begin Western Jaunt; McGraw Said to be After Tony Kaufman.

NEW YORK, May 7.—With record Saturday crowds in prospect, the first series of intersectional games will begin in seven major league ball parks today. Because of rain, only one inaugural was played yesterday, at Boston.

Two of the American League's brightest stars were hors de combat as the eastern clubs in the junior organization began their western jaunt. Goose Goslin, hard hitting Washington outfielder, is in a Pittsburgh hospital suffering from pleurisy, and Ty Cobb, the spark plug of the Athletics, is out of the game for a week because of an injury sustained in an exhibition game at Buffalo yesterday. The Georgian injured his right leg in taking his famous hook slide and will be kept out of the Cleveland series.

The Yankees, leading the Athletics by only a game, begin their tour against the White Sox. The boys are somewhat apprehensive, remembering their final western trip last season which was so disastrous as to nearly cost them the pennant. The Red Sox will be thrown into Navin field to feed the Tigers, while the Senators will open in St. Louis.

The trade winds are blowing as the western clubs in the National League start their eastern invasion. John McGraw of the Giants is said to be trying to get either Pitcher Tony Kaufmann of the Cubs or Hal Carlson of the Phillies.

The west drew first blood yesterday when Cincinnati beat the Braves, 5 to 3. Kelly and Allen contributed homers which helped Carl Mays win his first game of the season.

SCAPA FLOW IS BOOSTED FOR DERBY

Shows Plenty in Gallop for Bowling Brook Purse.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Scapa Flow, the Man O'War scion, today rated virtually equal consideration with Whiskery, Osmand, Justice F. and other derby favorites, as a result of the mile and seventy yards he ran in yesterday's mud at Pimlico. They sent Scapa out after the Bowling Brook purse in his last start before the two classics in order to see what he had and he seemed to have plenty.

He won galloping under restraint from Wandering Minstrel and Afterglow, derby candidates both, in 1:46 3-5, as against Shuffle Along's track record of 1:42 1-4, made on a fast track. It was just a good workout for Scapa and the easy way in which he outfooted the Minstrel and Afterglow relegates that pair well to the background as far as Churchill Downs is concerned.

Whether Scapa Flow will go to the post a Preakness favorite on Monday, as a result of his race, remains to be seen. The Whitney entry of Whiskery, Bostonian and Pandera is certain to get a big play and it would seem that only a near-record performance, impossible under the conditions, could have displaced the rival stable in esteem, still, you can't find great fault with a horse you know can run on any track.

His race was one of the few interesting derby developments of the last twenty-four hours, others being Fred Jr.'s at the Downs for the full derby distance and the report that Hydromel had been beaten down to 12 to 1 at the track. Osmand was merely breezed going three-eighths in 35 2-5.

Incidentally, Rip Rap tried to give away a lot of weight to the field in the second race at Pimlico and failed to place. The colt carried the derby impost of 125 pounds and couldn't get away with it. Jopagan, another derby eligible, managed to place third under 111 pounds.

The matter of weight was another encouraging feature of Scapa's effort. He, too, shouldered 126 pounds, just eleven more than he has ever carried, but didn't seem to mind it, even in the mud.

He went to the pace early and, at the half mile, had opened a gap on Skeedaddle, which was doing the chasing. Afterglow was third at this point but Wandering Minstrel was off the pace and didn't make a move until nearing the three-quarters pole, where Scapa was three lengths in front and running easily, and went on to win by four lengths with greatest ease.

Skeedaddle and Afterglow began to fade on the stretch turn and the Minstrel moved into second place and stayed there to the end. He closed fairly strongly but Coltilette was giving a Scapa a buggy ride by that time.

SHELL FOES RACE TODAY

Yale, Columbia, Penn in Annual Derby on Housatonic.

DERBY, Conn., May 7.—Three crews—one an aggregation of seasoned veterans, another composed entirely of sophomores, and the third smarting under a recent defeat — will sweep down the historia Housatonic here this evening in the derby regatta, eastern rowing classic.

The veteran Yale eight is a slight favorite over the all-sophomore Columbia crew, with Pennsylvania, the under dog, given an outside chance. Ed Leader, coach of the Elis, has never lost a varsity race since coming to Yale from the University of Washington, but Dick Glendon, the former Annapolis rowing mentor, has developed a youthful and ambitious Columbia crew that is likely to shatter Yale's long string of victories. This same crew captured the intercollegiate freshman championship in Poughkeepsie last year.

Penn, defeated by the Navy recently, is determined to redeem itself today. The Red and Blue is conceded to have a better chance in the junior varsity and freshman races, however.

An observation train filled with enthusiasts will follow the race on shore, the banks of the river will be dotted with spectators and others will view the proceedings from yachts. The Yale undergraduates, who annually enliven the regatta with pranks and impromptu parades, have been warned by the student council that a repetition of last year's hilarity wil be met with severe punishment.

Ty Cobb, Injured, Expects to Play in Game on Monday

CLEVELAND, May 7. — Ty Cobb, well known base stealer, now playing with the Philadelphia Athletics, who was slightly injured during an exhibition game in Buffalo Friday, said today that he expected to play in Monday's game with the Indians here.

"I'll be in the game at Detroit, Tuesday," the "Peach" replied confidently, when asked about his condition, "and the trainer believes I might be able to play in at least one game here."

Cobb is suffering from a wrenched tendon in his right leg. He walked with a severe limp today and despite his confident predictions, members of the Athletics were somewhat skeptical as to whether he will be able to play against his former teammates at Detroit Tuesday, when a celebration in his honor, has been planned.

DE MAR FAVORITE IN 12-MILE RUN

NEW YORK, May 7.—Clarence De Mar, veteran Boston runner, is favored to win the Bronx-City Hall twelve mile marathon here this afternoon. More than 1,000 runners will compete, including entries from Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Haven, Providence, Hartford, Allentown, Camden and Atlantic City.

THIS IS SANDE'S YEAR TO WIN AGAIN

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Earl Sande rode the recognized wonder horse "Zev" to victory in the Kentucky Derby in 1923.

He took an unknown outsider and rode him to victory in 1925.

He is booked to ride a Widener entry in 1927 Derby.

It's the odd year—his year!

But on the other hand every year is Sande's.

What he might have done in 1924—the year between his Derby victories, remains a question as he spent the late summer of 1924 fighting death in the hospital as the result of a spill in August at Sarasota.

It was the latter part of March in the spring of 1925 when he returned to the saddle. Less than two months later he had ridden another Derby winner.

The year 1923 was probably his greatest. Not only did he win practically every established stake of importance in the New York tracks but copped several in Kentucky and two in Maryland.

His winnings in 39 races that year were $444,125. And he topped off the season's work by riding Zev to victory over Papyrus, the highly touted British runner. Riding Papyrus that day was Steve Donogue, five times winner of the English Derby and premier jockey of the eastern hemisphere.

When Sande is up in a race the dope book boys might just as well save their mental energy. If he's riding the favorite the race is over. If he's riding an outsider the boys who like to play the game for the love of it string with him on general principals. And the wise boys, who lay cold dough, wish the race were over.

SOFT BALL TEAM PLAY SPEEDS UP

League Teams Getting Down to Form for Season.

COMPETITION is becoming closer, errors are becoming fewer and scores are resembling more and more regular baseball counts instead of football or basketball figures as Recreation League teams turn in their final practice sessions before the opening of the league season Monday night.

The softball game is taking on more of the aspect of real baseball and this is helped along to a great extent by the presence of any number of baseball players in the ranks of the various clubs.

As a result, when the schedule gets under way play is certain to be faster and more accurate.

The Ohio Power nine was ahead, 9 to 1, at the end of nine innings with the Laughlin, East End, club last night at upper Columbian park. It was the Laughlin outfit's first real practice session.

The Y. M. C. A. sluggers were on last night as they sat back Charley Kidd's Roselawns, 12 to 2, at the playground, in six innings.

The Printers and the Johannes Drugs played nine innings at Northside, the Drugs getting a 9 to 8 decision. Long hits on either side were scarce.

The National Furnitures were blanked by the Bulger Drugs at the playground, 6 to 0.

THREATENS 2-MILE MARK

Wide to Make Dash for Fame Tonight at Sundown.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 7.—Edwin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster with the flying feet, was all set today to make his long waited attempt to shatter all existing world's records for the 2 mile.

The cinder track in Harvard stadium was in excellent condition, the day was perfect and thousands of persons had purchased seats to witness Wide's dash for fame at sundown.

Wide will be paced by three Harvard runners.

He will attempt to do the 2 miles in 8 minutes flat. The world's outdoor record, not yet accepted, is 9 minutes 1 2-4 seconds, made by Wide in Berlin in 1926, but this evening Wide will not only attempt to break his own record but also the world's indoor 2 mile record of 8:58 1-5 made by Paavo Nurmi at New York in 1925.

COUNTY HIGH SQUADS STAGE MEETS TODAY

Blue and White at East Palestine; Wellsville at Lisbon; Salem at Carnegie Tech Games.

Practically all of the larger Columbiana county school track teams will be found in competition today preliminary to the annual Columbiana county meet next Saturday at Lisbon.

East Liverpool high school trackers will have an opportunity to look over one of the county's leading squads, East Palestine, in a meet this afternoon at the East Palestine fairgrounds.

The local school went in on the meet this week. Originally it had been arranged as a triangular session with Palestine, Youngstown East and Leetonia slated to perform, but the entrance of Boardman and East Liverpool lends additional interest.

The Brown and White topped Youngstown South a week or so ago and can be counted on to be up among the leaders at Lisbon.

"Rub" Allen, Salem pole vaulter, who has achieved national fame as a result of his "rise" in the world, will do his stuff at the Carnegie Tech meet in Pittsburgh, along with other Salem athletes.

Wellsville, Columbiana and Lisbon are scheduled to occupy the fairgrounds at Lisbon in a triangular competition. With tracks dry and fast and weather conditions almost ideal, the athletes should have a big afternoon.

NEILSON FUND TOTALS $994

Collect $69.25 During Last Two Weeks for Mine Victim.

The Frank Neilson relief fund, sponsored by a committee of National Brotherhood of Operative Potter members, totalled $994.90 today, with the receipt of $69.25 during the last two weeks.

Recent contributions to the fund were: D. E. McNicol, Sr., $20; Cain Machine company $10; Local Union No. 125, Kalamazoo, Mich., $8; Local Union No. 35, Trenton, $5; Knights of Malta, $5; Albert Hart, $1; Mrs. Lau-Deuval, $1.00, and H. Wildblood, 50 cents. From the sale of tickets $18.75 was collected.

Nine dollars, representing the cost of printing tickets for the dinner set, upon which chances are being sold for the benefit of the fund, were paid by the general committee.

Neilson is in the City hospital suffering from a broken back sustained several months ago when the roof of a coal mine in which he was digging coal for his own use on his farm near the Bell school house fell. His wife and family of eight children, the eldest 15 years of age, are being fed and clothed from the funds collected by the committee.

"HATTIE"

and rested a hand on his arm.

He started.

"I meant to explain, Mother. I've simply got to run up country for a few days and get my work going. There's been so much confusion . . ."

"It's a good idea," said she, in her sensible way. "I'll be all right here. I'm really enjoying having the place so much to myself." And she smiled.

He saw that she suspected or knew. And he blessed her for asking no questions. She was a good sport, this little mother of his.

As he rode up in the subway to the Grand Central Station, he reflected on this so deeply unsetting little story that he would some day tell her, some day when he could talk without too great emotion. And he smiled, grimly, thinking of how beautiful it would have turned out in the pictures. De Brissac, there, would never have got in that bewildering way into her life. In the pictures, indeed, De Brissac would have been a villian, instead of a really shrewd and able man, with, by chance, rather Continental ideas. And in the pictures the girl always gave up her career for the simplicity of true love. Really, of course, you couldn't. Life is a job, love a moment . . . And in the pictures he would have come delightfully into a fortune, and would take her to an enormous stucco mansion of the Los Angeles type set in acres of turf and gardens instead of having to think, as now, about next month's rent. Hokum!

But he had her picture, with—"To Julian, from Hattie"—written across it in the hand that he didn't know was modelled on that of a certain Miss Gladys Revere.

And he had had that moment of beauty . . .

The End.

MAN SNATCHED FROM DEATH AS GALLOWS TRAP FAILS TO WORK

Joseph Birbeck Tells Story of One They Could Not Hang.

ENGLISH CASE

East Liverpool Potter Recalls Plight of John Lee.

John Lee, English butler, who gained a world-wide reputation about 40 years ago as "the man they could not hang," was personally known to the late Miss Emily Birbeck, sister of Joseph Birbeck, foreman of the decorating shop at the No. 2 plant of the Hall China company.

Birbeck recalled the story of Lee, whom his sister often mentioned in her letters to relatives, when he learned that the film version of an Englishman's narrow escape from the gallows, entitled, "The Man They Could Not Hang," was to appear at the Ceramic theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Birbeck was about 12 years of age when the famous Babycombe Downs murder was committed in Devonshire, England, where his sister, Emily, resided. Because of the mysterious circumstances surrounding the case it attracted wide attention. Every letter from England received by the Birbeck family brought additional details of the crime.

Sister Knew Condemned Man.

Lee, according to details of the case given Birbeck by his sister who died many years ago, had been employed as a butler for an elderly woman by the name of Williams. One day the woman was found slain and on the floor near her body had been poured oil, the slayer evidently intending to set fire to the house in an effort to conceal the murder.

Suspicion fell upon Lee when kerosene oil was discovered upon the soles of his shoes. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to die on the gallows.

On the day of his scheduled execution he was led to the scaffold. The rope was placed around his neck and the hood adjusted over his head. When the lever was pulled to release the trap door the bolt refused to work and Lee was saved, at least temporarily.

Sent to Prison.

A thorough test of the trap door was made and it worked successfully. Lee was again taken back to the scaffold and for the second time the bolt held and Lee was literally snatched from the jaws of death.

Once more an inspection was made of the gallows and numerous tests were made. Each time it worked, and for the third time preparations were made for Lee's hanging. He was led to the scaffold, and for a third time, seemingly through an act of Providence, the trap door refused to work with the condemned man on it.

English laws now made it impossible to carry out the death sentence, but the English home minister, believing him to be guilty of the crime ordered him to serve the rest of his life behind prison bars.

Housekeeper Confesses.

Several years later the housekeeper employed by the Williams woman, in a death-bed confession, admitted the killing of her employer, robbery being the motive. Exonerated, Lee was liberated from prison after having served several years, terminating one of the most pathetic tales ever written into English history.

Despites the terrible ordeal of three near hangings, Lee lives today. Recently he assisted in the filming of the picture which is now making a world tour, attracting record-breaking crowds wherever it has been shown.

W. Leonard Howe, who travels with the film, will review features of the Lee case with each showing of the film. Miss Loreen Thompson, Candian lyric soprano, who plays the part of Mrs. Lee in the musical scenic prologue, will also appear in each performance.
